Che Farmer.

Improvements in Grounds. Our readers should now be diligen in their out-door work for their pleasure grounds. A few shrubs add grace as well as ornament to every cottage, as al so to the village residence or the farm-house. We frequently see the farm-yard and its out offices too much exposed to the frontage, which is quite time should no longer be the case. In Europe, and in England especially, this is quite dif-ferent, and the front of the farm house is always separated from the back yard by shrubs and small trees on either side The consequence is, that the appearance of the whole is improved. It must not be imagined, that we recommend theadop tion of a style for our rural homes, which devolves upon our agricultural friends the necessity for a continued annual expense, or the occupation of such a considerable portion of the time of their laborers as would materially interfere with their more important duties. One hour a day for a formight or three weeks, at this season of the year, would be suffi-cient to enable a sharp, clever fellow; who see abdit if "with a will," to dig up and plant enough around a farm house to shut but from observation those necessary but unornamental adjuncts of the nises, the farm-vard and its build. ings. And we have faith enough in the good taste of our farmers, to think that as soon as the genial warmth of the approaching season throws their newly formed shrubberry into leaf, the improvements in the aspect of things aound them would induce them to go on little by little, as time allowed, and taste dictated, until they had given a new feature to their home, and instead of its presenting a bare character of a house dropped down as if by accident, only for shelter from the weather, it would come the visible representation of all those delightful ideas which we are accustomed to associate with the peculia Anglo-Saxton word comfort.

How to Raise Fruit.

If rightly understood, few trees, un less absolutely dead or rotten, need oc, cupy ground, without yielding a plente ous crop. After a long and varied series of experiments, I gradually adopted the following mode :---

As soon as the winter has sufficiently disappeared and before the sap ascends I examine my trees ; every dead bough is lopped off, then, after the sap has ris en sufficiently to show where the blossoms will be, I cut away all the other branches having none on, and also the extremity of every limb, the lower part of which bears a considerable number of buds, thus concentrating the sap of the tree, upon the maturation of its fruits and saving what would be a useless expenditure of strength. In the quince, apricot and peach tree, this is very im portant as these are very apt to be luxuriant in leaves and destitute of fruit .-You may think this injures the trees, but it does not, for you will find trees ladened with fruit, which formerly yielded nothing. Of course, all other well known precautions must be attended to, such as cutting out worms from the roots, placing old iron on the limbs, which acts as a to nic to the sap, &c. Try it, ye who have failed in raising fruit.

Productive Farming.

In a treatise on Productive Farming, just issued from the press, the following observations occur :---"It is in vegetable as in animal life : a mother crams her child exclusively with arrow root-it becomes fat, it is true, but alas ! it is rickety, and gets its teeth very slowly and with difficulty .-Mamma is ignorant, or never thinks that her offspring cannot make bone-or what is the same things, phosphate of lime, the principal bulk of bone-out of starch. It does its best; and were it not for little milk and bread, perhaps now and then a little meat and soup, it would have no bones and teeth at all. Farmers keep poultry, and it is true of a cabbage, a turnip, or a car of wheat. If we mix with the lood of fowls a sufficient quantity of egg shells or chalk, which they eat greedily, they will lay many more eggs than before. A well fed fowl is disposed to lay a vast number of eggs, but cannot do so without the materials for the shells, however nourishing in other respects her food may be. A fowl with the best will in the world, not finding any lime in the soil, nor mortar from walls, nor calcareous matter in her food is incapacitated from laying eggs at all Let Farmers lay such facts as these which are matters of common observa tion, to heart, and transfer the analogy as they may justly do, to the habits of plants, which are a s truly alive, and an swer as closely to evil or judicious treat ment, as their own horses."

The Old Fashioned Mills Done Alexy With? The N all former times it was supposed that a Large quantity of cider could only be made by using a ponderous machine, that slowly crushed the apples without grinding them fine. They were, then made into a massive cheese in straw, and a most severe and long pressure was required to extract a portion of the cider, a-considerable quantity being absorbed by the straw and the mass of pomice, and to obtain this unsatisfactory result the farmer had to take all his Tands, and perhaps his six horse team, and devote a whole day that could have been more profitably employed. to make from six to South Side South Side HE undersigned begs leave to inform the citizens of Carlisle and the public gene-rally, that he has opened a new FAMILY GROCERY STORE, on East High Street, mbre profitably employed, to make from six to twelve barrels of cider. # twelve barrels of eider. To inker from sk to invelve barrels of eider. To obviate the diffi-culty the barrels of eider. To obviate the diffi-culty the farmers have heretofore labored under this machine fast been invested, and the state-ment of a few facts will prove that it is not on-ly the BEST MACHINF of the kind incris-tence, but that it is the most profitable that a man can have on his farm. The apples are by this machine grated up into a fine pulp, so that it requires but a comparatively light pressure, and that but a minute or two, to extract all the eider, it being ascertained/by practical experi-ment that one fourth more juice can be obtained than by the old process. Besides this it only requires two hands to grind up and make into eider a larger quantity of apples than can pos-sibly be made on the old fashioned machines. On this press, owing to the compate manner in which it is ground, a pressure of from three to five tons—that can easily be obtained—will produce a more favorable result than one hun-drod tons pressure on the ordinary cider press, even if the apples were grund as finctly as on the improved mill; and if the apples were merely crushed as on the nut machine; it would require a pressure of two hundred tons to pro-duce the result accomplished by this Patent Mill. The following may be adduced as the decided advantages of this mill: First—It will make more cider than any oth-er mill, with a given quantity of apples in a given time, and with much less laborand ex-pense. Fourth—You can mikke the cider as you want it, and when you want it—and in quantities from one gellon to G or 20 harrels. Fourth—With it you can press your currants cherries, herries, cheeze, butter, lard and tal-tow. Fith—With it you can press your currants
