

An Agricultural Ode

BY WM. C. BRYANT.

The hands of kings and sages

Entwined the enaplets round,
Till men of spell
Disdained the toll
Br which the world was neutrished
And blood and pillage were the sell
In which their laurels flourished. Now the world her fiult despairs
The guilt that stains her story,
And weeps her crimes amid the car
That formed her earliest glory.

The throne shall crumble, The diadem shall wane, The discent shall wants.

The tribes of earth shall humble

The pride of those who reign;

And war shall lay

His pomp away; The fame that heroes cherish, The glory carned in deadly fray Shall fade, decay and perish. And feed th' expectant nations.

The Passion for Large Farms Prejudicial.

There is a passion for large farms which very extensively prevails in this country. It leads men to add field to field, tract to tract, and small farms or portions of farms all around them to their original purchase, until they come into possession of far more land than they can cultivate or manage to good advantage, and into possession indeed, of what, in Great Britain would be quite an estate, or of what would elevate the possessor of it into the envied class of landed proprie tors. The ownership of as many acres there, as are frequently owned by some of our large farmers here, would give the possessor the much coveted and much prized title of a "Country Gentleman." This prevailing passion operates so of-ten injuriously, not only to the individu-als more immediately concerned, but also to the neighborhoods and school districts in which they are located, that it would be a contribution to the good of many communities, and to the well-being of individuals and neighborhoods, it could be effectually, restrained. Notwithstanding-the many and the obvious prejudicial con-sequences which have been seen, or may, at least, be seen, to flow from this passion it appears to be just as strong and urgent as it was many years ago, when the evil consequences flowing from it had less time to develop and manifest themselves We presume that some of the ridiculous or hurtful consequences of this passion and of the possession of large farms by one individual, are known to almost every one, as almost every neighborhood fur-hishes an example of the fruits of this folly. These natural consequences, de-monstrating the injuriousness of the folly under consideration may, in time work out such a revolution in public opinion as may put a check upon this passion for large farms; but as that reformation, like some others not a little needed, may come rather slowly, we would give it an impulse, by any and every other means which present themselves. For this purpose we would submit to the consideration of the more intelligent or patriotic or public spirited of our readers, the fol-lowing sensible observations, which were originally presented by Judge Woodward in his address before the Pennsylvania

State Agricultural Society at its recent Among several of what Judge W. calls the wants of farmers, elsewhere, as in Ponnsylvania, is the want of smaller

"As a general rule, Pennsylvania farms are too large. If a man have capi-tal enough to stock and carry on a large farm properly—that is, so as to make it yield up to its full capacity, and at the same time fo be growing better, there can be no just objection to his adding field to field, and farming largely. And there are some advantages peculiar to large farms such as a versator diversity. large farms, such as a greater diversity and a more systematic rotation of crops, which the man of large means has a perfeet right to purchase to himself. But, generally speaking, the capital employed in carrying on farms is very small, and the size of farms is out of all proportion to the capital invested. It is a distress-ing sight to see fields half tilled. Such farming is pernicious as an example; it corrupts and finally kills the soil, and degrades the cause of agriculture. It is not for me to say how many acres a far mer ought to cultivate; but I will say that he ought to attempt no more than he can cultivate thoroughly and well. If instead of hurrying his sons off to the West, as they grow into manhood, he would divide his farm of two or three hundred a-ores among them, until each of them and himself should have but fifty acres apieco to cultivate, it would not surprise me to hear that he and each son had found fifty acres, properly cultivated, more produc-tive than than the whole had been before. The Romans illustrated the importance of thorough tillage by the following apo-logue:—A vinedresser had, two daugh-ters and a vineyard. When his eldest daughter was married, he gave her a third of his vineyard for a portion, notwithstanding he had the same quantity of food as formerly. When his youngest daugh ter was married, he gave her half of what remained, and still the produce of his yineyard was undiminished. This resulted from his bestowing as much labor up-on the third part left, after the daughters been accustomed to give to the whole vineyard." There can be little doubt with those who reflect upon such facts as good gardening, market gardening and small farms well tilled; have often presented, that an experiment like that named might be tried with success in many neighborhoods. Many a man might sell half his form and profitably employ the proceeds in making the rest more productive.

