Elopement Extraordinary.

The Claiborne Advocate, of the 31st ult. has an account of an extraordinary series of events which is published under the heading "Elopement, marriage, civil commotion, and bloodshed," and of which the following is a condensation:

About four or six weeks ago there eloped from Terryville, Claiborne parish, one Dr. Clement and one Sarah T. Wafer, an orphan heiress of a wealthy Louisiana planter, being at the time at school at Terryville. To Arkansas they proceeded with the utmost despatch, where the nuptial ceremony was duly performed.

On the return of the parties homeward, they were met by a brother of the bride, James T. Wafer, Jr. who proceeded, as the story goes, at once, forcibly to dispossess the bridegroom of his seat by the side of his tearful bride; but he was allowed to accompany her to the residence of the said Wafer, near Terryville. The bridegroom and bride remained but a short time at the last mentioned place, and were then allowed to proceed to the home of the Doctor, in Arcadia, a village in Blenville parish. In this village Dr. and Mrs. Clement had lived, so far as we are advised, in the comfortable enjoyment of about one half of their honeymoon, when the bride was suddenly summoned to the bedside of a sick sister, (a Mrs. S.) then at the residence of her brother, the aforesaid Wafer.

The youthful bride, at the house of her brother, signed a letter written by her brother in law, (Mr. S.) in which she accused the Doctor of having basely imposed upon and deceived her; said that he was a coward in allowing himself to be chastised by her brother; that he was old, ugly, and no physician; that she could not love him, and never did; and that she could never consent again to live with him. Mrs. Clement soon after accompanied her sister, Mrs. S. and other relatives, to the home of another sister, Mrs. D. who also resides on Red River, in the parish of Bossier. Dr. Clement followed in pursuit, accompanied by fifteen or eighteen stalwart friends from about Arcadia, all armed cap a pie. Arriving at the house of Mrs. D. they demanded the person of Mrs. C. who could do no less than yield, which she did, on the condition, it seems, that she be taken to the residence of her uncle, the Rev. Jas. T. Wafer, one of our most estimable citizens, who resides in this vicinity: at whose house it was agreed she should remain unmolested for the space of two days, (Friday and Saturday last, at the expiration of which time she should announce her decision as to whether she should live with the Doctor in future or not; in which decision all parties agreed to acquiesce.

Her brother, not being wholly satisfied that his sister would be dealt with according to the agreement entered into on Red River, set himself about raising a corps of men, armed in like manner, who proceeded towards the residence of his uncle on Thursday evening last, for the purpose, it is presumed, of rescuing his sister. On approaching the house, the sudden clicking of a dozen or so of double barreled shot guns warned the party of danger, and they retired.

The brother then came to Homer and gave information, upon which the deputy sheriff, Gentry Warren, proceeded at the dead of night with some twenty armed men, summoned for the occasion, to the residence of the rev Mr. Wafer to make arrest of Dr. Clement and party, for the forcible abduction and imprisonment of the fair heroine. The deputy and his party narrowly escaped being shot as they approached the house, and would certainly have been fired upon had not his official mission been promptly made known. Dr. Clement and his party submitted to the arrest.

Next morning (Friday) about 9 o'clock, our peaceable town was thrown into violent commotion by the sudden appearance in our midst, on horseback, and with double barreled guns, of the entire body of men, some sixty in number, thrown together as above stated, on the night previous, and in the centre of the concourse, mirabile dictu, the hero and heroine seated side by side in a buggy! Very soon after the arrival, a gun of one of the armed party was accidentally discharged, the contents passing through the window of the law office of our esteemed fellow-citizen, J. M. Thomason, who, standing at his library at the time, received a glancing shot just above the left hip. It inflicted a bad wound, but we are happy to state that it will not be attended by serious results. (About the same time, we understand, a foreigner had part of a thumb shot off; but how this occurred we are not accurately advised.)

The trial of the Clement party, for abduction, imprisonment, &c., was postponed by Justice Millican until Monday. A writ of habeas corpus, on the affidavit of Jas. T. Wafer Jr., was also issued by the Hon. Harmon A. Drew, Judge of our District Court, which was served upon Dr. Clement, commanding him to produce the body of Mrs. Sarah T. Clement, and show cause why he deprived her of her rights and liberties. The defendant failing or refusing to make immediate answer to the writ of habeas corpus, as commanded, was also arrested for contempt of Court. The trials on these several writs came off on Saturday. His Honor discharged the defendant, Dr. Clement, in both cases.

On Monday, the parties arrested for the abduction and imprisonment of Mrs. Clement appeared for trial before Justice Millican. Dr. Clement was put on trial first. The sisters of our heroine had just arrived, after a whole night's hard travel, from Red River, to give testimony. Mrs. S., a beautiful, dark eyed, intelligent and woman, was put upon the stand. New facts, in this strangely complicated case, were revealed by her—among them that her sister Sallie had been engaged before her elopement with Dr. Clement, to her (witness's) brother-in-law, Sidney S.; that Sallie had received a letter purporting to be from Sidney, in which he upbraided her for her infidelity, &c., and discarded her forever; under the influence of this letter (which was really a forged one) Sallie hastened into an elopement with Dr. Clement, whom she did not love, and whom, on a more familiar acquaintance, she hated. Dr. Clement, however was discharged from arrest. The counsel for the prosecution, on the following morning, declined to prosecute the accomplices of Dr. Clement, whereupon all were discharged.

