The Winter.

Winter will soon be fairly upon us. We have but a few days or weeks at most to prepare for this insinuating visitor. Jack Frost will take you by the hand with a painful grip, he will pinch your nose, step on your toes, and pull your ears. He is of a very destructive as well of a very familiar and inquisitive turn. He will make his way into your cellar, if possible, and while there will spoil your potatoes and apples, and do a deal of mischief in many ways. He will visit your stables and barns, much to the discomfort of your horses and cattle unless you make a pretty efficient effort to keep him out. He will even try to get through your potato hills, and unless you are careful in burying them he will succeed. He will get under your gate posts and push them up, so that your gates hang badly; throw your wheat out of the ground and branch. In short, he is a very mischievous fellow, and as his visits are sure and certain, it would be well to make prompt exertions to keep him out of doors, for if he once makes an entrance and gets on friendly terms with you he will be very apt to stay with you all winter. If you get up your defences in time you will be able to keep the cold-hearted scamp at a distance. After having done this, you can take your comfort—read the papers and good books on the subject of your profession, and gain strength and knowledge for the next summer's campaign.

By the way, what an excellent opportunity the long evenings and leisure of the coming winter will afford for forming and sustaining Farmer's Clubs. Every little neighborhood should have its farmer's club, where the farmers of the vicinity can meet and discuss questions of interest to all. Here mind can meet mind, and the experience of the one be brought to confirm or cast doubt on the experience of another. One has grown and fed root crops, and is prepared to give his experience for the benefit of his neighbor, who never thought they would pay in this country. Another has grown millet to save his hay, and has a word to say on this subject. Still another used a little guano, just for the sake of the experiment, and he has formed some kind of an opinion in regard to the expediency of its use. Farmer A. has reclaimed several acres of swamp land. B. is delighted with his experiment in the use of drain tile, and C. has put up a barn that for convenience and real usefulness he thinks can not be equalled.

Thus knowledge is increased, the indolent excited to exertion, and great good accomplished.

If the clubs of adjoining towns or neighborhoods were held on different evenings, it would add much to their interest for members to visit each other's meetings, either voluntarily or by delegation.

Let this good work be commenced in earnest as soon as the fall work is done and you are fairly prepared for the winter; and if you find any article in your agricultural paper that don't accord with your experience, take the paper to the club and give it a "regular overhauling," and send report of the discussion for publication. You will be able to keep the editor and his correspondents pretty nearly right.—Genesee Farmer.

THE MEADOWS OF AMERICA.—Gov. Wright, of Indiana, says that our grass crop is not properly appreciated. No crop, he says, approaches so near a spontaneous yield, and none yields so large a profit. The hay crop of the United States in 1850 he estimates at 13,000,000 tons; that for 1855 he estimates at 15,000,000 tons; which is worth $150,000,000; while the whole cotton crop is valued at only $128,000,000. Of this crop more than half is produced by four States—New York, (which yields one-fourth of the whole), Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The grass crop which is used for pasturage is at least as valuable; so that single herb is worth annually over three hundred millions of dollars. Few people will believe that the grass crop of New York State is worth more than its wheat, and yet statistics show that such is the fact.

Not long since a premium was offered by an agricultural society for the best mode of irrigation; and the latter word, by mistake of the printer, having been changed to "irritation," a farmer sent his wife to gain the prize.

A Fix—A farmer had occasion to send his man, who by the way was a jolly Dutchman, to a neighboring town for a barrel of molasses. The weather being warm, and the road rough, and the driver, moreover, driving rather fast, the molasses took a notion to 'work,' as it is generally called. But we will let him tell his story in his own words: 'Vell I gomed along and I gomed along, till I got to de hill vat stands on top of de black nut's shop, and den I looks around behid my punge hole. Thun I, I vill strop dat so I strops de cart, and then scotches der oxen mit a grabble rock and trove der punge hole in ash tight ash neber vos, mit a lightwood knot, and gomed along agam, till I got to where de forks of de road cross each oder mit de meeting house, and I looks round behid my pack agin and de stuf was all run ober mit de parrel agin. O, says I, I vill fix you now, and I picks up a clook mit all my might, and de ting blow out mit a noise like a cannon, an knocked me down fra off de road mit my pack, and sourt de cart, and it runned away mit de oxen, and turned dem all ober each oder, and proke eberyting in pieces, and I am gomed, home mit myself, put de cart ish runnin to deuy tyful.'
