WONDERFUL JUGGLING.

We extract the following from an article in the Crayon, descriptive of travels in British India. The scene of the occurrence is laid in Madras.

But the most wonderful performance that we saw this morning was a feat of pure juggling, of which I have never been able to find any solution. One of the old men came forward upon the gravelled and hard trodden avenue, leading with him a woman. He made her kneel down, tied her arms behind her, and blindfolded her eyes. Then bringing a great bag net made with open meshes of rope, he put it over the woman, and laced up the mouth, fastening it with knotted intertwining cords in such a way that it seemed an impossibility for her to extricate herself from it.

Having succeeded in getting her into the basket, in which, from its small size, she was necessarily in a most cramped position; he put the cover upon it, and threw over it a wide strip of cotton cloth, hiding it completely. In a moment, placing his hands under the cloth, he drew out the net quite untied and disentangled. He then took a long, straight, sharp sword, muttered some words to himself while he sprinkled the dust upon his forehead; he then pulled off and threw aside the covering, and plunged the sword suddenly into the basket. Prepared as in some degree we were for this, and knowing that it was only a deception, it was yet impossible to see it without a cold creeping of horror. The quiet and energy with which he repeated his strokes driving the sword through the basket, while the other jugglers looked on, apparently as much interested as ourselves, were very dramatic and effective.

Stopping after he had riddled the basket, he again scattered dust upon its top, lifted the lid, took up the basket from the ground, showed it to us empty, and then threw it away. At the same moment we saw the woman approaching us from a clump of trees at a distance of at least 50 or 60 feet.

MODERN DISCOVERY.

In the course of a lengthy and able article in the New York Tribune we find the following summing up of the achievements of discovery within the last quarter of a century:

"Within the last twenty-five years all the principal features of the geography of our vast interior regions have been accurately determined; the great fields of Central Asia have been traversed in various directions, from Bokahara and the Oxus to the Chinese Wall; the half-known river systems of South America have been explored and surveyed; the icy continent around the Southern Pole has been discovered; the North western passage, the ignis fatuus of nearly two centuries, is, at last found; the dead sea is stripped of its fabulous terrors; the course of the Niger is no longer a myth, and the sublime secret of the Nile is almost wrested from its keeping. The Mountains of the Moon, sought for thro' two thousand years, have been beheld by a Caucasian eye; an English steamer has ascended Chadda to the frontiers of the great Kingdom of Bornou; Liechardt and Stuart have penetrated the wilderness of Australia; the Russians have descended from Irkutsk to the mouth of the Amoor; the antiquated walls of Chinese prejudice have been cracked and are fast tumbling down, and the canvas screens which surround Japan have been cut by the sharp edge of American enterprise. Such are the principal results of modern exploration.—What quarter of a century, since the form of the earth and the boundaries of its land and water were known, can exhibit such a list of achievements!"

IS THE SUN INHABITED.—Sir David Brewster makes the following remarks relative to the Sun:

"So strong has been the belief that the Sun cannot be a habitable world, that a scientific gentleman was pronounced by his medical attendant to be insane, because he had sent a paper to the royal society, in which he maintained that the light of the sun proceeds from a dense and universal aurora, which may afford ample light to the inhabitants of the surface beneath, and yet at such a distance aloft as not to be among them; that there may be water and dry land there, hills and da es, rain and fair weather, and that as the light and season must be eternal, the sun may easily be conceived to be by far the most blissful habitation of the whole system. In less than ten years after this apparently extravagant notion was considered a proof of insanity it was maintained by Sir William Herschel as a rational and probable opinion, which might be deducible from his own observation on the structure of the sun.

Fever and Ague in Indiana.

"We have no doubt there is more sickness in Indiana this fall than ever before—not of a fatal character, it is true, but distressing and expensive. The chills have come, like locusts in Utah, devouring the accumulated health of many summers. Those who have boasted themselves chill-proof have shaken like a coward entering a battle, and many a robust constitution has felt its clammy coldness over-spreading them like a November drizzle.—From every quarter of the State we hear the gruntings of the back-aching, side-racked patients, and the combined fevers of all the afflicted would make a heat sufficient to set up a young volcano."

The Louisville Courier says: "We learn from our exchanges that the supply of quinine is exhausted in three of the principal towns on the Wabash, Indiana. Terre Haute run short first, and then made a run on Vincennes, and exhausted the stock there. Vincennes drew on Evansville, and cleaned that city out. The editor of the Evansville Journal, in speaking of the demand for quinine, says:

"Our quinine market was pretty dry yesterday. Vincennes has made a demand for the article, which cleaned out the establishments here. We will be all right to day, and in the mean time the public can have a free shake. Shaking is fashionable this season. Some persons have become so skillful at it by practice that they can shake 'Hail Columbia' and 'Yankee Doodle.'"