Thus ended the first act in this drama. The next has already opened; for while the excitement was going on in Homer, our heroine was spirited away to parts unknown; but the general opinion is, that she has been transported to Arkansas, where she is protected or guarded by forty double barreled shot guns and a howitzer! And thither a considerable part of the multitude, recently assembled in our ordinary peaceable town, have betaken themselves, "armed and equipped as the law doesn't direct.

Evening Hours for Mechanics.

'What,' says the North of Scotland Gazette, in an article in favor of the early closing of shops, 'what have evening hours done for Mechanics who had only ten hours toil? What in the moral, what in the religious, what in the scientific world? Hearken to the facts:

One of the best editors the Westminster Review could ever boast, and one of the most brilliant writers of the passing hour, was a cooper in Aberdeen. One of the editors of a London daily journal was a baker in Elgin; perhaps the best reporter on the London Times was a weaver in Edinburgh; the editor of the Witness was a stone mason. One of the ablest ministers in London was a blacksmith in Dundee; another was a watchmaker in Banff; the late Dr. Milne, of China, was a herd boy in Rhyné; the Principal of the London Missionary Society's College at Hong Kong was a saddler in Huntly; and Principal of the best missionaries that ever went to India was a tailor in Keith. The leading machinist on the London and Birmingham Railway, with £700 a year, was a mechanic in Glasgow; and perhaps the very richest iron founder in England was a working man in Moray. Sir James Clark, her Majesty's physician, was a druggist in Banff. Joseph Hume was a sailor first, and then a laborer at the pestle and mortar in Montrose; Mr. McGregor, the member for Glasgow, was a poor boy in Ross-shire; James Wilson, the member for Westbury, was a ploughman in Huddington, and Arthur Anderson, the member for Orkney, earned his bread by the sweat of his brow in the Ultima Thulu.

What an array of great working men! Like New England, the excellent parish school system of Scotland has made her sons honored and renowned throughout the world. The evening hours of our young mechanics are more valuable than they are aware of, and it would be well if in our cities some better places of resort were to be found for the mental encouragement of our young men. There are few who have had an opportunity of judging like ourselves of the great necessity of good Mechanics' Associations for our young men. Some such institutions as will woo them from the many snares and foolish wiles that lead them into folly, and keep the mind dark for want of knowledge.

COMMONPLACE WOMEN.—Heaven knows how many simple letters, from simpleminded women, have been kissed, cherished and wept over by men of far loftier intellect. So it will always be, to the end of time. It is a lesson worth learning by those young creatures who seek to allure by their accomplishments, or dazzle by their genius, that though he may admire, no man ever loves a woman for these things. He loves her for what is essentially distinct from, through not incompatible with them—her woman's nature and her woman's heart. This is why we so often see a man of high genius or intellectual power pass by the Do Stacks and Corrinnes, to take into his bosom some wayside flower, who has nothing on earth to make her worthy of him, except that she is—what so few of your 'female celebrities,' are—a true woman.

Public Road to Paradise—Singular Developments in the Mountains.

A correspondent of the Chattanooga, Tennessee, Advertiser, writing from Blue Mountain P. O., in the wildest part of the Alleghenies, gives the following interesting account of two singular beings, dwelling in the vicinity of the neighboring village of Spoonville. These pretended prophets are doubtless emulous of the fame of Joe Smith and seek to found a faith which will rival that of the Mormons. The said inhabitants of Spoonville are undoubtedly "spoonies."

It is stated that two old favored men with long beards and uncovered heads, were found in a peculiar hut near the village a few weeks since, but how they came there, or from whence, no one can tell. No one saw them on the general thoroughfares, or in the paths leading to this spot, which is in open view from all three of the taverns, and, what is more unaccountable, the manner of their daily sustenance, in a worldly sense, is a mystery—so much so, that after sage consideration, the town has settled in the belief that their unexplainable presence and existence confirm it more in the opinion of their supreme origin. The first and last impression is that two reverential and harmless men, in loose robes, and grey beards, and long hair, dwell in their midst. Innocent are they, and saintly in their intercourse.

Their hut rests against a large rock in the side of the hill, and an ancient growth of trees shades it from the sun. Within the cabin and in the rock is a cavity of lesser capacity in which they deposit curious instruments of writing, and small packages of dark yellow paper, held together by clasped boards; these, with a moderate sized brazen box with a continuous hinge on the back, and an enormously disproportioned lock to secure the lid, record the entire contents of this rocky niche. The house furniture is all told in two common benches—no table—no place to prepare food—no bed, or any indications of the usual comforts of life, but simply two lone benches of rough plank stand on the bare earth.

