A Family

Newspaper,---- Dennted to Literature, Education,

Politics,

Agrienliure, Business und General Information

THERE ARE TWO THINGS, SAITH LORD BACON, WHICH MAKE A NATION GREAT AND PROSPEROUS. A FERTILE SOIL AND BUSY WORKSHOPS, TO WHICH LET ME ADD KNOWLEDGE AND FREEDOM. Bishop Hall.

CARLISLE, PA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1854.

Cards.

DR. C. S. BAKER

E. BEATTY Proprietor

ESPECTFULLY offers his professiona services to the citzens of Carlisle and surrounding country.

Office and residence in South Hanover street, directly opposite to the "Volunteer Office."

Carlisle, Apl 20, 1853

Dr. GEORGE Z. BRETZ,

will perform al operations upon the tooth that may be required for their preservation. Artificial teeth maerted, from a single tooth to anentire set, of the most scientific principles. Diseases of the mouth and irregularities carefully treated. Of fice at the residence of his brother, on North Pitt Street, Carlisle Pirt Street, Carlisle

DR. I. C. LOOMIS, red for their preservation, such as Scaling, Filing, Plugging, &c, or will restore the loss of them by theoreting Artificial Teeth, from a single tooth to a full sett. 30 Office on Pitt street, a few doors south of the Railroad Fetel. Dr. L. is abent from Carlisle the last ten days of every month.

DR. S. B. KIEFFER OFFICE in North Hanover street adjoining Mr. Wolf's store. Office hours, more particularly from 7 to 9 o'clock, A. M., and from 5 to 7 o'clock, P. M. Jinnet8'5

G. B. COLE, A TTORNEY ATLAW, will attend promptly to all business entrusted to him. Office in the room formerly occupied by William Irvine, Esq., North Hanover St., Carliele. April 20, 1852.

F. W. ROSENSTEEL,

OUSE, Sign. Fancy - and Ornamental Painter, Irvin's (formerly Harper's) Rownext door to Trout's Hat Store. He will artend promptly to all the above descriptions of painting, at reasonable prices. The various kinds of graining attended to, such as mahog any, oak, walnut, &c., in the improved styles. Carlisle, July 14, 1852—1y.

DR. GEO. W. NEIDIGH.

PENTIST, carefully attende to all operation upon the teeth and adjacent parts that dis case or irregularity may require. He will also Insert Artificial Teeth of every description, such as Pivot, Single and Block teeth, and teeth with "Continuous Gams;" and will con teeth with "Continuous Gums;" and will con-struct Aritficial Palátes, Obtinators, Regula-ting Pioces, and every appliance used in the Deutal Art.—Operating Room at thi residence of Dr. Samuel Elliott, East High St. Carlisle

JOHN W. BELL & CO., THE OUTE

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS HOWARD STREET, Opposite Centre, TBALTIMORE

Fresh Drugs, Medicines &c. &c.

1 v

I have just received frem Philadelphia and New York very extensive additions to my former stock, embracing nearly every article of Medicine now in use, together with Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Turpentine, Perlumery, Soaps, Stationery, Fine Cutlery, Fishing Tackle,—Bruhes of almost overy description, with a endelse variety of other articles, which I am dutermined to sell at the very Lowest prices.

All Physicians, Country Merchants, Pedlars and others, her respectfully requested not to pass and others, are respectfully requested not to pass the OLD STAND, as they may rest assured that every article will be sold of a good quality, and upon reasonable terms.
S. ELLIOTT,

Main street. varlis 45 May 30 STEAM SAW MILL NEAR PAPERTOWN, CUMB.-Co. HASKELL & SEVINOUR

ONTINUE to supply Lumber of all kinds at the shortest actice, and on terms lower than can be find elsewhere. All orders directed to E. HASKELL, Papertown, or WM. D. SEYMOUR, Jr., Carlisle, will be promptly tended to.

LIFE INSURANCE.

HE undersigned having been the agent the Koystone Life Insurance Company, of Harrisburg, Pa., continues to act in that capacity, by authority of said Company. He would respectfully inform the community that he will attend to such persons as may signify their desire to insure their lives, and thus give some protection to their bereaved families and friends, in case of death. Office in West Pomfret Street, Carlislo.

May25 tf J. WORTHINGO N.

LEATHER.

FRITZ & HENDRY, Store, 29 N. 8d at., Phila.

Morocco Manufacturers, Curriers, Importer Commission and General Leather Business, WHOLESALE & RETAIL.

