EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION.

Agreeably to notice given by Daniel Shelly, Esq., Superintendent of the Common Schools of Cumberland county, a large number of Teachers, Directors and friends of Education assembled in the Court House in the borough of Carlisle, on Thursday, the 21st of Dec., 1854, for the purpose of organizing and permanently establishing a Teachers' Institute, for the purpose of benefitting and preparing young ladies and gentlemen for the business of teaching the Common Schools of Cumberland county.

The Convention met agreeably to adjournment; being called to order by the President pro tem, when they proceeded to elect permanent officers for the Teachers' Institute. The following persons were placed in nomination: for President, Ex-Governor Jos. Ritner, Ab'm Lambertson, Esq., and Joseph M. Means, Esq.

Upon counting the votes, it was ascertained that Ex-Gov. Jos. Ritner had a majority of all the votes cast and was therefore duly declared elected President of the Institute.

The President elect was then conducted to his chair by Jos. M. Means, Esq., and on taking his seat, thanked the Convention for the honor conferred upon him, and in a brief but able manner addressed the Institute on the subject of Education, &c.

The following persons were then elected Vice Presidents unanimously: Wm. R. Gargas, Esq., Jos. M. Means, Esq., and Ab'm Lambertson, Esq.

Recording Secretary being next in order, several persons were placed in nomination. Upon counting the votes, it was ascertained that Davidson Eckels had a majority of all the votes cast, and was therefore declared duly elected Recording Secretary.

On motion to the effect that the Recording Secretary should have full power to appoint his own assistants was offered and agreed to by the Institute; whereupon, he appointed John P. Rhoads his assistant.

Daniel Shelly, Esq., was then elected Corresponding Secretary, and Geo. Swartz Treasurer, by acclamation.

On motion, it was agreed that when this Institute adjourn, that it adjourn to meet to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock; after which, Hon. Thomas H. Burrows arose and in a brief but able manner addressed the Institute as to the manner in which he thought they ought to proceed, which was heartily received by all present, owing to its coming from a known friend of Education.

The following resolution was offered by Mr. Jas. Hamilton, and passed: Resolved, That this Convention approve of the Pennsylvania School Journal as an important aid to the advancement of the Common Schools of this State, and recommend it to the patronage of the several Boards of Directors and the Teachers of Cumberland county.

Adjoined. FRIDAY MORNING. The Institute met agreeably to adjournment, being called to order by the President. On motion of Mr. Shelly, the Constitution and By-laws were again read, and an opportunity was given to any who had not become members of the Institute to do so.

Mr. Shelly, having been empowered to appoint persons to lecture on the branches of Common School Education, appointed the following persons: Geo. W. Leiding, D. J. Williams, J. P. Rhoads, John O. Hale, J. H. Shriver, W. E. McGlachlin, Moses Morrett, Henry Nicks, Mr. Cavanaugh, Andrew McElwain, Geo. Swartz, S. M. Kenyon, Lizzie Kenyon, Lyddie Haverstick, J. S. Hostetter, J. A. Hensel, Jacob Sonesman, Mr. R. Sibbotts, Thos. Maurice, Edwin James, Jas. McKeehan, Thos. C. Carlisle, Geo. Sanderson, John Moore.

the letters alternately, but was not very successful. He was of the opinion that writing letters on the blackboard which spelled some familiar object, such as dog and cat, and teaching the pupils their names and what they spelled in connection, was the most efficient and expeditious method of teaching the alphabet. Mr. Hale made a few remarks upon the same subject. Adjourned.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON. The Institute being called to order by the President, the proceedings commenced with music by a choir composed of members of the Institute.

Dr. Collins, President of Dickinson College, proceeded to lecture before the Institute. During the lecture, he adverted to the relation of our Common Schools to our political institutions; which subject the gentleman handled with ability, by resting the thoughts presented in a very happy manner upon the minds of the hearers.

Mr. Burrows being obliged to leave for Lancaster, the following resolution was unanimously agreed to: Resolved, That the earnest thanks of the Institute be tendered Hon. Thomas H. Burrows for his very able and instructive address, delivered this morning.

Messrs. McKeehan, Maurice, Shelly and McElwain then explained their methods of teaching reading. Mr. Moses Morrett then lectured upon the importance of introducing music into our Common Schools. He believed that music has a tendency to relieve the monotony of the exercises of the school-room, and exert a moral influence on the minds of the children.

FRIDAY EVENING. The Institute being called to order by the President, an opportunity was then extended to any person or persons desirous of becoming members of the Institute to do the same, when a goodly number of persons came forward and subscribed their names to the Constitution and became members of the Institute. After which, the following resolution passed unanimously:

Resolved, That the thanks of this Institute are due, and are hereby tendered to President Collins, of Dickinson College, for the able address delivered by him, this afternoon.

The subject of arithmetic was next brought before the Institute, when Mr. Maurice came forward and explained the principles upon which he taught the subject in his school, on the blackboard.

Mr. Shelly then explained the principle on which he taught whole numbers and fractions. Mr. Eckels then addressed the Institute on the subject of teaching arithmetic, stating that he was of the opinion that the rules of arithmetic could only be thoroughly understood in connection with algebra.

Messrs. Sibbotts, Hensel and Shriver, also explained their methods of teaching arithmetic. Mr. McElwain then came forward, and in an able manner addressed the Institute on the subject of teaching grammar, with an explanation on the blackboard of his mode of teaching the noun, article, verb, pronoun, moods and tenses.

Dr. Jno. K. Smith was then called upon to address the Institute as to the best manner of teaching grammar, who responded to the call, and in an able and very satisfactory manner addressed the Institute on the subject before the house, with an explanation on the blackboard. Adjourned to meet to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock.

