

Art of Milking.

The art of milking well is not taught in a hurry. It requires long practice to milk properly, and therefore all the young people on a farm ought to be shown how the labor should be done. It is quite important that this branch of the dairy. should be particularly attended to, for a good milker obtains at least a quart more from the same cow than a poor milker.

The first lesson to be taught to young people is gentleness and kindness to the nows. They never need be treated harshly, in case the business is properly com-menced.—Cows that have been caressed and uniformly well treated, are fond of having the milk drawn from the udder at the regular time of milking, for it gives them relief from the distension of the

Let young people be put to milking the farrow cows first, or such as are to be soon dried, and, then the loss from bud milking will be less injurious. The hand shoul extend to the extremity of the teat, for the milk is then drawn easier.

Young people should be taught to milk as fast as possible. More milk is always obtained by a rapid milker than by a slow one. They should therefore be taught to think of nothing else while milking, and no conversation must be permitted in the

They should sit up close to the cow and rest the left arm gently against her shank. Then if she ruises her foot on account of pain occasioned by soreness of the teats, the nearer the milker sits to her, and the harder he presses his left arm against her leg the less risk will he run of being injured.

Cows may be taught to give down their milk at once-and they might be taught to hold it a long while, and be stripped indefinitely. The best way is to milk quick and not use the cow to long stripping or an after stripping.

Pruning Trees in February.

The pruning of small twigs and shoots can be done at almost any season of the year without material injury to the tree; but when it is necessary to take off large limbs it can be attended to with advautage in February or the early part of March, in which months the tree is not so full of sap as later in the season, when the tree is in vigorous growth.

Large limbs should be taken off with a fine smooth saw, after which the corners of the wound (where the bark meets the wood) may be trimmed smooth with a pruning knife. When the wound is left ragged and torn so that rain will settle in, it will often rot and injure the tree materially.—Some experienced horticulturists recommend that the place left by outting off a limb should be touched over with some cheap paint to prevent the destructive effects of air and moisture. Tar, pitch, and wet clay are often applied for the same purpose.

CURING BACON WITHOUT SMOKE .-As soon as the meat is salted to your taste, which will generally be in about 5 weeks, take it out and if any has been covered with brine let it drain a little. Then take black pepper, finely ground, and dust on the hock end as much as will stick; then hang it up, in a good, clean, dry, airy place, If all this is done as it should be, (it ought to be done now,) you will have no further trouble with it, for by fly-time in spring, your bacon is so well cured ou the outside, that flies and bugs will not disturb it. Curing bacon is like the Irishman's mode of making Punch. He said: "Put in the sugar, then fill up with whiskey and every drop of water you put in spoils the punch."
Just so with curing bacon, after following the directions given above every "drop of smoke you put on spoils the bacon."

WOOD ASHES AS A FERTILIZER.—In nearly all soils ashes are beneficial to cultivated plants, but more so on sandy or gravelly land than clay; the latter being formed of granite rocks, naturally con-tains potash, turnips, beets, carrots, potatoes, etc., contain a very large amount of alkalies, and to such ashes are found to be very beneficial. But the inimediate benefit of ashes is most perceptible upon leguminous plants, such as peas, beans and clover, etc. On grass land it destroys moss sorrel, and all our sour plants. On poor thin soils it should be mixed with peat, barnyard and other organic or vegetable manures. Lime is excellent-for wheat or corn. These two crops grow well wherever clover will grow-in carcous soils. Barley requires a rich loam, finely pulverized. It will not grow well on a sandy or a soft soil. It will always do well on land suitable for turnips. A strong clay, well pulverized and dry, will yield a good crop.—Clay soils always contain more or less like.

Wood ashes are a most excellent manure, and can be used to advantage on almost all soils or crops. Orchards fatten on them. Unleached they act rapidly and powerfully; leached they act more slowly, but continue to act for many years after being applied. The mechanical effect of soils is to render sands more compact, and retentive of water, while they separate and render friable heavy clay.

Some farmers apply ashes as a top dres-sing. This will do very well on pastures and meadows, but they should be ploughed under previous to planting or sowing so that the roots of the plants may thereby be fed. Salt, lime and plaster may be mixed with ashes to advantage, for almost any crop, and upon all soils.

A Story for Wittle Boys. A GOOD NAME

Mr. Stone, the captain of a fine vessel, was one day leisurely wandering on the beach at Portsmouth. His hands were in his pocket, and he was anxiously watching the direction of the wind.

Ever and, anon he turned his gaze at the beautiful vessel before him, and remembered with no small pleasure, that through his own industry and exertions he had attained in it the rank of captain. Mr. Stone was an honest, kind hearted man, and I believe one who embraced and loved the truth as it is in Jesus. He was just engaged in the above contemplations, when he was touched by some one on the arm. He turned round and saw a bright, rosy-faced little boy, of about ten years of age, standing beside him.