Fresh Arrival of Hardware.

HE, subscriber having returned from the City, has just opened for the Spring trade a large and well selected stock of HARD WARE, loreign and domestic, sembracing everything usually found in that line of business. The attention of friends and the public generations and the statement of the statement o ally is respectfully directed to the assortment on hand, assuring them that goods of all kinds will be sold for cash at a very small advance on manufacturers prizes.

HENRY SAXTON

CLOVER SEED. 200 bushels prime Ohio and Ponnsylva

CLOVER SEED for sale by Agricultural Implement and Seed Store, Harrisburg, Park

Great Rush for Bargains! AT the New and Cheap Store of WEISE & CAMPBELL. We are selling off a large assortment of Cashmeres and Mous de Loins at greatly reduced prices. Call and see!

Jan 25, 1854.

PLOUGHS.

URKEE S colobrated York Ploughs constantly on hand, also Graighead's and Plank's make for sale at SAXTON'S.

TO FARMERS. TRIE subscriber informs the pub lie that he has constantly of hand a variety of choice young LO CUST TREES, from ten to filtee foet high, which were raised from the seed; they are all of the yellow loquet. It offers them at moderate prices, at his nurser situated in Hampden township, Cumb. country about 5 miles west of Harrisburg, on the turnpike. Call and examine for yourselves. Feb22 10 wpd1 SAM'L EBERLY.

Plainfield Classical Academy Near Carlisle, Pa.

M retired and healthful location, with therough instruction in the various, depurtments of resiston), $60.00

For Catalogues with full information address
R. B. URNS,
Principal & Proprietor.
Plainfield, Cumb, Co., Pa.

Poetry.

LOVERS

A PASSAGE FROM KEATS' "ISABELLA." Parting they seem'd to tread upon the air, Twin roses by the zephyr blown apart Only to meet again more close, and share The inward tragrance of each other's hear

She, to her chamber gone, a ditty fair Sang, of delicious love and honey'd dart; He with light steps went up a western hill, And bade the sun farewell, and jcy'd his fill. All close they met again, before the dusk Had taken from the stars its pleasant weil:

All close they met, all eyes, before the dusk Had taken from the stars its pleasant veil, Close in a bower of byacinth and musk, Unknown to any, free from whispering tale.

Ah! better had it been forever so, Than idle cars should pleasure in their woo. Were they unhappy them? -- it cannot be-

Too many sighs give we to them in fee. Too much of pity after they are dead, Too many doleful stories do we see, fread; Whose matter in bright gold were best bo Except in such a page where Theseus's spouse Over the pathless waves towards him bows.

Original Sketches.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

No. IV. suburbs are several cottages comparing very ty of its founders, and the extensive patronage. favorably with those which surround our cities. This place possesses superior advantages for becoming a manufacturing city of importance The Dan river is three hundred yards wide and as it has a very rapid descent would afford sufficient motive power for a large number of mills. The principal business is manufacturing tobacco. There are several large establishments engaged in this occupation, but as the price of tobacco is very low but one factory was in operation. The manner of preparing it for market is a curiosity to one who has never witnessed it. In the factory which I visited there were between thirty and forty negroes at work; about one half were females. Some were stemming, others rolling, some pressing and others packing. One is first cleansed from any dirt which may ad-The darkies acquire great skill in stripping the g

The odor was very disagreeable and impressed tion of freight. Boats called batteaux are of carrying about two tons. These are managed by negroes, and it is remarked that free ion' for the present.

the former productions, the Carolinians the he has said: "Suffer little children to come latter. If this is a characteristic of the State unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the should gainsay their pretensions, for we cannot expect one section of the country to influence of this wicked world, it rests secure be rich in every thing. The last few years have shown that North Carolina is able to produce more than the products of pitch forests. Her gold mines and copper mines are becom- of its abode. ing of great importance, and if her mineral wealth continues to be developed we may ex pect to see her soon take her place by the side of Pennsylvania and-California, for she already surpasses the other States in mineral reling off a hundred thousand pounds worth of sources. Coal, marble, limestone and fossils abound in large quantities. All that is necessary to make this a wealthy State, are energy and industry in her citizens. The appear ance of North Carolina is similar to southern ry were about to embark for the Mediterra-Virginia, and the mode of agriculture is not any better. After a cold and dreary ride. about day break we alighted at Greensboro, which is a flourishing town, and is famous for. being the seat of two Female Seminaries of great importance. One under the patronage been brought before Parliament, where the greof the Presbyterians, at the head of which is Prof. Sturling. The other, which is styled a College, is controlled by the Methodists .-Dr. Deems, a graduate of Dickinson College, a gontleman of considerable literary reputation in the South, is its President. Pennsyl vania has reason to be proud of her literary. Institutions, for many who were educated within her borders are now holding prominent companies of capitalists in the northern cities yield a handsome profit. . Meeting with a couple from the sleep of ages and excite them to activity. About four miles distant is the bat tle ground of Guilford Court House. No traces of the battle are perceivable; now and then cannon balls are ploughed up. We passed by he position where the engagement commenced, but had not time to pass over and examine the ground.