The inventor makes the whole in two picces, employing, in addition, two small screws to aid in screwing the parts together.—Buth are made of malleable iron—the lower portion or sole being very amiler to the horse-shoe ordinarily em-loyed, but with a groove around its exterior, and without nail holes. The upper portion or vamp is thin, and has large projecting in from its lower edge to match the groove in the sole. These parts are so arranged as to secure a tight and firm connection, and the whole is made additionally secure by the aid of the set of screws at the heel. One practical advantage to be derived from this atyle of shoes is the facility with which they may at any time be removed or ex-

This Association is founded upon honest and felr Principles. Each book purchaser gets the value of his money in the book, and on account of the great number sold, becomes a shareholder in much valuable property. A certificate will be presented to each book purchaser, and titing the holder to an in-interest in the above valuable property. As soon as the books are all sold, notice will be given to the stockholders, and a convontion will be held in Newville, at the Institute's Hall, when a Committee will be chosen, to whom the property will be delivered, to be distributed among the shareholders. All tax articles that can, will be exhibited at the Institute's Fair, on the 12th of August.
From the very flattering manner in which this John Stock Association is received and patronized, and from the number of tickets airesdy sold, it is confidently, befleved that the property can be delivered to the share holders in a few months. For the character of the Bio I that the property can be delivered to the snare is in a few months. For the character of the "Bio surious obstacles to instrimotial happiness, but gives rise to a series of protracted, instidious, and devastating affections.

Few of these who give way to this pernicious practice are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous systen shattered, feel strange and unaccountable sensatious and vague fears in the mind. (See pages 27, 28, 29, of Dr. K.'s book on "Self Preservation."

The unfortunate thus affected becomes feeble, is unable to labor with accustomed vigor, or to apply his mind to study, his step is tardy and weak: he is dull, irresolute, and engages even in his sports with less energy than usual.

If he einancipate himself before the practice has done its worst, and enter matrimony, his, marriage is untruitful, and his some tells him that this is caused by his early follies. These are considerations which should awaken the attention of all who are similarly situated. FATIENTS AT A DISTANCE

ONICS WON'T DO! —They never did do more than give temporary renef, and they never will "14 is because they don't touch the cause of the disease. The cause of all ague and billiour-diseases is the amospheric poisen called Missans or Maharia. Neutralize this poisen by its Matura Missans or Maharia. Neutralize this poisen by its Matura Antidote, and all disease caused by it disappears at once. Ribedes Fever and Ague Cure is this antidote to Nalaria, and moreover it is a perfectly harmless medicine. The certificate of the celebrated chemist, J. R. Chiliton, of New-York, to this effect, is attached to every bottle; therefore, if it does no good, it can do no harm.

Chilton, of New York, to this effect, is attached to every bottle; therefore, if it does no good, it can do no harm.

This is more than can be said of Quinine, Arsenic, or any other tonic in existence, as their use is ruinous to the constitution and brings on DUS. If 'Activit,' which never allows a person to feel perfectly well for a single moment. In illustration of these truths I annex some extracts from a letter just received from a Physician: Gaosantows, Olmo, March IT, 1858.

JAS, A. RHOADS, ksq.—Dear Sir: Yours of 2d inst., is at hand. The Cure arrived late last year, and the difficulty in getting any one to purchase it was greatly increased from the fact that a remedy had been introduced which was growing in favor with the public as being better than using Quinin—not knowling. I presume, that the remedy they used to excape taking Quinine contained the DRUG HTSELF!

'Vhis remedy (known as "Emith's Tonic,") would fin variably BithAn an Ague, but it did not Cure it, as it would often return with renewed vigor.—This-one circumstance I deemed in your favor, if I could institute a test comparison between it and your CURE. The following is the result;

Three persons took your "Cure," all of which were cases of "Quotidian intermittant Fever," of many weeks standing. They had tried Quinine and other remedies, occasionally missing a chill, but it was (as a law in the surface of these cases the 'Smith's Tonic' ind bean used, and would, as before started, break the chill, but after a perlod or two find clapsed it would return.

I think there will be no difficulty now in giving to chill, but after a period or two had clapsed it would return.

I fhink there will be no difficulty now in giving to your "Curo" the vanlage ground of any other remedy now in use here. &c., &c. WH. BUCKNER, M. D.
