SYDNEY SMITH.

A memoir of this remarkable man, has been recently issued from the press by Harper & Brother, N. Y. It is entited by Lady Holland, Mr. Smith's oldest daughter, and contains a vast variety of interesting matter. From a review of it in the N. Y. Tribune, of the 17th we make these extracts:

The witty sayings of Sydney Smith have been so much bandied about as almost to have become proverbial, but we will not close this notice without recalling a few of the 'brilliants' that are scattered throughout the volare some fragments of my father's conversation in London:

Some one asked if the Bishop of going to marry. 'Perhaps he may,' said my father; 'yet how can a bishop marry? How can be flirt? The most he can say is, 'I will see you in the vestry after service."

An argument arose, in which my father observed how many of the most eminent men of after naming several among the ancients, be added, 'Why, look there, at Jeffrey; and there intellect is improperly exposed.'

of Providence, who had intended barly to be the only natural material of intoxication.'

'Daniel Webster struck me much like a steam engine in trowsers.'

'When I began to thump the cushion of my pulpit, on first coming to Boston, as is my wont when I preach, the accumulated dust of a hundred and fifty years made such a cloud that for some minutes I lost sight of my congregation.'

'Nothing amuses me more than to observe the utter want of perception of a joke in some minds. Mrs. Jackson called the other day and spoke of the oppressive heat of last week. 'Heat, ma'am!' said I 'it was so dreadful here that I found there was nothing left for it but to take off my flesh and sit in my bones.'-'Take off your flesh and sit in your bones, Sir! O, Mr. Smith! how could you do that?' she exclaimed, with the utmost gravity. 'Nothing more easy, ma'am; come and see next time.' But she ordered her carriage, and evidently thought it a very unorthodox proceeding.

-, too, the other day, walking round the Combe Florey, exclaimed, 'Oh, why do you chain up that Newfoundland dog, Mr. Smith?' 'Because it has a passion for breakfasting on parish boys.' 'Parish boys!' she exclaimed, 'does he really eat' boys, Mr. Smith?' 'Yes, he devours them buttons and all.' Her face of horror made me die of laughing.'

A most curious instance of this slow perception of humor occurred once in Brook street. where a gentleman of some rank dined at our house, with a large party, of which my father and Mr. Luttrel formed portion. My father | purple and gold, are soft and unimposing comwas in high spirits and in one of his happiest pared to the limning power of one of these fluent veins, and much brilliant conversation passed around from Mr. Luttrel and others. Mr. sat through it all with the utmost gravity. This seemed only to stimulate my father, who became more and more brilliant, till the table was in a perfect roar of laughter. The servanta even, forgetting all decorum, were obliged to turn away and conceal their mirth .--Mr. - alone sat unmoved and gazing with solemn wonder at the scene around. Luttrel was so struck by this that he said 'Mr. was a natural phenomenon whom he must observe; so letting the side-dishes pass by, he took out his eye-glass to watch. At last my father accidentally struck out a subject (which for social reasons I must not give, though it was inimitable.) which touched the right pring, and he could resist no longer, but actually laughed out. Luttrell shouted victory in my ear, and resumed his wonted attention to the dinner, saying that he had never witnessed so curious a scene.

Some one speaking of the quality of a measure, and quoting ----'s opinion:-'Yes, he is of the utilitarian school. That man is so hard you might drive a boardwheeled wagon over him and it would produce no impression; if you were to bore holes in him with a gimlet, I am convinced sawdust would come out of him. That school treat other day she knew as much about cooking as mankind as if they were mere machines; the himself. Mrs. Seacole is, moreover, a highly feelings or affections never enter into their calculations. It everything is to be sacrificed to utility, why do you bury your grandmother at all? why don't you cut her into small pieces at once and make portable soup of her?'

Once, when talking with Lord the subject of Bible names, I could not remember the name of one of Job's daughters. *Kesia, said he immediately. Surprised, I congratulated him upon being so well read in Bible lore. 'Oh!' said he, 'my three greyhounds are named after Job's daughters."

"Talking of absence: 'The oddest instance of absence of mind happened to me once in in London; asked, 'Is Mrs. B at home?' 'Yes, Sir; pray what name shall I say?' I looked in the man's face astonished-what name? what name? ay, that is the question; what is my name? I believe the man thought me mad; but it is literally true that during the space of two or three minutes I had no more idea who I was than if I had never existed. I did not know whether I was a Dissenter or a layman. I felt as dull as Sternhold and Hopkins. At last, to my great relief, it flashed across me that I was Sydney