Plainted, Spans Cort

Our next stop was made at Salem, the far famed Moravian settlement. All the inhabitants of this place are Germans, and adhere strictly to the manners and customs of their fathers. A Pennsylvanian feels somewhat at home here, for many things remind him of the industry, peatness and comfort of our villages. No one is permitted to become a settler unless he is willing to become a member of the Moravian Church and to conform to their customs. With all their strictness it is said that many of their young folks will go beyond the reginets of Church government, and like the oung Quakeresses will bear the anathema of excommunication in order to unite their desinies with outside barbarians. The Female Seminary at present has nearly three hundred pupils. Music, the national characteristic of the Germans, is taught very successfully,-The place has the appearance of antiquity and scems to be losing ground. Such exclusive communities do not accord with the spirit of young Americanism, and will not be able to withstand the influences of civil, political and religious progress. Their regularity is proverbial, and there are many things connected with the association which it would be advan-Danville situated upon the Dan river is a tageous to copy. Stokes county is rich in place of considerable importance, and in an | minerals. Marble, limestone and coal are ticipation of its being the terminus of the abundant; within a few miles of Germanta, the Richmond and Danville railroad, is becoming former county seat, there is a natural curiosquite a brisk business town. Within a few ity styled a petrified forest. Many of the speyears a large number of beautiful structures clinens are beautiful petrifactions of the fern have been erected, displaying great energy in and other trees. Germanta is noted for an the citizens. One part of the town is inhabi- Institution, which has a reputation second to ted by Jews, and very appropriately called none of its kind in the southern States, under Jerusalem. Their houses are characterized by the patronage of the Masons, and bids fair to taste, neatness and simplicity. Upon the become a seat of learning worthy the liberaliof its friends.

For the Herald THE YOUNG MOTHER.

BY LEM LAUREL. The painter can with great truth and accuracy depict the features of the countenance and trace the marks of declining age, but when he attempts to delineate the Foung Mother, with her eyes, her soul fixed upon the little "Angel," whom God has given herwhen he essays to impart that depth of passion-that glowing wildering love-that shadow of uncasiness, which alternately with the suushine of real joy, suffuses her heart, her countenance-how weak and deficient are his can roll as fast as two can stem.' The tobacco impressions-how inadequate is his canvasa to the display of those lively and ever-varying here to it, by shaking, then thrown into a pile, emotions, which the heart in its ardor sends and if it is intended to be sweetened, sugar or to every feature of her countenance! Like licerice is scattered over it in the evening and the inductive power of electricity, the pleasure in the morning it is considered fit for use. or pain of her babe, which is denoted by its estures and looks, is immediately imparted leaf and in forming the plug. Much of the to the Mother, and by sympathy she wears the tobacco being manufactured was the quality same expressions! How beautiful is this flow usually sold as Congress or Cavendish in the North, which is made of what they call trash running in a current-of gushing love, between tobacco, being the refuse of better qualities.

It would be sufficient to cure any one of tobacco chewing to observe the manner in which is always observable in her movements. It is this that gives her strength in affliction—that does not merit the reputation of being the lights up her soul when the dark clouds of adversity hang over her sky! But it is only when this channel of love is me with the idea that it must be an unhealthy occupation. But should man cense to gratify his appetite if it does cost the life of a few slaves? As Virginia does not possess the advantages of internal improvements, her rivers just as we linger with intensest enjoyment have become the highways for the transportaspirit of her babe, her-thoughts flow heaven tion of freight. Boats called batteaux are ward—she pursues it while it wings its flight used; they are long and narrow and capable with the ten thousand celestial beings, whose voices burst forth in "Hosannas to the Lamb!" 'durkies' are the most skilful and successful How pure is this;—her communication with bont-men. Very few cargoes entrusted to their the angel that slept on her bosom! Tears !care are lost or injured, and the loss of life is infinitely smaller than in the case of slaves.—

