A VICTIM OF MIRTHFULNESS.

CONFIDENTIAL DISCLOSURES OF AN OLD MAID

I may safely say that the organ of mirthfulness has been the cause of most of the misfortunes of my life. While still a small child, I exhibited the propensity of laughing at anything which struck me as being ludicrous, no matter where, when or how it was.

At one time, I went to a funeral with my mother. It was the funeral of a young lady who was very much beloved, and of course lamented. Every one was in tears when, on turning towards a window, I saw two men sitting, one of whom was noted for his length of nose, the other because he had none. It was too much for my risibles-I choked, coughed, and sneezely-but it would not do; laugh 1 must, and laugh I did. Suddenly a shadow fell across my eyes, and a fleshly protuberance resembling a barbed hook, travelled some distance across my nose, and I heard these words pronounced in my ear:

'Child, you may be the next victim to the fell destroyer!'

This completed my overthrow, and my mother, shaking me violently by the shoulders, took me home, declaring that I never should go anywhere again till I knew how to behave myself.

When I wennt to school, the same fate followed me. I received more reprimands and more punishments than any o her six pupils. Once when my teacher had been scolding meand was just pronouncing pardon, I looked up and perceived the remains of a pinch of snuff | confidently of seeing five hundred as of seeing adhering to the end of his nose. Then, alus! this smaller number. You have contradicted wee was me that day. ÷.-

When our committee came into school I was always watching my, master's great hands and feet, and the awkward way he had of rolling his eyes and hanging out his tongue; and many are the scoldings I received over the school's back. I laughed my way from girlhood to maidenhood. At length there came a time to me, as there comes to all, when I was in love.

Edward Payson was a youth whom any lady might be proud to love. He was gentle and kind, and for a time I was able to control my three.' This man did not know that that was laughing genius while with him. My parents impossible, and that we must go towards the really hoped that I had begun to improve.

One evening he was unusually sober, I unusually gay. He wished to converse soberly; I would not, and tried to prevent him from doing so. The more sober and grave he became, the higher my spirits rose, till at length I was above the earth-the clouds dancing about in the broad expanse of air. I leaped from one airy castle to another, till at length my lover, tired, and no doubt disgusted, said:

'Amelia,' he said, in a husky voice, 'I had hoped that you were the one to control my destinies, one who would be my companion through life's thick maze-a friend-a wife. But I see my mistake. I am friendless and alone, and must remain so. Forgive me for thinking to tame your wild, free spirit. You have suid it is useless. I believe it. Farewell! hereafter we meet but as friends.'

I was amazed-thunderstruck-but he was lying arises from indifference about the truth, rather than from wish to deceive. Perpleare inything that comes uppermost, or what they think will please, without reflecting whether it be strictly true or not. It is a common error of tradesmen, from a desire to please or worse

reasons, to promise to have work done at a particular time, when they are not sure of their ability to do so, or know positively they are not able.

Many persons, also, either from heedless nes- or design, say what they think will create surprise, without supposing that they are doing any harm. Perhaps there is some truth in what they say, but it is so magnified or exaggera ed, with the view of exciting wonder, that it has the character and effect of falsehood. Such people are in the habit of using the words vast, immense, grand, splendid, magnificent, superb. tremendous.' and others of the nature, when words of a more simple meaning should he employed. 'Father,' said a boy one day, 'I saw an immense number of dogs-five hundred I am sure-in the street last night.' 'Surely not so many?' said his father. 'Well, there were one hundred, I'm quite sure.' 'It could not be,"

said the father; 'I don't, think there are a hundred dogs in the village.' Well, sir, it dry.' could not be less than ten; this I am quite certain of ' 'I will not believe that you even now ten,' said the father; 'for you spoke as yourself twice already, and now I cannot believe you.' Well, said the boy, 'I saw at least our Dush, an another one.' This is an example of erroneous reporting through engerness to make out a wonderful case. For the same reason, an uneducated man, who had been in the West Indies, hearing some one speak of the sun rising at midsummer about four in the morning, said, 'O that is nothing to what he does in Jamaica. I have seen him rise there between two and poles, and not towards the tropics, in order to see the sun rise very early. It is common, too, to hear people say that they have not been so warm in all their lives; that some one's gown is the prettiest they ever saw; or that they never were so happy as at Mrs. Smith's party; when it is obvious that they are alleging what is utterly impossible for them to be quite sure of. A little real respect for truth, and desire to follow it at all times, aided by a little reflection on the meaning of the words we are about to utter, would save us from falsehoods of this kind.

