Table constant; unsolicited application fof a life insurance, gives the most abundant and gratifying proof that the public mind is deeply impressed with the vast importance of this subject. The great object, however, of Insurance should be eafety, otherwise the whole motive to insure may be disappointed. Too much care cannot be practised in the selection of an office with which to effect the contract.—The choice should be regulated not by present and constant large inducements, us this, is certainly incompatible with future benefits. The premiums on life are calculated for the future, if present and prospective benefits therefore are given, the result ultimately, must terminate in itigation, disappointment and ruin. The object aimed at by this institution is stabilly and perpeturly. The rates of premium have been carefully prepared with reference to fluctuations.—The cash system of payments has also been adopted. Unpaid premium potes constitute no part of the assets of this company, and overy contingency being fortified with an ample capital, security stamps the whole system. This feature, paramount to all other considerations commends the company to public favor.
