Col. Fremont in 1848.

From the Buffalo Ropublic.

The editor of this paper, recollecting that Mr. Peters, of Genesee, who is well known as a devoted and intelligent friend of Agriculture, and as a citizen who has filled important public stations with fidelity and ability, traveled west with Col Fremont in 1848, and had frequent opportunities of learning his views then, addressed Mr. P. a note to which the follow ing is the response:

DARIEN, Tuesday, July 1, 1856. MY-KIND FRIEND: Your favor is just received. You say, that "having a lively recolled tion of your enthusiastic admiration of Col. Fremont when, in 1848, you were a fellowtraveler of his," you deare me, in view of the fact that the Opposition are endeavoring to projudice his claims to the popular regard of the North because he is a South Carelinian by birth, and that they declared that his avowed opinion against the extension of Slavery is assumed for the occasion, to write you, for publication, so far as it is proper to do so what his opinions were then on the great quostion of Slavery extension, which now convulses the country. Of course, I cheerfully comply, because I wish to do justice to the man who seems to have been providentially selected for this crisis.

I mit Col. Fremont and his wife early in the Autumn of 1848, on the steamer Saratoga, which was then in the Buffalo and Sandusky line. I made their acquaintance soon after we left Buffalo, and as we were detained by head-winds and other causes, we were together nearly or quite two days. Owing to peculias circumstances, not necessary now-to-mention, our acquaintance became very intimate, partaking more of that which is the result of years than of days.

He was then on his way to the Western frontier, to set out on another and final overland journey to California by a new route, for the purpose of making an exploration of a sec-, tion of the continent which was yet unknown except to the trapper or Indian. His wife was accompanying him as far as Westport, on the confines of Missouri, to cheer and comforthim with her presence till the last moment .-- And much did-he need her comforting presence till the last moment. There had been no time during his whole career when his prospects looked so gloomy as then, or when the stoutest heart might quail. He had nearly drained the bitter cup. He did indeed drink its last bitter dregs before the journey ended. It was on that dreadful journey that he lost so many of his brave and ever faithful companions, and nearly perished himself.

He had but recently got through with his court martial-a trial which, from its incep tion to its close, was one of the most unjust and disgraceful that has ever been held in this country. In-tead of an honorable acquittal, and high commendation for his glorious services, it found him guilty, and in carrying out its judgment, he bad been dismissed the serwice. He knew that great injustice shad been lone him, and he felt it keenly. He was poor having only the amount of his salary for his own and his family's support. But this was not all; for Congress having refused to assume the debts he had contracted in the conquest of California, he was going back empty han led, and with the certain prospect of every species of arrogance from that source.

He was returning to California as a private sitizen, and with the intention of making there is future home. Some kind friend, in-New York had enabled him to send around the nelessary machinery for mills which he intended o erect upon his ranche, since so famous, and o valuable, but then only valuable as afford ong a fine property for agricultural purposes. Both he and his noble wife looked forward o the time when they would be able to enterain their friends in their own house, and upon heir own farm in that then far-off territory. lold had not yet been discovered, and he exacted to conquor success by the same indomtable perseverance that had thus far sustaind him in one of the most remarkable careers ver run by any man of his age in this or any ther country. And it was very pleasant to ee how he was cheered on and encouraged by ils wife, whose notions of independence were ratified by the vast prospect of doing good which was open to them in that new country, leither had they any other thought or expecation than to obtain an honorable and repected position by their own industry and conomy. I mention these facts to show you hat whatever opinions he then entertained. nd expressed were the result of a settled con iction, and not influenced by any motives of folicy. Those who know the man thoroughly mow that be is incapable of giving expres ion to any other than his own well-settled nd thorough convictions upon any important ubject brought to bis notice or discussion.

Reeling great interest in having California Free State, and feeling satisfied that wherver his lot was oast, he would exercise a great influence over those who were associated with him, the subject of Slavery was often freely and thoroughly discussed, and in the most unrestrained and confidential nanner.

In all cases, I found Col. Fremont's opinions to be decidedly apposed to the extension of Slavery into Free Territory. He considered it a serious evil, regretted its existence; and was most determinedly opposed to its extension. He was as strong a State rights man as either of us' believing that there was more danger to be apprehended from the encroachments of the General Government, in bad bands, than from any want of unity among the States.

. In all our discussions. I was surprised at his statesmanlike views. There shone out that broad and comprehensive patrictism which sought for the advancement of our com mon country to that high position among the nations of the earth which he considered its destiny; and all that he had done, and all that he suffered was amply compensated if he had been the means of bringing to the world's knowledge and of her wonderful resources It was at such times that, despite his usual reserve and self-control, he would become enthusiastic over what seemed to him the glorious future of our beloved country. It was ensy for me to see why he held such complete control over his companions, even in the midst of such intense suffering. The whole secret was in the entire absence of all selfishness, which is one of the great charms of his char

There were very many facts disclosed, which showed how entirely he was opposed to Shovery, and that he would suffer any privation rather than to become even a resident in a Slave State. But they were so mixed up with matters which were more or less properly con fidential, that I'do not feel at liberty to repeat them .- Still-I may perhaps be permitted to refer to one as illustrating his great repug nance to a life of dependence. After his dismissal from the service, his South Carolina friends, much to their honor, came forward and tendered him a Professorship in the Colege at Columbia, with a salary of $3,000 a year, or the Presidency of a Railroad at an annual salary of $5,000.

Modest and retiring in his manners, and unostentations in his habits, he is yet a keen observer and an industrious student. His habits of close observation, which have been exercised over a larger field in both hemispheres than any other man now before the people, with his practical good sense, give him a clearness of perception which is rarely at fault, and fit him admirably for the executive officer of a great nation.— Of his capacity I have no doubt, for thus far he has proved himself adequate to every emergency. In purity of character, in a knowledge of the wants of the people, in an indomitable will, and in a patrictism that that would sacrifice everything for the true glory of the whole country, he has no superior.

From what I then learned of Col. Frenont's character and opinions, without any regard to his subsequent career, I do not believe that there is any wants to the Holica way that the learned of the people is the subsequent career, I do not believe that there is any wants to the Holica way the learned of learned of learned learned of learned learned of learned ness of perception which is rarely at fault, and there is any man in the Union more thoroughly Democratic. So firm are my convictions on this subject, that I am willing to stake my life upon his fidelity to the principles of the Demoatic-Republican Party.

With best wishes, sincerely your friend, . T. C. Peters.

MPORTANT TO FEMALES!

DR. OHLESEMAN'S PILLS.
The combination of ingredients in these i lis is the result of a long and extensive practice; they are mild in their operation, and certain of restoring nature to its proper channel. In every instance have these rills proved successful. Thuy invariably open those observations to which Poundes are liable, and bring that it into its proper channel, whereby health is restored and the pale and deathly countonance changed to a healthy o.e. No female can enjoy good health unless she is regular; and whenever an obstruction takes place, whether from exposure, cold or any other cause, the general 'health fundiately bogins to decline, and the want of such a renedy has been the cause of so many consumptions among young females. To ladies whose health will not remit of an increase of their family, these pills will prove a vail unble acquisition, as they will prevent pregnancy—licadache, pain in the side, palpitation of the heart, loathing of food, and di turbed sleep do most always wrise from she interruption of nature; and whenever that is the case, the pills will invariably remedy all thert ovils. Nor are the less afficacious in the cure of Leucerrhea, commonly called the 'Whitos.' These pills should never be taken during pregnancy, as they would be sure to cause a 'miscarriage. Warranted purely Vegetable, and free from acything injurious to life or health. Fulland explicit directions accompany each box.