"Plense, sir," began the child, before Mr. Stone had time to speak, "don't you want a cabin-boy?"

cabin-boy?"

"Yes, my little fellow, I do; can you tell me of one?"

"Why, sir, I was going to ask if you would take me; I should be very glad, for I want take me; I should be very giad, for I want a place."

"What is your name, my boy? and where do you live?"

"Please, sir, my name's Bill Jones, and I live in London."

"Well," said Mr. Stone, laughing, "that is a very plain answer, certainly. London is a large place, my little man, and Jones not a very urcommon name, so I am afraid I should be a long time finding out where you live when I go to learn your character."

"Please, sir, I ain't got no character."

"No character! oh, you are in a bad case,

"No character! oh, you are in a bad case, then." But feeling intorested in the child, he beckened to him to sit by his side on the bench, and kindly asked him what his father was.

"I ain't got no father, sir, nor yet no mo-ther; they died when I was quite little, and ever since I have lived in London with my ever since I have lived in London with my aunt, at least, at night; I goes to-school all day. But aunt's getting, so old, she says I must begin to work for utyself now."

"Have you no brothers and sisters? and why did you come so far to seek employment?"

why did you come so an arms and I comed here 'cause I always wanted to go to sea."

"But; my boy, what do you mean by saying you have no character?"

"Why, aunt can't write, and so she said could not give me any, and my scoool master could not give me any, and my scoool master yas out, or else he would have given me could not give me any, and my scoool master was out, or else he would have given me one."

'Oh! I understand; you mean you have no written character; though I suppose if I go and see your school-master, I can learn what sort of a boy you are; but I am afraid I have no time now, for as soon as the wind changes I am off. What haveyou got there? (pointing to a book he held in his hand.)

"Please, sir, that's my prize."

"Mr. Stone took it from him, and saw written on the title page, "William Jones, a reward for industry and good conduct, at St. B. school, London.

"Well, said Mr. Stone, "that's capital! I see, you have got a good name at school;" and pleased with the boy's open, frank countenance, and simple manners, he said, "That at all events, is a good character. I have half a mind to take you with me, for I certainly must have some one, and I have not much time to seek for a lad, and I am not going a long voyage this time."

The boy was delighted, and promised to do his best to merit this kindness; and he afterwards fully proved that he deserved the character the school-master had given him, for by his steady good conduct he was eventually raised to the rank only next below the captain himself, thus proving the inestimable value of a good name. Get it, my little friend; do all you can to get it. It will serve you well one of these days, as it did Bill Jones. It is true God looks at the heart, and judges of us by this. But other people cannot see our hearts; and judge us by what we say and do. You mustry and get the approval of good people, as well as of God. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches; and loving favor than silver and gold."—Home. gold."—Home.

INDUSTRY IS TALENT.—We often hear persons explaining how one man fails in the same pursuit, attributing to one a talent for his hydrogen but referred to the talent for his business, but refusing it one a tatch in his business, but refusing it to the other. Yes, without denying that some individuals have talent, we think that the problem in question can be easily solved, by saying that the successful man was industrious, while the other was not. Bulwer, for example, is considered a manyof the highest abilities is considered a man of the highest abilities as a novelist. Yet when Bulwer began his career, he composed with the utmost difficulty, often writing his fictions over twice. He persevered, however, and now stands almost at the head of his class, his latest productions, moreover, being regarded as the best from his pen. Every schoolboy is familiar with the fact that Demosthenes became an orator only by pursuing a similar plan. Nor are illustrations of the great truth, that industry is talent, confined to the highest intellectual pursuits. When Girard trusted the customer without an endorser, who carried his goods home on his shoulder, the shrewd old Frenchman was acting on this truth, deduced from his experience of mankind. All eminent persons whether mechanics, merchants, lawyers, or statesmen were industrious, from Watt and Norris down to Thurlow and William Pitt. Washington, Thurlow and William Pitt. Washington Franklin, Marshall, Madison, and all other distinguished Americans, were busy men. Industry, in short, is talent, nine times out of ten.—New York Teacher.

WHY COMMON SENSE IS RARE .- It is often WHY COMMON SENSE IS RARE.—It is often said that no kind of sense is so rare as common sense; and this is true, simply because common sense is attained by all far more, and as a natural gift far less, than most other traits of character. Common sense is the application of thought to common things. If some important affer occurs, people try then to think, but to little purpose; because, not having exercised their powers on small not having exercised their powers on small things, their powers lack the development necessary for new ones. Hence, thoughtless things, their powers here the development necessary for new ones. Hence, thoughtles people, when forced to act in an affair of importance, blunder through it with no more chance of doing as they should, than one would have bitting a small or distant mark, at a shooting match, it previous practice had not given the power of hitting objects that are large and near. COURSE OF STUDY.

