A Hard Old Story.

BR MEISTER RARL In travelling round, I've always heard it said. That on a't' gauge," a Yankoe keeps ahead.

But there's a tale which proves and it is true That Dutch can sell their greenhorn friends - a few.

... A German oned, one of your " hard old clams," Went up to Buffalo to sell some hams.

Some to his sire he sold, some to a cousin; But "stuck" a tavorn keeper with a dozen.

One day it happened that a Western blade Was talking with this German host, of trade.

Asserting that a Yankee-on the square-Could chizel Dutchmen out of hide and hair.

The Lager-bier man gave an angry scream; From his blue eyes red lightning seemed to gleam.

And oaths came rattling like a railroad er "Sturm-wetter! sackerlot-das ist nit wahr!

"Dat is a lie—I shwear by donner blits! De Dootch can schoet de Yankees all to fits.

"You know Hans Louder-vell-de oder day He sells mo dozen hams-den clear afay.

"I dells you some dings rite atay shoost now; .. Dem hams vos made up shenkens, anyhow.

"Put I cat six—he scheeted me so good— Perore I finds that dey vos made of wood."

Bumorous.

CUTTING IT THICK .- The Yankees are generally supposed to possess more acuteness than any other people on the face of the globe, yet the following story will show that some of the Germans possess this faculty to a remarkable degree.

On one ocsasion a German residing in the country came into Buffalo with hams to seil .--Among the rest, he sold a dozen or two to a German hotel-keeper, who afterwards, in demonstrating the acuteness of his countrymen over the Yankee, said :

.. You may talk pout your tam-Yankees scheeting, but a Dutchman scheeted me much petter as a Yankee never vas. He prings me some hums-dey vas cauvass nice, so petter as you never see. I buy one, two dozen-all so nice-and if you believe-de scheet was, so magnificent dat I eat six, seven, eight of dem tam hams before I found out dey vas made of wood!"

THE CHINESE AND THE YOUNG DONKEY,-The Golden Era, a Culifornia paper, styles that six clippers brought in the latter part of June, about two thousand Chinamen to San Francisco. The editor goes on to say: "It is very amusing to see them streaking through the streets, following the carts containing their baggage, the drivers of which, just for sport, drive on a sharp trot, and frighten the poor Johns with the idea that they are about to loose their traps. We saw a flock, a day or two since, of fifty or more in full chase of a job wagon ahead, that was moving off at a lively pace, containing alot of goods and chattles that smelled of camphor wood and opium smoke. The wind was blowing strong dead ahead, and the tails streamed straight out bebind snapping in the breeze, and the Celestials hollowing "High pah, high-yoo." A flock of them came accross a donkey having with it a juvenile donkito about a week old. This was something new. They hah-yah'd and walked around it several times; finally one of them discovered that it had a tail, and undertook to unfold it; he took hold of it and straightened it out. They all gathered around, deeply interested in the new species of a phn," when the little institution resented idea of relationship by letting drive with both heels into the rice receptacles of the party, knocking down half a dozen, and putting the balance to flight.

THE EARTH & GRAVEVARD. - Scientific writers assert the number of persons who existed since the beginning of time amounts to 36,627,848,275,075,845. These figures when didivided by 8,095,000, (the number of square leagues of land on the globe,) leave 11,820,-689,782 square miles of land on the globe, which being divided as before, give 184,622, 976 persons to each square mile. Let us now reduce miles to squre rods, and the number will be 1,853,174,600,000, which being divided as before, will give 1283 inhabitants to each square rod; which being reduced to feet, will give about five persons to each

A GOOD JOKE.

A number of politicians, all of whom were seeking offices under the government, were seated on the tavern porch talking, when an old toper named Jake D____, came up to them. Now the said Jake is a person who is very loquacious when "corned," but exactly the opposite when mober. At the present time being "tight," he said that if the company had no objections he would tell them a story. They told him to "fire away," whereupon he spoke as follows: "A certain king-don't recollect his name—had: a philosopher upon whose judgment he always depended. Now it so happened that one day the king took it into his head to go hunting, and after summoning his nobles, and making all the necessary proparations, he summoned his philosopher and asked him if it would rain. The philosopher told him it would not, and he and his nobles departed. While journeying along they met a countryman mounted upon a jackass; he advised them to return, "for" said he-"it certainly will rain." They smiled contemptuously upon him, and passed on. Before they had gone many miles, however, they had reason to regret not having taken the rus. tic's advice, as a heavy shower coming up, they were drenched to the skin. When they had returned to the palace, the king reprimanded the philosopher severely for telling him that it would be clear when it was not .- "I met a countryman," said he, "and he knows a great deal more than you, for he told me it would rain, whereas you told me it would not.' The king then gave the philosopher his walking paper, and sent for the countryman, who soon made his appearance. "Tell me," said the king, "how you knew it would rain." -- "1 didn't know," said the rustic, "my jackasstold me." "And how, pray, did he tell you?" the king asked in great astonishment. - By pricking up his ears, your majesty." The king now sout the countryman away and procuring the jackass, placed him in the office the philosopher had filled. "And here," observed Jake, looking very wise, "here is where the king made a great mistake." "How so?" inquired his auditors. "Why, ever since that time," said Jake with a grin on his phiz, Mevery jackass wants an office."

It is said that Tom Moore, one night while stopping at an inn in Scotland, was continually troubled by the landlady with the request that he would write her epitaph. Ac cordingly at night he gave impromptu as fol-

"Good Susan Blake, in royal state, Arrived at last at Heaven's gate-and stopped, promising to finish in the morning. The good lady was in fransports at this inscription, and treated Mr. Moor with every possible attention. In the morning he was about leaving, when the lady reminded him he had not finished the epitaph. "That is so," said he, and immediately added-

"But Peter met her with a club, And knocked her back to Belzebub."

It is said that Mr. Moore's horses were un. der motion just as he finished the last line.