Why it is so was not accounted for, but per Think of the agony of separation, of the first the operative part of the profession, which is so was not accounted for, but per
The deep interest I felt in the fate of the love
Think of the agony of separation, of the first the operative part of the profession, which haps the reason might be discovered. With emotions of heavenly conceptions—think of Danville I will bid farewell to the 'Old Domining down with joy upon, and mayhaps, visit-

Scated again within the stage we were soon | ing the heart which almost bursts to meet it! carried into the State noted for pitch, tar, tur-pentine and pretty girls. Geographers note | Young Mother! Hast thou committed thy babe to the arms of thy Saviour? be glad—for in the mansion prepared for it. Be glad then; keep up thy communications with it; so wilt thou be fitted to meet it in the bright regions

April, 1854. FRAUDS IN ENGLAND .- A gross fraud has just been detected in England, which may be garbage and ollal upon the British government for preserved ment, designed for the Navy. It appears that just as the British cavalnean, it was discovered that the bundles of hay designed for the horses contained nothing inside but chips and shavings. It is stated that had the discovery been delayed till the transports were at sea, all the horses would have been starved, to death. The matter has atest indignation was expressed by every one at this scandalous fraud. Lord Brougham stated that the, delinquents would be prosecuted and punished with the utmost severity of the law.

nea_A little fellow, having perforated the knee of his trowsers, was intensely delighted with a patch his grandmamna had applied .positions throughout the different sections of He would sit and gaze upon it in a state of rethe Union. The copper mines in this neight markable admiration: and in one of these borhood are exciting considerable attention; moods suddenly exclaimed: Grand-ma must put one on tother knee are working them, and it is said that they and two behind, like Eddy Smith's. ple of gentlemen connected with the mines I The distinguished individual, known had the pleasure of examining some rich spe- among the aucients as Cupid, has recently cimens of orc. The Central railroad touches changed his name to Cupidity, and will thereat Greensboro. The anticipated whistin of the fore devote his attention to money as well as locomotive appears sufficient to rouse the peo- to matri-money.

A Chrilling Sketch.

THE FOND WIFE,

From the Diary of a Physician. I had for several months been in constant endance on Mrs. St-, a young married lady of considerable fortune and family; who was he victim of the terrible scourge of the female sex, a cancer To great personal attraction she added uncommon sweetness of disposition and the fortitude with which she submitted to the fearful inroads, of her malady, togethe with her ardent expressions of gratitude for such temporary alleviations as her anxious medical attendants could supply, contributed o inspire me with a lively interest in her fate can conscientiously say, that during the pe riod of my attendance, I never heard a word of complaint full from her, nor witnessed any ndications of impatience or irritability. I found her one morning stretched on her crimson sofa in the drawing room; and though her palid features and gently corrugated eyebrow evidenced the intense agony she was suffering on my inquiring what sort of a night she had passed, she replied in a calm and tremulous one, "Oh, Doctor, I have had a dreadful pight but I am glad Captain St- wasn't with me for it would have made him very wretched! At that moment a fine fluxen haired little ooy, her first and only child, came running ino the room; his blue, laughing eyes glistened with innocent merriment. I took him on my knee and amused him with my watch, in order that he might not disturb his mother. The ooor sufferer, after gazing on him with an air of fondness for some moments, suddenly cov ered her eyes hand with her hand, (how slender how snowy! how almost transparent was that nind!) and I presently saw tears trickling own her fingers, but she uttered not a word. There was the mother. The aggravated malignity of the disease rendered an operation at ength inevitable. The eminent surgeon who, jointly with myself, was in regular attendance on her, feelingly communicated the intelligence, and asked whether she had fortitude nough to submit to an operation. She assured him with a quiet smile of resignation that she had for some time been suspecting as much and had made up her mind to it, but on two conditions-that her husband, (who was then at sea) should not be informed of it, and that she should not in any wise be bound or blindfolded. Her calm and decisive manner convinced me that remonstrance would be useless. Sir looked at me with a doubtful air. She observof. Sir-; but I hope to show you that a voman has more courage than you are willing to give her credit for.'