THE RIGHT WAYTO READ.—When the late Jeremiah Evarts was in the sixth year of his age, he came to his father and asked him for a new book. His father asked him if the last book he had given him was worn out. "Oh! no, sir," said Jeremiah, "but I have read all the sense out of it." He meant to say that he had read it thoroughly, and made himself master of all the ideas it contained.

This is the right way to read, in order to profit by reading. By reading in that way, Jeremiah. Everte made great improvements and became one of the wisest and must useful men our country has produced. He never took up a book and allowed his eye to rest on the page, while his thoughts were wandering from one thing to another, so as only now and then to get an idea of what was written. He never took up a book for the sake of passing away time. He aver fook the advice of those who were wiser than he, and read only good books, and he read "all the sense out of them."

DEHANCEMENTS OF THE LIVER AND STOMACH.

Are sources of insanity. From disorder or obstruction, a morbid aftion of the sympathetic and other nerves follows, and the functions of the brain are impaired and decrement. He observed there is no second to the contract them.

to the same cause that thousands die with Cholera, Billious or Xellow Fever, and that most baneful disease, Consumption.

The general want of success in treating diseases of the liver and stomach; has not been a deficiency of pathological knowledge of their functions—but of a suitable composited that would act upon the disease and all the sympathetic affections. That has been gained in these litters: and they can be used by persons with the most delicate stomach with perfect safety—as they at no time debilitate the patient, but give strength and increase the nervous energy. They can be taken at all times, and under all circumstances. No ordinary exposure will prevent them having a salutary effect, and no had effect can result-from an over dose.

If patients will persovere in the use of this remedy, and use it strictly according to directions, it will cure this foregoing diseases in overy instance, if not beyond the power of medicine; it has caused many to enjoy the blessing of renowed health, and in many deserate and abandoned cases, a perfect and rydical cure.

PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIEE,
And feeling the hand of Time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant lills, will find in the use of the Bitters an Elizer that will instill new life into their veins; restore, in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days; build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happliess to their remaining cans.

TONICS WON'T DO! They never did do more than give temperary relief, and they never will 11 is because they don't touch the cataz of the disease. The cause of all ague and billious diseases is the almospheric poison called Missian or Malaria. Noutralize this poison by its xaturan artimotr, and all disease caused by it disappears at once. Rhodes Ever and Ague Cure is this anticle to Nalaria, and mercover it is a perfectly harmiless medicine. The certificate of the celebrated chemist, J. R. Chilton, of NewlYork, to this effect, is attached to every bottle; therefore, if it does no good, it can do no harm.

chiltón, or Newlyork, to this effect, is attached to evolve bottlei; therefore, if it does no good, it can do no harm.

"This is more than can be said of Quinine, Arsenic, or any other tonic in existence, as their use is ruinous to the constitution and trings on DUMB AGUE, which never allows a person to feel perfectly well for a single moment. In illustration of these truths I annex some extracts, from a letter just received from a Physician:

Guonzrown, Onio, March 17, 1860.

JAS. A. RHOADS, Esq.—Dear.SB: Yoursof 2d inst., is at hand. The Cure arrived late last year, and the difficulty in getting any one to purchase it was greatly increased from the fact that a remedy had been introduced which was growing in favor with the public as being better than using Quinino—not knowing. I presume, that the remedy they used to excape taking Quinina contained the DIGU TISELE!

"Whis remedy (known as "Smith's Tonic,") would in variably BIEAR an Ague, but it did not Cure it, as it would often return with renewed vigor. This one circumstance I deemed in your favor, if I could institute a test compacison between it and your CURE. The following is the centre, your "Cure," all of which were cases of "Quotiding They had tried Quinno and other romedies, occasionally missing a chill, but it was last in all such cases, slowly wearing them out, and laying the foundate more others and accreed in effecting if radical cure of all three of these cases with your remedy, and they have that a distinct. In all three of these cases the "Smith's Tonic, ind been used, and would, as before started, break the chill, but after n period or two had elapsed it would return.

I this cheek will be no difficulty now in giving to cases with your remedy, and they have not had a chill since. In all three of these cases the "Smith.'s Tonic.' and there a period or two had elapsed it would return.

I think there will be no difficulty' new in 'giving to your "Cure" the vantage ground of any other remedy now in use here. &c., &c. Wh. BUCKRER, M. D. RIIODES FEEER and AGUE CURE, or ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA, the only harmlesg remedy in "existence is equally certain as a PREVENTIVE, as a "CURE." Take it when you feel the chills conting on, and you will never have a slig to one.
