Che Eastern War.

AN AMERICAN AT SEBASTOPOL.

The following extracts from a letter of a New Yorker, named R. C. McCormick, jr., are published in the New York Courier :-BALAKLAVA, Dec; 29.—The Turkish troops look stupid and dirty. I do not wonder that they are unpopular. They still remain in camp in great numbers, but have no important service to perform. The force of the Allies commands every valley and hill for perhaps fifteen miles about Schastopol. At present, rations are issued to 125,000 men. and it is believed that full 100,000 men in fighting trim are upon the ground.

The French, English, and Turkish camps are interspersed: some at a distance of a mile apart.. After a very long ride, I secured a glimpse at Schastopol-the mighty the great unconquered. It was too late for me to proceed farther, as I had to look out for my Christmas dinner. Turning back I passed the quarters of Field Marshal, the Lord Raglan, commander-in-chief of the forces -an old fashioned house (the late residence of a Russian farmer) surrounded with barns and sheds. The Ensign and his lordship's private flag floated in front, and a regiment of servants, ostlers, &c., &c., inhabited tents around the premises. The staff officers live with the commander. The French headquarters are about a mile distant toward the sea. I made another excursion through the camp, day defore yesterday, and had a grand view of Sebastopol and the trence operations. The day was a very fine one; indeed, contrary to all my expectations, the weather has been very plesant nearly every day since I arrived. With Colonel Robertson and two other officers of the third di vision, I walked down to the Green hill battery and trenches, from the outer line of tents. We soon came within the reach of the Russian guns. Only a short time since a shell entered one of the tents of the division, distant a full mile and a half from the batteries. --

We found the enemy busily engaged in "shelling;" and the appearance of the ground beneath our feet, showed that they were not at all provident of their ammunition. Balls and shells of the largest size literally paved the way. In a pretty valley, (appropriately named the "Valley of the Shadow of Death,") through which we had to pass, the balls (thirty-six to fifty-six pounders) were fairly piled in tiers. We could not walk without kicking against them. They had all been gunners amused themselves by sending enormous shells around us. They came like lo yond our heads. We could hear them whizzing along, but never saw them untill they exploded. I was surprised at the great noise hich they made in their flight.

which was just at our feet. The buildings, which was just at our feet. The buildings,

—R, S, T, U, V—I'll spile yer picter, you many of which are elegant, give no signs of old wall eye!—W, X, Y, Z—now I'll pound stronger than ever. Strange as this may willian!" seem, it is quite the fact. Every breach has had been mounting alphabetically throughbeen stopped with mud, which is a perfect out all his father's pescription of vowe's shield from the shot, no matter how heavy and consonants, caught the young scape they are. The city is a large one-larger than one would suppose; the harbor very pretty. In the upper corner we saw the Russian war ships. The inhabitants of Sebastopol have nearly all moved away. The So much for rules to control the passions .-military men continue to parade the streets, and the Allied riflemen in the lower trenches are now so near as to be able to pick them off at their convenience. The Russian sharp shooters are never asleep, and you have only stamped papers had arrived in England, the to stick your head over the trenches to have the Minie bullets whistling about your ears. Many of the noble fellows engaged in the trenches have been killed. A few evenings since, some men of the 50th Regiment were surprised in the second row of trenches by a sortie from the Russians. About a dozen were bayoneted in their blankets.

The very heavy guns, Lancaster and others, are nearly all in position. I have to day heard that fifty more were to be put up before the great bombardment will be commenced. It is firmly asserted that storming will not be attempted, but that a complete investment of the place will be speedily perfeeted. This cannot be done without having at least one severe battle-General Liprandi's army being stationed outside of the city, and of course ready to attack any one who may week to advance to the north, and

On our return from the batteries, I called at the head-quarters with a friend, who had business with the commander in chief. Lord Ragian was promenading the back plazza of his voice and manner, "vil you my good sir, his mansion. He is a fat, good-natured look- he so obliging as to pay me for the troubly is old gontleman, rather tall. In many re and expense of heating this poker?"

spects his personal appearance reminded me of our Gen. Winfield Scott, though he is not, by any means, of such giant stature as the hero of Lundy's Lane.

The several small villages within twenty miles of Sebastopol have been sacked—the country devastated. No vegetables or fruits are to be had, and beef or poultry is only to obtained from Varna, Constantinople, or some distant place. Steamers are constantly arriving with cargoes of bullocks, sheep and chickens, and yet the demand is not met. Vast quatities of hay have come in recently, and it is to be hoped that no more horses will die of starvation.