In short, after the surgeon had acquiesced in the latter condition-to which he had especially demurred-a day was fixed for the operation, subject of course, to Mrs. St. ----'s tate of health. When the Wednesday arrivand his senior pupil Mr. - . I could scarcely avoid a certain nervous tremor-unprofessional as it may seem—when I saw the operating case on the seat of the carriage.

'Are you sure you have everything ready, Mr. --- ?' inquired Sir---, with a basiness like air which somewhat irritated me .-On being assured of the affirmative, and after cautiously casting his eyes over the instruments to make assurance doubly sure, we drove off. We arrived at St .--- 's who resided a few miles from town, about two o'clock in the afternoon, and were immediately ushered into the room in which the operation was to be performed-a back parlor, the window of which looked into a beautiful garden. I shall never be pardoned. I fear, for acknowledging that the glimpse I caught of the pale and disordered countenance of the servant as he retired, after showing us into the room omewhat disconcerted me: for in addition to The necessary arrangements being at length completed-consisting of a hateful array of instruments, cloths, warm water, &c. &c., a message was sent to Mrs. St---, to inform her that all was ready.

Sir- was making a jocular and not very well timed allusion to my agitated air, when the cold twilight of October.

hair was light auburn, and hung neglectfully briskly! over a forehead and neck white as marble. mouth exqisitively chiseled—and her complexion tair, almost to transparency. Indeed, was going to speak:

f wine, said I, or rather faltered.

which he speaks very fondly, so that my eye flower which blooms in the night.

by any one else-will you?'

agitate you-I must beg-' 'You are mistaken,' she replied with firm ess; 'it will rather compose me. And if I hould—' expire, she was going to have said, but her tongue refused utterance. She then put the letter in my hand-hers was cold, lammy, but I did not pero ive it tremble.

bold your hand during the operation.' 'What-you fearme, Doctor?' She replied, ith a smile, but do not refuse my request. At that moment, Sir---- approached us with a cheerful air, saying, 'Well, madam, your tete-a-tete finished? I want to get this matter over, and give you permanent ease.' I do not think there ever lived a professional man who could speak with such assuring a r as Sir-I am ready, Sir---. Are the servants present. 'Yes madam,' she replied in tears. 'And my little Harry?' Mrs. --- asked in fainter tone. She was answered in the affirmative.

'Then I am prepared, she said, and sat down n a chair that was placed for her. One of the attendants then removed the hawl from her shoulders, and Mrs. St. ---, her self with perfect composure, assisted in displacing as much of her clothing as was necessary. She then suffered Sir --- to place ber arm thrown over the back of it, and her face looking over her right shoulder. She gave me her right hand, and with my left I endeavored o hold Capt: St.---'s letter as she had desiriveted in one long, burning gaze of fondness on the beloved hand-writing of her husband; she moved not a limb, nor uttered more than an occasional sigh, during the whole of the ed it, and said, 'I see what you are thinking protracted and painful operation. When the last bandage had been applied, she whispered almost inarticulately, "is it all over doctor?"

ing to carry you to bed." assuring her that the motion might perhaps to the close!" induce fatal consequences, she desisted and we ed, it was with some agitation that I entered carried her sitting in the chair up to bed. 's carriage in company with himself The instant we laid her down, she swooned, and continued so long insensible that Sirheld a looking glass over her mouth, apprehensive that the vital energies had at last sunk under the dreadful struggle. She recovered, however, and under the influence of an opiate draught, slept several hours.

Mrs .-- recovered, though very slowly ;and I attended her assiduously, sometimes two or three times a day, till she could be removed to the senside. I shall not easily forget an observation she made to me the last visit I paid her. She was alluding one morning distinctly and delicately to the personal disfigurement she had suffered. I, of course, said all that was southing. "But Doctor, my husband" -- said she sud-dealy, while a faint crimson mantled on her cheek- adding falteringly, after a pause-"I think St .- will love me yet."

Popular Lectures.

