It was delayed for some time at Winchester; but I am happy to say that it came in excellent condition." We are decidedly pleased with the instrument. The rosewood is of a beautiful quality: the case is plain (we like it the better for it); the tonch is very easy for a new instrument, and the fone is firm, clear and sweet. All who have tried it, admire it and speak in the highest terms of its mellowness and sweetness of tone. We deeply regret that we did not order the 'Attachment:' we must have it yet.

A Young Lady's Fright.

Last Tuesday night, which will be rememocted as one of the warmest of the season, a young lady at the "West End" was excessively frightened at a little circumstance which transpired about the hour of midnight. The young lady, whose heauty is only equalled by her modesty, and whose "eye's dark charm" has caused more than one waistcoat to palpitate, had retired to her chamber, where after laying aside the greater portion of her wearing apparel, she committed herself to the tender ombrace of Morpheus, whose soothing influences were aided by the cooling breath of Zephyr, who came in at the open window and fanned her cheeks with his feathered wings. In a word, she was snoozing finely-or, to use the language of a modern bard-

Sleep on her velvet eyelids lightly prossed, And dreamy sights upheaved her snowy breast. While starbeams, thre' her window softly creeping stole to her couch and trembling there stood peeping." It was, as we said, about midnight when the young lady was roused from delicious slumber by hearing a noise at the window. Half upclosing her eyes, she was scartled by the sight . of a corpulent form, apparently struggling to gain admission to her chamber through the open window. It struck her at once that the intruder had been caught bp the rear of his unmentionables, by a nail or some other sharp instrument, as he seemed to be struggling with a stern determination to enter. Her first thought was to faint-her second, to give the tellow a push-her third, to jump out of the window as soon as he jumped in,—her fourth, to serenm, which was immediately carried into effect. The whistle of the locomotive on the fron Mountain road, when it gave its first yelf on the 4th of July, was but a whisper to the screams of the young girl. The whole house, and half the neighborhood, were awakened by the outery. The old folks, three female servants and two big brothers rushed to the rescue, and broomsticks, mop handles, and bootjacks flashed in the gaslight, as the household entered the chamber of the frightened beauty An examination of the figure in the window. dispelled the fears of all, and changed the screams of the young lady into shouts of laughter. The imaginary "fat man' was only her own during hooped skirt, which she had liung on a hook near the window, and which the wind had inflated and set in motion. There was no more sleeping in that house that night. -St. Louis Herald.

At the Marylebone County Court on the 10th inst., an action (Redfera vs. Murray,) was prought to recover £10, moneys lont, and caused no little-merriment.-----

Miss Redfern stated that she had been on term of intimacy with Mr. Murray for five years, and she had now an action spending igninst bim for breach of promise of marriage, . He had used her most scandalously. Beside keeping company with her for five years, he had at various times got from her various presents. The rings on his fingers and the watch in his pocket were her gitts. She leut him two £5 notes, and when he cooled toward her. she wrote him a letter, demanding her presents and money back; or to fulfil his promise. In reply, she got, "Go to Putney on a pig, grease its tail, and the devil wou't cutch you - [Laughter] No, no, it won't do, [Renewed lauguter. There is an old border sou-

net to your tune-There was a criminal in a cart Agoing to be hanged, Reprieve to him was granted; The growd and cart did stand. To bee if he would marry a wite, Or otherwise choose to die. Or, why should I torment my life. The siction did reply; The bargain's bad in every pare But a wife's the worst-drive on the cart

[Roars of laughter.] Yours, as you behave yourself, Alexander Murray."

Mr. Murray: Woman, lift up your veil, met that I want to see your face, but I should like his honor to pass an opinion on your frontinpiece-[laughter] -and say, whether he would not drive on the cart in preference to marrying you. [Roars of laughter.] Did I not take you to all places of amusement; was not this money expended in it! Now maswer that you darned old conglomeration of bile [Roard of aughter.]

Miss Redfern: On Sanday, you know I mest

always paid for your tickets. Mr. Murray: Admitting that, who stood Sam in the liquor trade? [Laughter,] Just cell his honor on your oath how many little goes you had at the Crystal Palace. [Laughter.] Lord love you, she can teen off a dente little brandice, and fill both eyes after wish the meantain dew. [Lond laughter.] I hope your honor will not order me to pay this meaey, for I assure you I spent it all down her threat. [Renewed laughter.]

The Judge was of opinion that a guntles had a bounden duty to stand treat to his lady love, and made an order upon Sandy to pay the debt and costs in two instalments.