It is not to be wondered at that the quick and sober citizens of Spoonville should be casting in mind the purpose and destiny of such untangible creatures, and to arrive at the opinion above hinted at, "their supreme origin," they closely observe their outgoings during the day. At night it was observed regularly that they took a walk towards the East, but the moment the people attempted to follow them, a palpable gauzy veil of haze enveloped their forms, and they were lost to all scrutiny. In two hours these unfathomable men would return, bearing in their hands a single sheet of the dark yellow paper, which as regularly was placed in the brazen chest. A feeling of awe so pervaded the vicinity of the hut that it baffled all desire to enter after their return. For two months, each day introduced the same routine—the same retirement and the same results.

During the daylight, these men, or prophets, as they term themselves, will converse familiarly with the people but on subjects of a spiritual nature. They say they have the mission to complete before they can plainly enlarge upon their present occupation—that their mission is to unite the spiritual and mortal being into one holy life, which, when perfected will sanctify the lives of the whole world—that a new revelation is being made for accomplishing this glorious task, but many exigencies must be met and overcome before its completion—that they are now receiving the holy word, and when the last is given there will be such signs and manifestations as will sink conviction into the hearts of all the people round about—but the time is not yet—that the revelation made will point out a public road to Paradise, which will pass by the homes of all created in his image, who can travel if they will. Various other works they converse on, and when thus engaged, a visible light seems to enclose their forms to an extent most lovely and fascinating to be witnessed.

By these frequent communings with the venerable prophets, the citizens have become fully awakened, and daily they crowd the shades of the majestic grove sheltering their abode to listen to the teachings of wisdom emanating from their tongues. For hours they will sit there entranced, and, as if by inspiration, all the dwellers of Spoonville have become constant converts to the new faith which opens the "public" road to Paradise. They have quite deserted the field and the place of business, and the majority of them have come to the conclusion that they are all intended to be apostles and disciples, chosen and set apart from the great body of the world. Peter and Paul and other good men are to be ordinary mortals compared with the eventful lives awaiting them.

You may ask us, have we ourselves, seen these spiritual teachers, have we felt their teachings and witnessed the halo of glory encircling them? To all these queries we answer we have seen all and more, more we have related, and not too, without experiencing a portion of the strange influence they wield.

HERRING'S PATENT, CHAMPION

IRON FIRE PROOF SAFES, with HERRING'S PATENT Powder Proof Locks, which were awarded separate Medals at the World's Fair, London, 1851, and also at the World's Fair, New York, 1853 and '54. The subscribers are the sole manufacturers and proprietors in this State of the above unequalled safes and Locks. The reputation of the genuine "Herring's Safe" is world wide, and for the last thirty years the mercantile community have witnessed and borne testimony to their NEVER FAILING fire proof qualities. More than 12,000 of these Safes have been actually sold, and over two millions have passed through the hands of the subscribers. The public are assured that all Safes manufactured by the subscribers are not only guaranteed to be fully equal, but in many respects even superior to those which have been so severely tried by the Fire and Marine Insurance Companies in this State, the "Tribune establishment," New York, and at the Great Fire in Strawberry Street, at the large fire last July, opposite the Girard House; and still more recently in the Fire at Fifth and Chestnut Streets, in the city of Philadelphia, in which these Safes came forth the acknowledged CHAMPION, when many other securities failed. FARELL & CO., 34 WALNUT STREET, Philadelphia. Chilled Iron Safes, with Powder Proof Locks, manufactured expressly for Banks, Brokers, Jewelers, and others requiring security from rogues, Bank Robbers, &c. on hand and made to order. MATCHES! MATCHES!!—JOHN DONNELLY.

JOHN DONNELLY, manufacturer and inventor of SAFE MATCHES, SQUARE UPRIGHT WOOD MATCHES, No. 100 NORTH FOURTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA. Matches having become an indispensable article in householding, the subscriber after a great sacrifice of time and money, is enabled to offer to the Public an article of once combining Utility and cheapness. The inventor knowing the danger apprehended on account of the illusive manner in which Matches are generally packed in paper, has by the aid of New Steam Machinery in his own invention, succeeded in getting up a SAFETY MATCHES SQUARE UPRIGHT WOOD MATCHES, which is far preferable, in as much that it occupies no more room than the old round wood box, and contains at least two hundred per cent more Matches, which to Shippers is considered a great advantage; it is entirely new and secure against moisture and spontaneous combustion, and is all danger on transportation by means of Railroad, Steam boat or any other mode of Conveyance. These Matches are packed so that one gross or more may be applied to any part of the Match, with perfect safety. They are the most desirable article for the Household, Consumption, and the Southern and western market that have ever been invented. U. S. THESE MATCHES are WARRANTED to be superior to anything heretofore offered to the Public. JOHN DONNELLY, 100 North FOURTH St. Philad'a. Phila. Dec'r 4, 1854.
