LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

We have news from California two weeks later, being to September 30th, by the arrival of the steamers George Law and Star of the West. The former brings $1,082,600 in gold and the latter $800,000. Several parties of overland emigrants from Texas by the way of the Colorado have been attacked by Indians, who carried off six hundred head of cattle, killed one man near Tueson, and fifty persons in an other party, some of the women and children being reserved for a more horrible fate. From this massacre several persons who were in the rear of the party escaped on fleet horses, and bore the news to California. On the Tinigatta trail, twentyfive emigrants had perished for want of water, among them being a man from Pennsylvania, name unknown. In Oregon a still vania, name unknown. In Organi-more horrible massacre has been perpetra-torible massacre has been perpetratering a party of emigrants they killed some twenty persons, men, women and children, butchering them horribly, practicing the most shocking barbarities to the women with hot irons, so that they expired in exeratia-ting agony. Three children they burned to death before the eves of the mother, and then tortured her to death. A body of troops has been sent in parsuit of the savages, but from the strength of their tribe and strongholds, a tedious war is apprehended.