DISSECTING AN AUDIENCE.

tures, thus dissected audiences in general: the door was opened, and Mrs. St --- entered, audible slumbers before him, and he must bear tablishment, which included his daughter-a followed by her two attendants. Her step it all. But for the lecturer to take liberties playful, interesting little girl of the age of was firm her air composed, and her pale fea- with his audience, is an enormity not to be thirteen. tures irradiated with a smile, sad, however, as tolerated. However, first shaking hands with his audience, he proposed to handle them gen- | youd the prescribed limits of the camp, and She was then about twenty-six or seven tly, with gloves on! During one winter he having, from the oppressive heat, loosened her years of age-and under all the disadvanta- had appeared before seventy one audiences, garments and thrown them off almost to nugeous circumstances in which she was placed, but that was because lecturers were in de- dity, the beauty of her person excited the noooked that moment a beautiful women. Her | mand, and even an inferior article went off tice of an ourang-outang, who sprang upon

He had lectured in strange places, and dined rang through the forest to the ears of her doz-Her features were regular-her nose and at strange tables, where faith was the most ing protectors, and roused every man in the necessary of virtues, and temperance the eas- camp. The swift bare footed coolies were lest. Returning from the literary black-hole foremost in pursuit; and now the cry rings in very eminent medical writer has remarked |-the lecture room-he had found a ball in the agonizing father's ears that his daughter that the most beautiful women are generally full blast beneath his bed room, the fiddle is devoured by a binatag-again, that an the subjects of this terrible disease. 'A large seemingly strung with the sinews of a hyena. ourang-outang has carried her off." He rushes Indian shawl was thrown over shoulders, and Two and a half persons—a man, a women, half phrenzied, with the whole company to she were a white muslin dressing gown. And and a boy, theoretically make an addience.— the thicket from whence the screams proceed. was it this innocent and beautiful being who But practically, these must be multiplied by ed, and there, among the topmost limbs of an vas doomed to writhe beneath the torture and 10 or 100. There must always be a boy pressenormous banyon, the father beholds his daughlistigurement of the operating knife? My ent, because, in cases of applause, the fiels of ter, naked, bleeding, and struggling in the neart ached. A decanter of port wine and his boots are invaluable. Girls are not so neograp of a powerful ourang outang, who held ome glasses were placed on a small table near essary, because a girl is a little woman, while her tightly, yet easily, with one arm, while he the window; she beckened me towards it, and a boy is not by any means a little man. Some-sprang lightly from limb to limb, as if wholly times a good matron brings an oblong bundle, unencumbered. It was in vain to think of 'Allow me, dear madam, to pour you a glass | which squirms occasionally. That is, what we | shooting the mouster, so agile was he. The commonly called a baby-the relations the ba- Dyak coolies, knowing the habits of the ouran If it would do me good, Doctor, she whis- by, and the mother, more pet names than are outang, and knowing that he will always plung ered. She barely touched the glass with her to be found in the dictionary. Speaking of into the nearest stream when hard pressed, be ips, and then handed one to med saying with the lecturer before he commenced, he said he gan a system of operations to drive him to the sumed cheerfulness, 'Come, Doctor, I see was probably thinking whether he should get water; they set up a great shout, throwing you need it as much as I do, after all. Yes, any supper, or be obliged to sleep on a straw missiles; and agitating the underbrush, while Doctor,' she continued with emphasis, 'you bed, and dream that he has a porcupine for a seme proceeded to ascend the tree. By the are very, very kind and feeling to me.' . When | bed-fellow ! . Lecture going was not an expen- | redoubled exertious of the whole company, the half set down the glass, she continued, Dear sive amusement. They cost about five or six Doctor, do forgive a woman's weakness, and cents apiece, which was cheaper than a firstry if you can hold this letter, which I receive class monkey and hand organ. In a fine po d yesterday from Captain St , and in ette figure, the audience was compared to the may rest on his dear hand writing all the 'In addience there is always four characters

Madam, you really must excuse me-it will rose out! The first is almost always a joung and pretty female, about whom the gravest old lecturer grows romantic. If the appreciative listener, however, be a male-it is the face with the greatest amount of soul in it to which the lecturer appeals. The terrible counterpart of this, is the resistening listener, who is always a male. His face puts a veto on all the lecturer's acts and assertions-he sees 'In return, madam, you must give me leave through all his nonsense, and regards him as a swindler, who means to make him laugh or ory. He keeps his mouth tight shut, and looks upon the lecturer's finest flourishes with a stare as unsympathizing as that with which the figure-bead of a fishing schooner regards the gambols of a porpoise,