DIMENSIONS OF HEAVEN.—"And he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equal."—Rev. 21: 16.

Twelve thousand furlongs, 7,920,000 feet, which, being cubed, is 496,793,088,000,000,000 cubic feet. Half of this we will reserve for the Throne of God and the Courts of Heaven, and half the balance for streets, leaving a remainder of 124,198,272,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this by 4,086, the cubic feet in a room 16 feet square, and there will be 30,321,843,750,000,000 rooms.

We will now suppose the world always did and always will contain 900,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts 83 1/2 years, making 2,700,000,000 every century, and that the world will stand 100,000 years, making in all 270,000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there were 100 worlds equal to this, in number of inhabitants and duration of years; making a total of 27,000,000,000,000 persons. Then there would be a room 16 feet high for each person, and yet there would be room.

ONE OF THE PIGS.—The Lynn News is responsible for the following: A friend of ours was arguing in favor of buying large pigs in the spring, declaring it much better than to buy small ones, as they eat but little more.—A neighbor differed from him in opinion, whereupon he told a story which 'took down' his opponent, and all hearers decided that small pigs eat some. Said he:

"Last spring I bought a small pig from a drover, and he was good for eating, but would not grow much. He got so, after a week or two, that he would eat a bucketful at a time, and then, like Oliver Twist, called for 'more.' Well, one morning I carried out a water bucket full of dough, and after it had swallowed it all, I picked up the pig and put him in the same bucket I had fed him from, and the little cuss didn't fill it half up!"

HOW MEN SHOULD TREAT WOMEN.—A Persian poet gives the following instruction on this important point:—"When thou art married, seek to please thy wife; but listen not to all that she says. From man's right side a rib was taken to form the woman, and never was there seen a rib quite straight. It breaks but bends not. Since, then, it is plain that crooked is a woman's temper, forgive her faults, and blame her not, nor let her anger thee, nor correction use, as it is vain to straighten what is crooked."

CHANGE OF BEDS.—An Edinburgh paper speaking of Gough, the Temperance lecturer, and the many marvels which he has accomplished during the two past years, states that among other things, he has travelled 19,837 miles per rail and coach. His correspondence amounts to 3,500 letters. One fact we cannot withhold, for it tells of fatigue high incalculable; he has slept in upwards of 300 different beds. Talk of Hercules—this eternal change of beds would alone would have 'used him up.'"

FIGURATIVE LANGUAGE.—The 2thake mah be perfectly cured without pain by the French specific.—Mercury. We wonder if the specific is hard to take—If not we will try it 4thwith.—Ex. If cured it will be a 1der, indeed.—Trans. 10dorly, gentlemen, 'tis a sore subject.—Ledger. Yes, and requiring 40tude to bear.—Courier. This is carrying the matter quite as far as 80quette will bear.—Mail.

that he was not ashamed to compare with any in the nation, and even his grandmother said 'that he had shown his sense in selecting for a wife a woman who could do something, and not one of those dressed-up dolls who seem to think that the great object of life is to show themselves.'

The moral of our story was thus expressed by Charley himself to a young friend, shortly after his marriage, in a conversation on the subject of matrimony:—

"In the first place, Tom, it is idle for a man under fifty, who is really a full developed man in all respects, to imagine that he is proof against the shaft of Cupid. I tell you, my dear boy, a man may arm himself with as much philosophy and reason as he please, and it won't avail him: he must be an exception to the law of human nature, and greatly defective in some way in head or heart if he does not fall in love at some time or other. Secondly it is not good sense to marry for personal beauty and grace alone, nor merely for domestic qualifications, but for both united; it takes both together, with a good heart, to make a perfect wife, one whom we can admire with our intellects, and adorn with our whole heart, one for whom a man is willing to encounter all hardships, to face any danger, to rise early and retire late, to labor, and if necessary, to die. And, finally, never flatter yourself that you can marry any girl you choose if she happens not to be wealthy or moving in high life, or that all poor girls are willing to sell themselves to rich husbands; I tell you it is not so."

STILL THANKFUL.—The Mobile Tribune of the 1st inst., is very thankful under damp circumstances. It says: "What a pleasant thing it is to have a plenty of a good thing! It has rained for the past three weeks every day, and the windows of heaven are still open."

THE LONDON TIMES ON KING BOMBA.—The Times winds up a description of the Neapolitan tyrant as follows:

"Let the meanest man in this kingdom—stepped though he may be in poverty even to the lips—afflicted by the afflictions which can try humanity—all Job's miseries upon him without Job's patience—fall down upon his knees and thank God that he is not King of Naples!"
