Mr. POLLOCK's majority will be about 37,000, Mr. MOTT's something like 150,000—and Judge BLACK will have nearly as many votes as both his competitors. The majority against a Prohibitory Liquor Law is about 3000.

PENNSYLVANIA SENATE.

The Senate of Pennsylvania, says the N. American, has hitherto been in some doubt. One Democratic count makes it stand eighteen Democrats to fifteen Whigs, while other Whig and independent journals make it seventeen to sixteen. We believe the list which we herewith append to be accurate, and from it the reader may at a glance ascertain the condition of things. The names of Whigs and those who may be relied upon to act against the administration are in italic, and administration Democrats in Roman.

CONGRATULATORY VISIT TO JUDGE POLLOCK.

The Muncy Luminary states that a fine band, accompanied by a delegation of citizens of that borough, Hughesville, and Muncy Creek, on the evening after the election, paid a visit to Milton for the purpose of congratulating Judge Pollock upon the result of the late election. Quite a large and enthusiastic concourse of the people of Milton greeted the arrival of the visitors. At 8 o'clock the company repaired to the residence of Judge Pollock, where they were received by the Governor elect, in a chaste and appropriate address. The appearance of Judge Pollock was greeted by three spontaneous hearty cheers by the crowd assembled in the street, and all appeared eager to grasp the hand of one who had so nobly borne the peoples standard through the late political contest. Although his address was altogether impromptu, and unexpectedly called forth, yet the Luminary says it had never listened to one of a similar nature breathing more lofty and patriotic sentiments, or more generous and noble reference to the victory achieved and the opposition vanquished.

He said he congratulated those who now appeared before him, and the people of Pennsylvania, upon the result achieved by them, the people. We had just come out of a civil contest, peculiar in its prosecution and its results, to our own happy land and her glorious institutions. The people of Pennsylvania, exercising the right to decide upon the great and momentous principles involved in the late election, had given an expression of their sentiments through the "ballot box," and a majority had declared himself to be their choice. It was not the man whom the people chose or rejected but the principles which they advocate and sustained. He wished it to be remembered, that, although he was now, and had been identified with the Whig party, yet he did not claim his election as a Whig victory, nor did his Whig friends deem it such, but emphatically a victory of the people over the advocates of the principles which they could not sanction or support. To all alike, Whigs and Democrats, the victory was to be ascribed as the result of their own hands. In speaking of Gov. Bigler he said in substance: "In reference to my opponent in the canvass I am proud to call Gov. Bigler my personal friend. We have been since the commencement of the contest, and are now on terms of intimate and pleasant personal friendship, no matter how widely we may differ in our political views and opinions. No act of mine shall wantonly disturb that relationship." He said he had been charged with being proscriptive in his religious opinions. So far from being so, he acknowledged no right in one man to dictate to another what should be his belief or mode of worship. Holding religion as a sacred thing, and claiming the privilege of worshipping God according to the dictates of his own conscience, he granted the same right to every living being. Believing the Constitution of our country sufficient to guard and protect the rights and privileges of all, he desired that all might receive the benefits of its wise provisions as a common blessing. He paid an eloquent tribute to the intelligence and patriotism of the people in their repudiation of the iniquitous Nebraska bill, and the attempt to perpetuate the cause of slavery in our land, by congressional legislation, and said that freemen ever were revolted at the idea of extending and perpetrating oppression, and that in the trial hour, the people true to their instincts, and the lessons taught by their fathers, would be found on the side of liberty. In conclusion he thanked the people of Lycoming for the renewed expression of their regard, attested by a majority in his favor in that stronghold of opposition, and the presence of the delegation before him.

After the address the company partook of refreshments, prepared in strict accordance with the principles of "Prohibition," and at

SUMMARY OF NEWS.
Woman's Rights Convention—Kansas Emigration—Sir John Franklin's Remains—Snow Storm, Erie; Murders, &c.

THURSDAY, October 19.
A National Woman's Rights Convention commenced its sessions in Philadelphia yesterday. Lucy Stone, Mrs. Rose, Lucretia Mott, and all the other well known female leaders in the movement were present, and participated in the action. A series of strong resolutions were under consideration. The Kentucky Trust Bank has failed, as also the Ohio Savings Bank at Cincinnati, caused by a run on the institution. A run was also commenced on one or two of the private banks, which will probably be renewed today. One of these private bankers, P. B. Manchester, closed his doors yesterday. A despatch from Louisville says that the Bowersville Bank suspended yesterday. Emigrants for Kansas are still flocking westward, notwithstanding the advanced state of the season. The fourth New England party started from Worcester on Tuesday. It is the largest which has yet gone out from thence. Another party of thirty-two from Maryland has passed through Alexandria for Nebraska, as the telegraph says, but no doubt for Kansas. At Calpepper, Virginia, they were to be joined by another party. Thus the Massachusetts organization seems to have stirred up a rivalry at the South. Smith O'Brien, the Irish Exile, has sailed from Australia for home, having been pardoned by the Queen.

FRIDAY, October 20.
The National Woman's Rights Convention continued its sessions in Philadelphia on Thursday. The day was occupied principally in discussing the "wrongs of women," the methods of redressing them, and the mode of gaining friends for the cause.