The reporter is friendly, and takes the lecturer's view of his subject, though he sometimes committe the error of attempting a report after giving but five minutes' attendance in the sent out?' she inquired of one of the women lecture room! The critic should never be brutal. If a lecture is good of its kind, he should find no fault because it is not something else. It is a schoolboy task to write a practical lecture. That detestable Old Man of the Sea, the Practical, is forever choking our people, and anything that will help to throw him off should be welcomed. The Doctor thought American criticism was too liberal with superlatives, and sometimes killed with kindness .-The fourth character,—the man who goes out -he regarded with the deepest interest. Some persons, govout because they are faint, or they on the corner side of the chair, with her left must take the cars, or they are on a furlough from their wiges, and their time is up. But this man goes out not in anger or disgust, but from an innate law of his being! The cause has been attributed to disease, or insanity, red; she smiled sweetly, and as if to insure but the conclusion has been reached that it is me of her fortitude; and there was something a case of intellectual missit. The man's mind so indescribably affecting in the expression of is capable of holding but half a lecture, and he her deep blue eyes, that it almost broke my naturally goes out when his mind is full. The heart. I shall never forget that smile as long as | man who goes to sleep, at first nods to his I live. Half closing her eyes, she fixed them on neighbor before him, but immediately straightthe letter I held and did not once move them ens up, with renewed attention. But there is until all was over. Nothing could console me a fish-like look about his eyes, and presently at this trying moment, but a conviction of the his head goes down upon his breast, or upon consummate skill of Sir-, who now with a the shoulder of a young lady, who being both calm eye and steady hand, commenced the op- timid and sentimental, is at a loss whether to eration. At the instant of the first incision consider it an outrage, and call the police, or a her frame quivered with a convulsive shudder | declaration, and refer him to papa! When the and her cheek became ashy pale. She prayed audience grows weary, the best remedy is to inwardly that she might faint, so that the ear. tell a story. As listeners, the ladies are the lier stage of the operation might be got over best, for they are always disposed to kindness. while she was in a state of insensibility. It The lecturer here paid a high tribute to wewas not the case, however; her eyes continued man. He closed with some practical suggestions as to the value of lectures.

During the delivery of the above lecture the reporter of the Portland Transcript says: "The sleepy man for once was thoroughly awake; the lover's attention was drawn from his fair one for at least ten minutes together the novel reading young lady closed her favor-"Yes, madam," I replied, "and we are go- ite volume-the reporter forgot his notes, and 'the man who goes out,' whose mind is 'capa-"No, no -I think I can walk-I will try,' ble of containing but half a lecture,' stretched said she, endeavoring to rise, but on Sir it to the capacity of two-thirds, and remained

The Craveller.

AN ABDUCTION INDEED. We copy a passage from a paper read before the American Geographical Society by Capt. Gibson, lately returned from the East Indies, and bringing with him some new facts as to the tribes of Ourang-outongs inhabiting the deserts of that part of the world. He says : "My statement of the extraordinary peculiarities of these apparently semi-human beings has led to the expression of so much curiosity to know more of them by some, and of skepticism as to the fact of their existence on the part of others, that I have deemed it due to myself and to public curiosity to give some additional facts along with all the corroborative evidence that has fallen under my observation. "While at Mintok, Palembag, and Ratavia heard many remarkable stories of the agility, audacity, and especially of the super-human ourang-outang. I will trespass upon your attention by relating one of the most extraordinary, at the same time one of the best attested, which I heard while at Batavia. Lieut. Shook, of the Dutch East India army, was on march, with a small detachment of troops Dr O. W. Holmes, in one of his recent Lec. and coolies on the southeastern coast of Borneo. He had encamped, on one occasion, du-The lecturer, said the Doctor, belongs to his ring the noon day heat, on the banks of one of audience, soul and body, for one hour. They the small tributaries of the Bangarmassin .-may turn up their noses at him, or sink into The Lieutenant had with him his domestic es

One day, while wandering in the jungle, beher and carried her off. Her piercing screams half phrenzied, with the whole company to monster was gradually driven towards the water, yet still holding tightly to the poor girl At last the monster and his victim were seen on an out stretching limb overhanging the stream; the coolies, who are among the ex pertest swimmers in the world, immediately while I om sitting here, without being noticed _the appreciative listener, the resisting list. lined the banks; the soldiers continued the I ener, the newspaper britic, and—the man who outcries and throwing of missiles. He clasped in which he died a granary.

This prize more tigntly, took a survey of the water and of his upward gazing enemies, and hen leaped into the water below. He had hardly touched the water, ere fifty resolute wimmers plunged in pursuit; as he rises a dozen arms are reached out towards him; he s grasped, others lay hold of the insensible irl; the ourang outang used both arms to deend, and, after lacerating the bodies of some of the coolies with his powerful nervous claws, finally succeeded in diving beyond the reach of his pursuers, and in escaping down the stream, while the bleeding, insensible Ledah was restored to the arms of her father and nurses. in whose hands she was ultimately restored to onsciousness, health and strength once more. This savage version of the classic story of Pluto and Proserpine is well authenticated, and the girl, now a grown up woman, is living at Ambonya, in the Molucas."

