TAKE PARTICULAR NOTIOE.

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood; and which, if not referred in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of protracted, insidious, and devastating affections.

Affections.

Fow of those who give way to this pernicious practice are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feel strange and unaccountable consations and vague fears in the mind. (See pages 27, 28, 29, of Dr. K.'s book on "Solf Preservation."

The unfortunate thus affected becomes feeble, is timable to labor with accustomed vigor, or to apply his mind to study; his stop is fardy and weak: he is dull, irresolute, and engages even in his sports with issequergy than usual.

The Cure arrived late last year, and the difficulty in getting any one to purchase it was greatly increased from the last trait a comedy had been introduced which was growing in never with the public as foling better than using Quantue—not Knowing, I presume, that the remedy they used to campe taking Qubinine contained the DRUG ITSELF!

Vhis remedy (known as "Smith's Tonic,") would invariably BREAK an Ague, but it did not Cure it, as it would often return with removed vigor. This one circumstance I deemed in your favor, if I could institute a jest comparison between it and your CURE. The following is the result;

Three persons took your "Cure," all of which were cases of "Quotidian Intermittant Fever," of many weeks standing. They had tried Quinine and other remedies, occasionally missing a chili, but it was dis in all such cases, slowly wearing them out, and laying the foundatin of other and severer matsides. "I did succeed-in-effecting a radical cure of all three of these cases with your roundy, and they lieve not had a chill since. It rail three of these cases the "Smith's Tonic" in the been used, and would, as bedge stated, break the since: In all three of these cases the "Smith's Tonie" had been used, and would, as before stated, break the chili, but after a period or two had clapsed it would ug applicant. 'You don't know till you try. " sow what'll you wager I can't tell you what's a that are round bottle in the winder?" 'I'm not in the habit of betting,' said the ruggist; but I doubt very much if you can

'You won't bet, ha?' replied the fellow, then I'll tell you without. That stuff that looks so blue in that are bottle, is hydrostaticnuriatic-problematic generatic neid. I larnt ant of the doctor in our town. Don't you hink now, sir, I'm a puty ingenious scholar ?' -

I must say you have given a very fair speimen, replied the owner of the shop, but as ttakes some years to learn the druggist's meiness, I think you had better engage in omething which you can understand more . sadily.'

· You think I had, ha? said the fellow with a mortified look. He then stood musing or awhile, and dramming on the counter, when al of a sudden, seeming to have caught a new den, he burst out, . By jingo! Mister. I beneve you're right, and now I think on't , I'll go this minute and see if I can get a place in . livery stuble.

Phoenix," the humorist: "One evening at the theatre, Phonix" obhe thought he knew; he requested the person atting next to him to punch the other indi-" mud with his cade." The polite stranger ... so, and the disturbed person turning his nead a little he discovered his mistake—that he was not the person he took him for. Fixing his attention steadfastly on the play and affecting unconsciousness of the whole affair, he left the man with the caue to settle with the other for the disturbance, who, being wholly without an excuse, there was of course a ludicrous and embarrassing scene-during all which Phoenix was profoundly interested in the play. At last the man with the cane asked rather indignantly, didu't you tell me to punch that man with my stick !...

" Yes!

" 'And what did you want?'

. " I wanted to see whether you would gunch him or not!"

Yours And Ours .- A widower, in the neighhorhood of Bristol, England, having three children, married a widow with a like complement of olive branches; and after they had been married aix years, they further added to their combined family by three more of their own, making in all nine. When one of the "Tuneful Nine" would be overheard making o noise in the house, it was no ancommon a thing for the husband to say:

"That's yours, Mrs. A." Presently another cry would be heard, when Mrs. A. would retort by exclaiming, "That's yours, Mr. A."

A third young urchin would then give tongue, when Mr. and Mrs. A. would exclaim with one voice-" That's ouns!"

The first step to greatness is to be hearst.
