

Farmers' Department.

Prospect of Cheap Flour.

The Cincinnati Price Current estimates the quantity of wheat gathered the present harvest as fully ten per cent greater than has been gathered any previous year.

Table with 2 columns: States and Bushels. Lists flour production for various states including Maine, Hampshire, Vermont, etc.

In the British Islands at last accounts the weather was favorable and the crops looked well. In France there is some fear of a short crop, but any deficiency will be largely supplied from the countries bordering on the Mediterranean.

Have a Place for Everything, and Everything in its Place.

For want of this, much valuable time is lost, and by observing it much perplexity is avoided. Let no one say this is as stale as A, B, C; for A, B, C, must be taught again, and it is by repetition that primary lessons at school are mostly impressed.

A farmer who commenced his career in the observance of this rule, after a time suffered his vigilance to abate, and before he was thirty, both his hired men and his boys would very often leave his tools where they were last used, and many of the most important moments of their time were spent in searching and enquiring for the missing implements, and as those who had last used them were not always to be found, he was, at times, obliged to send some distance to a neighbor, to borrow; his children becoming addicted to the same easy habits, they were thus entailed upon children and grandchildren, and must have an important influence in stamping upon them that characteristic want of system and thrift for which they are now remarkable.

A clerk who had occasion to use his scissors many times a day, would lay them at one time on his desk, at another on his window, sometimes among his papers, and not unfrequently in his drawer. The consequence was, that when there was most occasion for dispatch, then there was most confusion and delay—all of which might have been avoided by proper care in this and similar cases.

Something for all.

So various are the appetites of animals, that there is scarcely a plant which is not chosen by some and left untouched by others. The horse gives up the water hemlock to the goat; the cow gives up the long leaved water hemlock to the sheep; the goat gives up the monk's hood to the horse, &c., for that which some animals grow fat upon, others savor as poison. Hence no plant is absolutely poisonous, but only respectively. Thus the spurge, that is so noxious to man, is a most wholesome nourishment to the caterpillar. That animals may not destroy themselves for the want of knowing this law, each of them is guarded by such a delicacy of taste and smell, that they can easily distinguish what is pernicious from what is wholesome; and when it happens that different animals live upon the same plants, still one kind always leaves something for the other, as the mouths of all are not equally adapted to lay hold of the grass, by which means there is sufficient food for all.