SATURDAY MORNING. The Institute being called to order by the President, the following resolution was offered, and agreed to unanimously: Resolved, That the Treasurer pay the necessary expenses of this session of the Institute, amounting to $15.

Mr. Rhoads then lectured very eloquently upon the importance of establishing Teachers' Institutes. He stated the origin and progress of a Teachers' Institute in his own neighborhood, Newburg. He thought that this association should adopt some measure by which to induce the different Boards of Directors to adopt a uniformity of books. He also gave the Institute an amusing conversation he had had with a Teacher who was entirely ignorant of the use of the blackboard.

The following resolution was offered and laid upon the table: Resolved, That we approve of Angell's series of readers, and recommend them to the different Boards of School Directors throughout the county as the best text books which can be had.

The subject of grammar was then brought before the Institute when Mr. McGlachlin very ably demonstrated, on the blackboard, his method of teaching the subject. Further remarks upon the same subject were made upon the same subject by Mr. Shelly.

Before taking his seat, he gave the Institute an account of the manner in which he conducted his night school; established for the purpose of reviewing arithmetic. Mr. McElwain then showed his method of teaching reduction of currencies and fractions.

stitution, appointed the following business Committee: Daniel, Shelly, D. Eckels, J. P. Rhoads, J. S. Hostetter, Lyddie Haverstick. The following resolution was offered as a matter of discussion at the next stated meeting, and was laid upon the table:

Resolved, That corporal punishment should not be inflicted in any Academy. On motion it was agreed that when the Institute adjourn, it adjourn to meet on the 25th of December, 1855.

It was also moved, and seconded that the next place of meeting be Newville; amended by striking out Newville and inserting Mechanicsburg. The motion, as amended, after a good deal of discussion, was agreed to.

Mr. Denlinger, from the committee on resolutions, reported the following, which were unanimously adopted: Resolved, That the thanks of this Institute be tendered to the County Commissioners for the use of the Court House during its sessions.

Resolved, That our thanks are also due to the officers of this association for the able and impartial discharge of their duties, and to all the lecturers who have favored us with their presence and instructions.

Resolved, That we recommend to the School Directors of the respective Districts to appoint a suitable person from each district, to meet in Convention to take into consideration the propriety of adopting a uniform series of School Books for the county.

Resolved, That we congratulate the School Directors, Teachers and all other friends of Education in the county, for having secured the services of our present County Superintendent, as we believe him to be a man eminently qualified for his office.

Resolved, That as Teachers and members of this Institute we will cordially co-operate with our Superintendent in his laudable efforts to elevate the standard of teaching, and advance general education throughout the county.

Resolved, That our thanks are due, and are hereby tendered to those Boards of Directors who so liberally gave the time to their Teachers to attend the sessions of this association.

Resolved, That the proceedings of the Institute be published in the Pennsylvania School Journal, and all the papers in the county favorable to the cause.

Mr. Shelly then addressed the members of the Institute, briefly, but eloquently, and with much pathos. The President of the Institute, Hon. Jos. Ritner, then made a few very appropriate remarks; after which the Institute finally adjourned.

Filrtation. "What flirts you men are," said she. "But, oh, my sakes! ain't that tree lovely, just one mass of flowers. Hold me up, please, Mr. Slick, till I get a branch of that apple tree. Oh, dear, how sweet it smells."

"Well, I took her in my arms and, lifted her up, but she was a long time choosing a wreath, and that one she put around my hat, and then she gathered some sprigs for a nosegay.

"Don't hold me so high, please. There, smell that, ain't it beautiful? I hope I ain't showing my ankles."

"Lucy, how my heart beats," said I, and it did too. It thundered like a sledge hammer. I actually thought it would have torn my waistcoat buttons off. "Don't you hear it, pump, pump, pump, Lucy? I wonder if it ever bursts like a boiler—for holding such a gal as you be, Lucy, in one's arms, ain't safe, it's as much as one's—"

"Don't be silly," said she, laughing, "or I'll be down in a minute. No, I don't hear it beat—I don't believe you have any heart at all."

"There," said I, bringing her a little farther forward, "don't you hear it now?—Listen."

"No," said she, "it's only your watch a-keepin'," and she laughed like anything. "I thought so."

"You haven't got no heart at all, have you," said I.

"It has never been tried yet," said she. "I hardly know whether I have or not."

"Oh, then you don't know whether it's in the right place or not?"

"Yes it is," said she pulling my whiskers, "just in the right place, just where it ought to be," and she put my hand on it, "where else would you have it, dear, but where it is—both hush! I saw Eunice Snare, just now coming round the turn there. Set me down quick, please. Ain't it provoking that girl fairly haunts me. I hope she didn't see me in your arms."

"I'll lift her up too," says I "if you like, and then—"

"Oh, no," says she, "it ain't worth the while; I don't care what she says or thinks one snap of my finger."

Love's Ways. A good looking fellow, and a rosy girl, made their appearance at the City Hall, N. York last week, and inquired for a magistrate. From the blushing cheeks of the girl, and the hesitating look of the other, it was suspected that they wished to be married; and so it proved. After some search, Alderman William was found, and, on being asked, he consented to make the two a one. On proceeding to do so, however, he found, to his astonishment, that the bride and bridegroom spoke different languages, and that they were unable to understand each other's vernacular. The swain gave his name as James Napoleon, of Cologne, Prussia, while the daisy-trotter, in the patronymic of Catarina Cantz, and was born in Belgium. After some delay an interpreter was found, and by his help they were made one. James, on being asked how he managed to make love, popped the question, and got through the other preliminaries of courtship, replied that they had invented a language of their own, which was to them perfectly intelligible.

They appeared to be highly delighted with the marriage ceremony, and with the Alderman's happy way of performing it, and went on their way rejoicing, quite as well pleased as if they understood every thing that was said.
