en or eight years ago published a newspaper at Richmond, Virginia, was on the 26th of October legally executed upon the gallows at Coloma, California, for the murder of a young woman named Susan M. Newman, whom he shot with one of Colt's revolvers, near Zinggold, El Dorado county, on the 10th of August last, and who died on the 15th. . He had a wife and four children in the Atlantic States, but regerded himself as married to this young woman, 'By God and himself," for full fifteen months, and shot her because her parents preferred another who was addressing ber. He went to the gallows gaily dressed, behaved with groat levity, delivered a long written address, sang a hymn of his own cam position, and died exclaming, 'Susan receive me; I'll soon he with you.' He was a man of some talent, but not of well-balanced mind, and of late gave himself up to what are called spiritual influences , Another murderer named Fee was executed at his side. He behaved with great levity, and when called upon by the crowd for a speech attempted to sing a facetious song.
