

Farmers' Department.

From the Germantown Telegraph.

Mr. Editor:—There are few articles of a domestic character that possess a higher value than good cider. It is necessary for a great variety of uses, and when sufficient care is exercised in its manufacture, constitutes a most pleasant and healthful beverage. But notwithstanding all this, very little good cider is to be found, owing to the carelessness allowed in picking the fruit, and the almost utter neglect of neatness and skill in making and preserving it. Many err in the supposition that all apples are possessed of equal value for cider, and that whether they are sweet or acid, sound or rotten, they are fit for the mill, and may be worked up to equal advantage and profit. When, however, cider of good quality is desired, the apples should be harvested when fully ripe, but before they have become in the slightest degree decayed. The fruit should then be carefully sorted, and only the soundest reserved for the best liquor, or that which is designed for use of market, as a beverage; the imperfect fruit, and also that which has become diseased from any cause, set aside for an inferior article. Perfect cleanliness should be observed in perfecting the grinding process, which should if possible, be performed two or three days before pressing, and the juice or ground fruit permitted to stand and mellow in the vat till it assumes a deep red color. Clean straw should be used in forming the "cheese," as mouldy straw would deteriorate the quality of the liquor expressed, by imparting to it a musty flavor which will increase with age, and finally render it unfit to drink or for any other use. Water should never be added, as it is certain to render it hard and unpleasant to the taste when drunk. The casks, also, in which it is put, should be thoroughly cleaned before being used, and if they are mouldy, or possessed of any unpleasant smell, it would be judicious to introduce into them, after thorough ablutions, a few strips of canvass, dipped in melted brimstone, and set on fire before they are introduced. The fumes of this degeneration will permeate every part and pore of the interior surface of the cask, and neutralize those noxious principles and unsavory atoms which are the principal cause of sourness and hardness, in the liquor when used, or attempted to be used, as a beverage. After cider has fermented thoroughly, it should be then racked off into clean barrels, and suffered to remain for a month or two, when to clarify it, from one to two quarts of clean white beach sand mixed with the whites of half a dozen eggs, and one pint of mustard seed, should be introduced, and the liquor, after a reasonable time, be once more racked, and, if a very nice article is wanted, put in bottles and closely corked. Some prefer to omit the second racking, and allow the liquor to remain in the barrels with the sand, eggs and mustard, unmoved. This prevents it from becoming sour, or possessed of that flat and disagreeable flavor which is so disgusting and even nauseating to most palates. Good cider always commands and always will command a good price in our markets.

CARE OF COWS IN WINTER.—Milch cows should be stabled, especially at night and in unpleasant weather. This is too frequently neglected, the milch cow receiving no better care than those not in milk, and other farm cattle. This is a mistaken policy, if milk be the object desired. The more comfortable they can be kept, the greater the product from a given amount of food. Good hay may well form a part of their food, but they need something more. Carrots, turnips, beets, parsnips, potatoes and apples, are generally well relished by cows, and promote the flow of milk and the health and thrift of the animal. Carrots are highly esteemed for this purpose, and are generally thought better than beets or turnips.

GRAIN FANS, GRAIN FANS.—Just received, a lot of Grain Fans of Shreiner and Noble's manufacture. Also a few assortments of Hay, Straw, a Fodder Cutter, of four different kinds, at the cheap Hardware Store of H. S. SEXTON, July 16, 1856.

CARLISLE FEMALE SEMINARY. MR. and MRS. CLARK, who have been for several years engaged in teaching, respectfully announce to the citizens of Carlisle and vicinity, that on the 1st of September, 1856, they will commence the second session, in Louthier Street, near the German Reformed Church, of their

SEMINARY FOR YOUNG LADIES. The school will be both a boarding and day school, in which all the branches necessary for the complete education of young ladies will be taught. Assistants of the highest character for qualifications and morality will be employed in accordance with the wants of the institution. The government will be sustained on strictly Christian principles, while secularism will be as rigidly excluded. The Principals flatter themselves that their long and successful experience as teachers, as testified by the testimonials in their possession, will enable them to give an instruction of the highest character to young ladies. They are fully persuaded that such an institution will be sustained here by the citizens and neighboring country, and hope that their confidence may not be disappointed. The course will consist of four terms (seven weeks each) beginning on September 1 and ending on second Wednesday in July. TERMS PER QUARTER (11 weeks): Boarding, including fuel, lights, and all other English branches, $35 00 Primary Department, " " 6 00 Higher Department, " " 8 00 Agent and Modern Languages, each, 5 00 Ornamental branches at professors' charges. Commercial College. Removed to the new and spacious Hall, No. 22 and 24 BALTIMORE STREET, Baltimore, Md. G. K. CHAMBERLIN, Principal and Lecturer upon Mercantile Science. G. K. Chamberlin, in charge of the Department. A. W. KENNEDY, Lecturer on Book Keeping, and Assistant in the Department of Mathematics. J. M. POLLMAN, Lecturer on Book Keeping. Three years have not yet elapsed since the establishment of this institution, during which time upwards of eight hundred students have been in attendance, graduating nearly every year in the United States, among whom are numbers in Baltimore and elsewhere occupying prominent positions as business men and accountants. COURSE OF STUDY. BOOK KEEPING.—The principal has the utmost confidence in assuring the public that after an experience of fourteen years in qualifying young men for the counting room and other important stations, and an extensive practical acquaintance with the duties of the various branches of mercantile science, he is by two successful accounts, the course of training in this department is eminently practical and well adapted to the various pursuits of Commerce and Trade, including Book Keeping, Mathematics, Mercantile Law, and Commission, Exchange, Banking, Shipping, Steamboat, Compound Company operations, &c. PRAXIS.—The exercises under this head are free, easy and practical, combining rapidly of execution with beauty of construction, and making the student able to write an elegant business hand on completion of the course. MERCANTILE CALCULATIONS in all their various bearings are taught by the most accurate and expeditious methods. Daily lectures are delivered upon the Science of Accounts, Mercantile Customs, &c.; these in connection with a series of lectures on Commercial Law, are of the highest importance to all aspiring to occupy prominent positions in mercantile life. The time necessary for an industrious student to complete the course, varies from 8 to 12 weeks. There being no vacation, applicants can enter at any time, and attend both day and evening. Examinations are held at stated periods, and diplomas awarded to those who are qualified. For terms, etc., write and have a copy forwarded by mail. [Oct. 3, 1856.]
