COMPOUND FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

For disease of the Bladder and Kidneys, Secret Diseases, Strictures, Weaknesses, and all diseases of the Sexual Organs, whether in Male or Female, from whatever cause they may have originated, and no matter of how long standing.

If you have contracted the terrible disease which, once seated in the system, will surely go down from one goueration to another, undermining the constitution and sapping the very vital fluids of life, do not trust yourself in the hands of Quaeks, who start up overy day in a city like this, and fill the papers with glaring falsehoods, too well calculated to deceive the young, and those not acquainted with their tricks. You cannot be two careful in the salection of a remedy in these cases.

The Fluid Extract Buchu has been pronounced by eminent physicians the greatest remedy ever known—
It is a mediclue perfectly pleasant in its tyste, and very tinnecent in its action, and yet so therough that it annihilates every particle of the rank and poisonous virus of this dreadful disease; and, unlike other remedies, does not dry up the disease in the blood.

Constitutional Debility, brought on by self-abuse, a.
most terrible disease, which has brought thousands of the human race to untimely graves, thus blasting the brilliant hopes of parents, and blighting in the bud the glorious ambition of many a noble youth, can be cured by this Infallible Remedy—And—as—a medicine which must bonefit everybody, from the simply delicate to the confined and desplairing invalid, no equal is to be found acting both as a Curé and prayentive.

WHICH TO CHOOSE.

Mrs. Champion, a rich widow of only thirty summers, and in the full bloom of her beauty, was in the matrimonial market closely besieged by three suitors, all of them good looking, all gentlemen, and all professing unbounded and disinteresting affection for the fair lady. Capt. Trevanien had been a cavalry officer, but he had retired from the service. He was a tall, dashing figure, with very aristocratic manners, and like Ned Pepper, Paul Clifford's friend, possessed an "unkinternon fine head of hair." Indeed, it was rumored that his ambrosial curls were not nature's gift to him, but the spolia opima of some nameless and more favored individual, procured of Bogle by the intermediation of a certain amount of filthy lucre. The captain had inherited a large fortune.

Suitor No. 2 was a young man about town, very fashionable, polished and pleasant.— He contrived to keep out of debt, but his financial resources were said to be very limited. Mr. Claude Careless evidently had a good prospect of success.

The third suitor, Mr. Stanley Moreton, was an art-student, and also cultivated poetry. Though very modest and unaffected he was slightly occentric in the matter FLUID EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA,

For Purifying the Blood, removing all diseases arising from excess of Mercury, exposure and improduce in life, chronic constitutional disease, arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Sait Rheum, Scald Head, Ulcerations of the Threat and Logs, Pains and Swellings for the Bones, Totter, Pimples on the Face, and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin. silent in company, the Captain and Care-less made light of his rivalship and considered the contest as confirmed to themselves.

The Captain proposed after the most ap proved taste of fashion, dropping gracefully on one knee, and pressing the lips that nurmnred his vows to the fair hand he solicited as his guerdon,

When he had retired, Claude paid his devoirs, and made his proposals with great earnestness. His professions of disinterestedness were no less emphatic than the Capain's. The painter came next. When alone vith the lady of his love he found a voice which failed him in the presence of others. To each of the suitors she gave the same reply-namely, that she would return a defnite answer exactly three weeks from the date of his proposal, requiring him in the interval to refrain from calling or inquiring about her, and to absent himself from the

ity. The commands of a rich beauty are mperative. Each wooer promised a knightly obedience and kept his pledge. The Captain ran down to Newport; Claude went to Saratoga, and Stanley carried his sketch book up to the White Mountains.

The widow shut herself up for three-weeks. At the expiration of that time, punctual to the appointed day, hour and minute, the elegant Captain entered Mrs. Champion's drawing room, and surveyed himself from head to foot in the Versailles mirror, with a smile of satisfaction. He was engaged in self-admiration when a light step recalled him to a sense of propriety. He turned and beheld the widow, but a thick veil covered her face. He drew a chair to her side and addressed her.

Dearest Isabella," said he, in his most, persuasive tones, "allow me to remove the envious screen which shrouds charms which were never meant to be concealed."

"Alas, Captain," said the widow, with a tremulous voice, and drawing her veil yet closer, "those charms exist no longer." "Is it possible!" cried the Captain in a one of alarm. "What do you mean?"