There is yet another species of falsehood, which consists in saying one thing but meaning another; this ought at all times be avoided, the same as positive lying. Persons who resort to this mean practice think that because they do not lie in the words they use, they do not commit any actual sin or crime. But this s a mere delusion. The lie is committed by the attempt to convey a false or wrong meaning, for the purpose of misleading; and such a mode of speaking is therefore both deceitful and sinful. In the whole business of the world, truth is of great importance. We should not only observe it in everything relating to ourselves and our neighbors, but we should seek to ascertain upon the thing as settled. One evening he it, and hold fast by it, in all things. If we books of best authority. If we cultivate science, we should make sure that we receive nothing which is not satisfactorily proved .-truth of an event; and nothing but experi | jail. ment, and a careful observation of facts, can prove the truth of anything in science.

A New Way to Detect a Thief.

As he was journeying in Massachusetts. not far from his native town, he stopped rather late one night at an inn in the village of not sufficiently anxious to be correct; they say In the bar-room were about twenty different persons, who, as he entered, called out for him to discover a thief. One of the company, it appeared, had, a few minutes before, had a watch taken from his pocket, and he knew the offender must be in the room with them.

> "Come, Mr. Almanac maker, you know the signs of the times, the hidden things of the senson, tell who is the thief.'

'Fasten all the doors of the room and let no one leave it; and here landlord go and bring your wife's great brass kettle.' 'Whe-ew! want to know! my stars! my wite's whe-ew!' quoth Boniface. Why, you couldn't be more struck if I told you to go to pot!' Boniface did as commanded: the great brass kettle was placed in the middle of the floor, its bottom up-as black, sooty and smoky as a chimney-back. The landlord got into his bar, and looked on with his eyes as big as saucers.

'You don't want any hot water nor nothin' to take off the bristles on a critter do you, Square?' said the Landlord, the preparation looking a little too much like hog killing.-'The old woman's gone to bed and the well is Now go into the barn and bring the biggest cockęrel you've g)t.'

.Whew! you won't bile him, will you! he's a tough one. I can swear, Square, he didn't steal the watch. The old rooster knows when it is time to crow, without looking at a watch.' 'Go along, or I won't detect the thiet.'

Boniface went to the barn and soon retured with a tremendous fat rooster, cackling all the way like mad. 🖌

Now put him under the kettle and blow, the light out.'

The old rooster was thrust under the inverted kettle and the lamp blown out.

'Now gentlemen, I don't 'spose the thief is in the company; but if he is, the old rooster will grow when the offender touches the bottom of the kettle with his hands. Walk round in a circle, and the cock will make known the watch stealer. The innocent need

'All done, gentlemen?'

'All done,' was the cry; 'where's your crowng! We heard no cockadoodeldo.'

'Bring us a light.'

A light was brought as ordered. 'Now hold up your hands, good folks. They

'All up,' was the response.

------don't know! Here's one fel-"All w who hasn't held up his hands.'

'Ah, ah! my old boy, let's take a peep at your paws.'

They were examined, and they were not black like those of the rest of the company. * 'You'll find your watch about him-search. And so it proved. The fellow not being aware, any more than the rest, of the trap that was set for the discovery of the thick had kept aloof from the kettle, lest when he touched it the crowing of the rooster should proclaim him as the thief. gone. I often met him afterwards, but he was reserved, and I was always was gay and trivial in his presence. Oh, woman, thou art an enigma! When thou feelest most deeply, thou seemest most gay! When thou lovest most thou seemst to scorn !

Then came another lover light headed as myself. He was always joking, always gay. People said: 'What a match;' and looked came to me with a very solemn countenance, and said:

'Amelia, I have an idea in my head.'

Don't it feel funny ?' said I; which so frightened the poor man that he was unable to finish. In like manner I have stopped two others' confessions. Thus you see that my propensity for making fun has made me what I am-a lonely old maid. I have not mourned my flesh off, on account of it, however, but on the contrary, I have 'laughed and grown fat."

But still if some machine could be invented to keep my countenance while I listen to another declaration, I would be most happy to receive both the machine and the declaration.

MACKLIN'S ADVICE TO HIS SON .- 'I have often told you that every man must to a great extent, be the maker or marrer of his own fortune. I repeat the doctrine. He who depends upon incessant industry and integrity, depends upon patrons of the noblest and most exalted kind; these are creators of fortune and fame, the founders of families, and can never disappoint and desert you. You have genius, you have learning, you have industry at times, but you want persoverance; without it you can do nothing. I bid you bear this motto in mind-Perseverance.'

'A BOLD STROKE FOR A HUSBAND.'-A new nethod is now adopted by ladies of a 'certain ' to obtain life-partners. BSA. The 'Hard shell Baptists' are a well known sect in the south and south-west. They go dead against all Bible, temperance, and ed ucation societies; hate missions to the heathen, and all modern schemes for converting the rest of mankind. Of course they are opposed to learning, and speak as they are suddenly moved. A Georgia correspondent relates the following of one of their preachers :

'Two of them were in the same pulpit together. While one was preaching he happened to say, 'When Abraham built the ark.
