DEATH OF CAPT. C. G. MERCHANT.

Intelligence was received on Friday last of the death of Captain CHARLES G. MERCHANT, of the U.S. army, son of Major Merchant of Carlisle. The death of this gallant young officer will be felt as a sad event not only by his family but by the many friends here and elsewhere; who justly esteemed him for his noble qualities and admirable character. A!though young he had won high distinction in his profession, to which he was enthusiastically devoted. He graduated at the U.S. military academy at West Point in 1843. During the Mexican war he served as a Lieutenant in the 8th Regiment of the U. S. Infantry, and was in every great battle of that memorable war except that of Buena Vista, having just previous to that battle left the line of the Rio Grande in company with the other regular troops, to join in the investment of Vera Cruz, and the subsequent conquering march of the American army to the city of Mexico under Gen. Scott. In all the victorious engagements of our troops with the enemyin that triumphal march, Capt. Merchant bore a conspicuous part. His gallant conduct was noticed in flattering terms in the official reports of the commanding officers, and particularly in Gen. Scott's report of the capture of the city of Mexico. For his services in the Mexican war he was twice brevetted. After the war he accompanied his regiment to a post in Texas, when they were ordered for the protection of the frontier against the depredations of the Indians. While onea scouting expedition with his company they encountered a body of Camanche Indians and in the severe engagement which followed Capt. M. received a dangerous wound, which although not fatal at the time has probably proved the ultimate cause of his death. He died on the 4th inst., at East Pascagoula, Mississippi, where he was some months since stationed in charge of the U. S. Hospital located at that place. While the public service will feel his loss and his many acquaintances regard his death with unaffected grief, to his afflicted family it comes with keenest anguish. The sympathies of the community are with them in their bereavement.

> All that is wanting is a central room in our town to be opened on Wednesday forenoon of each week, and to have an intelligent person there during that time to receive specimens and be the agent for receiving and communieating. All who are interested could meet there once a week and exchange specimens and information without any formal organization: and if only the fruit cultivators and others would attend, it might gradually lead to a society and an annual exhibition.