I find myself an oddity in the place-A live kicking Yankee, encompassed about by men of almost every nation, except my own. I should not do justice to my origin if I failed to hoe my row with success. Trust me for it, I get along capitally. I hope to inform myself upon everything of interest or import in these excited quarters, and will try to keep you posted as to my adventure. The imperfections of this communication you will forgive, when I tell you that, as usual, I am short of time, and behindhand in my corres-

KEEP COOL.

Those calm and rational exhortations to Take it coolly," and "Never cry for spilt nilk," are all very good till they are needed. They are extremely salutary before the fever kindles or the milk is spilled; but in the presence of pain, or on the advent of a disaster, to those who are gifted with fortitude y nature, or have been disciplined in the school of affliction, they are about as effectual as whistling in the teeth of a north-wester.

Their utter impotence in a storm of pasion, reminds us of the directions given by a good New England Deacon to his choleric

"Whenever you feel your dander rising," aid he, " be sure to say the Lord's Prayer, my son, or else the alphabet clean through; and long before you get to the end off't you'll be as cool as a cucumber, or an iceberg Promise me faithfully, my son."

"Yes, daddy, I promise."

Off trudged Jonathan to school, carrying. his bread and meat, with a small bottle of molasses in his jacket pocket, and his late firm promise uppermost in his mind.

A boy, who bore him an old grudge, met him, and after calling him the "young deacon," and many other scurrifous nicknames, fired at the English batteries. During the caught him off his guard, and threw him to entire time of our visit, the impolite Russian | the ground, tearing his jacket and breaking his molasses bottle.

Up jumped Jonathan, his eyes wolfish, comotives through the air, and burst with a an oath in Heaven," and he did not forget tremendous concussion, fortunately quite beit. So he proceeded to swallow his Alphabetical pills—an antidote to wrath not mentioned in the "Regimen Salernitanum," nor recognized by the British College.

"A, B, C—you've tored my jacket!—D, E, —you've spilt my 'lasses!—G, H, I, J, K— The Allies were playing upon the city you're a rascal!-L, M, N, O, P, Q-I'll learn you better manners, you scamp, you! injury; and the enemy's fortifications are your insides out o' you darned encroachin'

> And with that Jonathan, whose passion grace, and throwing him down, was proceeding to work off each of the Deacon's twenty six anti-irascible pills in the shape of a dozen hearty fisticuffs, had not the timely approach of a passenger interrupted the manipulations. Knickerbocker.

HEATING THE POKER.

After the news of the destruction of the ministry sent for Dr. Franklin to consult with and offered this proposal;

"That if the Americans would engage to pay for the damage done in the destruction of the stamped paper, &c., the parliament would then repeal the act.

The doctor having paused upon this question for some time, at last answered as fol-

"This puts me in mind of a Frenchman, who having heated a poker red hot, ran furiously into the street, and addressed the first Englishman he met there, "Ha, Monsieur, will you give me de satisfaction to run this poker only one foot into your body ?"

"My body?" replied the Englishman what do you mean?

"Wel den, only say so far," marking out six inches.

"Are you mad?" returned the other; "If you don't go about your business, I'll knock you down."

"Vel, den," said the Frenchman, softening

LABOR AND ITS RIGHTS .- We often hear the remark that a man has a right to a living, in which the implication is very strong that if he does not earn it himself, he may claim in of somebody else who has earned it. A man has only a right to such of the productions of labor as he himself has created with his own industry. He has no right to a living independent of his duty to earn that living for himself by his labor .-Every man has the means of earning him self a living, in the physical and mental power with which he is endowed. He should use those means so as to command a living, by making his labor useful to others. Society is under no obligation to find a man employ ment in such pursuits only as he desires, or finds it convenient to follow. The object of all labor is to satisfy some existing want. If society does not want particular kinds of labor, it is under no obligation to purchase them, and the individual should turn his labor to such productions as society does need and cannot do without .- P. iil. Ledger.

THE CONSEQUENCE OF NOT TAKING A NEWS PAPER .- In Judge Van Hamm's Court at Cincinnati, a witness testified that prior to the decease of Henry Starr, Esq., he employed that gentleman to defend a suit brought against him in the Superior Court of Cincinnati-that he resides twelve miles from the city—that he does not take a newspaper, and that when he inquired about his suit, some ten to twelve months afterwards, he learned that Mr. Starr was deceased, and that a judgment was rendered against him for about two hundred dollars.
