Considering the population of the place is numerous deaths that have occurred exeeds any thing we have ever heard of. fany of the stores and other business places 1 Columbia have been closed. The streets ave been spread with lime, and bargels of u, and tons of Pittsburg coal are burnt in ie streets throughout the day and night .lany of the citizens left the devoted brough on Saturday, Sunday and Monday last, and a physicians have advised all others who an possibly do so to leave the place. Some he victims were seized suddenly while alking the streets, and died in a few hours ferwards. The cause of the disease is atsibuted by many to the impure water with which the town is supplied from the river, ne low stage of the Susquehanna, equalled aly by the low water of 1803. The river, elow Columbia, towards Turkey Hill, preents to the view but a lake covered with veeds and grass, in which dead fish and anmals are caught but to putrify and poison he air. A South-west wind, last Friday, lew the miasma over that fated borough, and although the excellent corps of physisians in Columbia have exerted themselves to the utmost, but in few cases have been successful. A number of physicians from Philadelphia and Lancaster were sent for, and they too are unable to stay its fearful ravages. The excitement in Columbia is very great, and it is impossible to find out the names of all that have fallen victims to the dreadful disease.—York Republican.

The Relult in Iowa.

The Administration papers have but ver little to say apout Iowa. The result in that State seems to have paralysed them. And well it may: for since the passage of the Nebraska Swindle, the Administration has lost six United States Senators, five States, and half a score of Members of the House of Representatives ! "Popular Sovereignty seems to be illustrating its potency in a manner quite unexpected to those who applied the principle for the purpose of extending Slavery. However, as they sowed the wind it is pleasant to see them reaping the whirlwind. Where is Douglass?