VOL. LIV NO 34

FRENCH GOSSIP.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, riting from Paris, gossips as follows : In a late letter to the Gazette I took occaion to describe a reception and a ball at the Puilleries, in which was mentioned the introuction to the Emperor of a beautiful young inglish girl. Since that time this lady's name as become the talk of Paris. After the war iews, the next question is, have you seen Miss S? The Emperor, to see her closer, invited her to the Tuilleries to dine with him. This ircumstance has given rise to a great deal of candal in "upper tendom," which need not be repeated, and which is no doubt without oundation. Sympathetic ladies even went so far as to pity poor Eugenia. The Emperor said to Miss S., at his introduction, and with more than his usual brusqueness, "Mademolselle, you are the handsomest woman I ever saw in my life." Considering that the Empeor piques himself on his knowledge of women, orses and dogs, this is regarded as a huge ompliment. Miss S. is, without doubt, the handsomest woman who has been seen at the French court in a hundred years; she unites all those attributes of beauty which one reads about in novels and never sees. I have seen her three times at the court balls, and she is constantly surrounded by a crowd of the curious, which keeps her in motion from place to place, to avoid the annoyance. Whether at the Tuilleries, the Hotel de Ville or the Opera, in going from one group of talkers to another, the subject is always Miss Smead. 🗚 German Princess, who is certainly very beautiful, found her partisans at the last ball; but they soon sank into a miscroscope minority before the overwhelming prependerance in favor of the English beauty.

Amongst other stories told of this lady, it is said that already a young Frenchman, a viscount and rich, offered her his hand in mariage. The match was every way eligible, and was accepted by the young lady and her friends. She has travelled a great deal, and desires to travel still more. The eve of the day fixed r the signing of the contract, Miss her future husband,

Before taking the pen in my hand, I wish o demand a question.

Let us remark, in passing, that a Parisian ady would never have dared to say 'I wish,' he eve of her marriage.

'Speak,' replied the future husband. 'Will you agree to accompany me to Con-tantinople?' 'How?' replied the young man stupified.

'Miss S. repeated the question. 'I ask if you will engage yourself to make ... vith me a voyage to the Orient?'

. When? 'As soon as we are married.' But you do not think of that.'

ro of war.

'On the contrary I have thought much of it or a long time.' But recollect that that country is the then-

-!It is precisely the war I wish to see!' --And there are dangers of all sorts for traollers.

'I am not afraid of them.' 'And then the season is no longer agreea-

'No difference.'

'In fine, I think it would be a sorry employnent for our honeymoon.' 'Then you will not positively'-The future husband enveloped the word 'no' ohrases, but the refusal was none the less postively articulated. 'Very well!' responded the beautiful Britn. Talso say no. I refuse, and will not with an infinity of polite and ingenious paranarry you! The marriage was broken of irrevocably. 'Never,' said Mrs. S. 'will I marry a lazy usband, a man who is afraid of the cold or #### battles—a man who refuses, on the eve of mariage, to gratify a reasonable fantasy."

HOW TO ENJOY A KISS. Some chap thinks he knows a thing or two, hus discourses about the delicate subject of cissing: "Of course you must be taller than the lady you intend to kiss. Take her right hand in yours and draw her gently towards you. Pass your leit arm over her right shoulder, diagonally down across her back under her left arm, and press her to your bosom. At the same time she will throw her head back and you have nothing to do but to lean a little forward and press your lips to hers, and the thing is done. Don't make a noise over it, as if you were firing percussion caps or trying the water guages of a steam engine, nor pounce down upon it like a hungry hawk upon an inocent dove, but gently fold the damsel in your arms, without decanging the coonomy of her tippet or ruffles, and by a pressure upon her mouth revellin the sweet blissfufness of your situation without smacking your lips on t as you would over a roast duck CURIOSITIES.-A fish from the stream of life. A stone from the hill of solence. A wick from the lamp of life. Tobacco from the pipe of a stove. Heat from the furnade of affliction. Blood from the heart of a tree. A corn from the fact of a hill. Some flowers plucked as we were travelling in the path of duty.

Napoleon's bed chamber at St. Helenka it is said, is now a horse stable, and the room