"Since I saw you I have been very sick. When I was a child my parents neglected to have me vaccinated, and the ravages of the small pox."

"The small pox!" cried the Captain, back to the other side of the room.

"Don't be afraid, Captain" said the widow. "It is all over-and I am a dreadful object to behold—but of course that makes no difference in your affections."
"Hem!" cried the Captain. "If would make no difference if I wanted to retire with you into the country, to live like Darby and Joan. But to go into society—to in-troduce you as my wife at balls and sorrees a person disfigured by a dreadful disorder, O Lord, ma'am, the idea never entered my head!"

"I release you from your engagementyou are free," said the widow. "I have no doubt, ma'am," said the Captain, greatly relieved, "that you will find individuals not exactly in my situation, who will be will be very happy to-in short, ma'am, I wish you a very good day ' "Cold-hearted, vain egotist!" said the widow, when he had left. "I rightly gauged your character. You only wished for a handsome wife to enhance your consequence, and parade in society, as you show off your handsome horse in the street. Let us see whether my thoughts have wronged Mr. Careless." To Careless she told the same story. The young gentleman heard of the loss of her beauty with great nonchalance. "But that is not all," said Mrs. Champion. "My business man has just been with me all the morning. My investments were most unfortunate. I am completely beggared."

"How unfortunate," cried Careless. For I am in the same predicament. I don't see my way through this quarter. Now it is very evident that it would be the heighth of folly for two persons without any income or prospect, to marry only to mul-tiply misery. I must beg you to consider my proposal of last month as only conditional. Doubtless there are rash, unprincipled men who would in my case think only of sentiment, but I am too good a moralist and too good a citizen to think of persevering now. Farewell, madame! farewell for-over! I leave you with depair in my heart and madness in my brain. Probably no declaration of despair was ever uttered in a cooler tone and so thought the widow. The young artist heard the loss of his

But I am poor, Stanley," said the

"You give me new life, Isabella!" cried the painter. "The world cannot say now that any mercenary motives tainted the pure feeling with which I regarded you.-Trust me, you shall never want while I-have brain and hand to work for you." Then take me for such as I am and was," cried the widow, throwing of her veil, "both in person and in purpose, and torgive the fabricated tale which proved two of my suitors worthless."

Freed from the weil, her dazzling beauty beamed on the painter in undimmed radiance, and her hand thrilled to his touch. Need we say that they were happy?

What Woman Can Do.

As a wife and mother, woman can make or man the fortune and happiness of her husband and children; and even if she did nothing else, surely this would be a suffi-cient destiny. By her thrift, prudence and tact she can secure to partner and herself a compétence in old age, no matter how small. their beginings, or how adverse a fate-occasionally be theirs. By her cheerfulness she can restore her husband's spirits, shaken by the anxieties of business. By her tender care, she can often restore him to health, if disease has seized upon his overtasked powers. By her counsels and her love, she can win him from bad company, if temptation, in an evil hour, has led himastray. By her example, her precepts, and her sex's insight into character, she can mould her children, however diverse their dispositions, into good and noble men and women. And by leading, in all things, a true and beautiful life, she can refine, elevate and spiritualize all who come within her reach, so that, with others of her sex emulating and assisting her, she can even-tually do more to regenerate the world than all the statesmen or reformers that ever legislated. She can do as much, alas! perhaps even more, to degrade man, if she chooses it. Who can estimate the evil that woman has the power to do? As a wife she can ruin her husband by extravagance, folly, or want of affection. She can make a devil and outcast of a man, who might otherwise have become a good member of society. She can bring bickerings, strife and perpetual discord into what has been a happy home. She can change the innocent. babes whom God has entrusted to her charge into vile men and even viler women. She can lower the moral tone of society itself, and thus pollute legislation at the spring-head. She can in fine, become an instrument of evil, instead of an angel of good .-Instead of making flowers of truth, purity, beauty, and spirituality spring up in her footsteps, till the whole earth smiles with loveliness that is almost celestial, she can transform it to a black and blasted desert, covered with the scorn of all evil passions, and swept by the bitter blasts of everlasting death. This is what woman can do for the wrong as well as for the right. Is her mission a little one? Has she no "worthy work," as has become the cry of late?-Man may have a hardier task to perform, a rougher path to travel, but he has none loftier, or more influential; than woman's. -- Woman's Advocate.