'I heard of a clergyman who went jogging along the road till he came to a turnpike .--'What is to pay?' 'Pay, Sir? for what?' asked the turnpikeman. 'Why, for my horse, to be umes in dazzling profusion. The following sure.' 'Your horse, Sir? what horse? Here is no horse, Sir,' 'No horse? God bless me!' said he looking down between his legs, 'I thought I was on horseback.' 'Lord Dudley was one of the most absent men I think I ever met in society. One day he met me in the street and invited me to meet myself. Dine with me to-day; dine with me. and I will get Sydney Smith to meet you.' I admitted the temptation he held out to me, the world had been diminutive in person, and but said I was engaged to meet him elsewhere. Another time, on meeting me, he turned back, put his arm through mine, muttering, 'I don't is my little friend - who has not body mind walking with him a little way; I'll walk enough to cover his mind decently with; his with him as far as the end of the street.' As we proceeded together, W---- passed .--'When I took my Yorkshire servants into That is the villain!' exclaimed he, 'who helped Somersetshire, I found that they thought me yesterday to asparagus and gave me no making a drink out of apples was a tempting | toast.' He very nearly overset my gravity once in the pulpit. He was sitting immediately under me, apparently very attentive, when suddenly he took up his stick, as if he had been in the House of Commons, and tapping on the ground with it, cried out in a low but very audible whisper, 'Hear, hear, hear!'

The Habit of Exaggeration.

Some people's tongues are continually emulating the frog in the old fable and always straining into an ox. There are those who never experience a moderate and occasional degree of pain, but they speak of it, as a degree of pain, but they speak of it, as a 'splitting' headache, 'awful' spasm, or 'dreadful' torture. If they meet with a slight incision of the skin, they have 'cut their finger to the bone;' a common cold is mentioned seriously 'as a most violent influenza' and a week or two of fever is recorded as a 'severe and frightful illness.' The 'superlative' is the reigning mood with them; 'superb' 'exquisite,' 'wonderful,' 'glorious,' 'horible,' 'astonishing,' and such extreme adjectives, teem on their lips as plentifully as conjunctions, and wo often wonder, while gauging the narrow caliber of brain, whence the big torrents issues—how such large furniture could be found in such a special such as the supersum of t 'splitting' headache, 'awful' spasm, or 'dreadsuch large furniture could be found in such a

Let these people repeat a story or circumstance, and you can hardly detect the original; they see everything through a magnifying glass and kalideoscope blended. Talk of painting in veritable colors, the foreground and outlines, often given in mere words, beat the pre-Raphælites by notches; a Dutch garden all tulips and peacocks, or a summer sunset all sign-painters.

We once kept an account for a lady during Fine French Morocco Jenny Linds, a three miles' walk through sandy lanes, who declared herself 'half dead' with fatigue every declared hersen man dead she had died Cood Magras Supp few minutes; and we found that she had died Children's Roans, Carlisle, May 23 journey, when she swallowed victuals in a most vital fashion.

A USEFUE LADY IN THE CAMP .-- A lady of color in Balaklava, and occasionally in camp, (writes the special correspondent of the London Morning Advertiser in the Crimea,) is quite an original in her way; and an amusing specimen of the adaptability to circumstances of the darker specimens of the genus homo .-She is both a Miss Nigtingale and a Soyer in her way. A native of Jamaica, she has traveled extensively on the American continent, and has acquired great experience in the treatment of cases of cholera and diarrheea. Her powders for the latter epidemic are now so renowned that she is constantly beset with applications, and it must be stated, to her honor, that she makes no charge for her powders. She is often seen riding out to the front with baskets of medicines of her own preparation, and this is particularly the case after an engagement with the enemy. Her culinary powers are also very great, that even Soyer told her the intelligent woman.

Neighbors.-They're the oncomfortablest set o' neighbors that ever yer knowed,' said

Mrs. Snigglefritz. 'One never gets a minute's peace of 'em, First, there's our Tom a-heavin' stones and breakin' in o' their windows. Then Joe, he's allays a callin' on 'em names, an' settin' Grip at their heels when they come home from meetin'. And the critters out there in the pastur', they're everlastin' over the bars intertheir tater-patch.

'What with one think and another, I'm gettin' pesky tired on 'm, and I shan't feel a of absence of mind nappened to me once in sixpen-'orth o' sorrier, if some fine day finds forgetting my own name. I knocked at a door 'em' a-toddlin' back where they kem from.'

TTENTION DYSPEPTICS—Those of you who have been afflicted for years with this to thersome disease, and who have been using almost every Nostrum before the public without relief, we say to you try "Kieffer's AntiDyspeptic" and you will scon be convinced of its great superiority over every other preparation. Two could give you many certificates corol orating our assertions, but a simple trial is worth morethan all. This remedy is prepared and sold at the Drug Store of B. J. KEIFFER, Bruth Hanover street, a few doors south of the Court Eryse, Carlisle.
