low men, would be a fury and rush like a madman through burning cities and man gled varcasses of the slain, with the object of trampling upon the rights of mankind, and enjoy a proud preeminence, over his fellows, and find pleasure in such dia-bolical pursuits? Would his soul be absorbed in enterprises of ambition, tyranny, oppression' war and devastation? Can it be supposed that he would fawn on statesmen and princes, and violate every moral principle, in order to obtain a pension, a post of opulence or honor? Would a man trained up as he should have been trained in the family and in the school-room, unertake the cruel and murderous task of dragging his poor fellow man to the stake because he worshipped the one only "Living and True God" according to the dic-tates of a truly enlightened judgment and the divine injunctions of the inspired volume? Would he banish men, women and children from their homes, laden with chains and fetters/ to pine away in mise ry and die forlorn and forgotten in a far distant land, merely because they asserted the rights to which they were entitled as citizens and as mitional beings? Nay, it is scarcely possible to suppose that such passions and conduct would be displayed by the man whose correct moral habits were fully established in childhood and youth. In proof of the position here taken, it is only necessary to quote a single passage from the sacred record, and it is absolute. "Train up a child in the way it should go and when he is old he 1. will not depart from it." What might we fondly hope for if this training should become general amongst all the nations and tribes of the earth ? We answer & that soon the oppressor's rod should be rent from his hand and broken to shivers, the 'yrants yoke should no more gall the neeks of his miserable captives, soon would be realized the cessation - of arms, the termination of wars and devastation and liberty would be proclaimed to vassels, and righteousness would run down our streets as a mighty river, and a spirit, congenial to that of the inhabitants of heaven would be displayed by the rulers of nations, and the families of earth -We should no longer look with tearful eyes and agonized hearts on the thousands and tons of thousands of our ruined race, who by their degrading pursuits, and vile pussions, have contaminated the society of our world, and entailed misery on our species. Moval training, if imparted under the direction of heaven, will moderate the pride of man and pro-mote humility; which, without any other consideration, is an inculculable blestain journey through life. My future fortune is unknown but to Him, in whose benefit.". Thus, as this, great man ascribed all his greatness to the" Divine Good-ness," so should the children of our schools be taught to attribute every physical, moral, and intellectual endowment to the divine beneficence. The proper culture of the human heart tends to ennoble the faculties, and raise the soul to God; and above grovelling affections, and vicious pur-sing, when you consider that pride is one of the distinguishing characteristics of poor, fallen humanity, to which perhaps can be traced, as the chief cause; all the contentions, wars, devastations, and am-"bitious projects of slavery, despotisms, &c., which have not only demoralized, but desolated our sinful world Hence the great necessity of connecting the moral and religious training, with the physical and intellectual culture of the children and youth of our common schools. It is very graphically said by an expert english writer, that a "Little" learning is a dangerous thing," and it Sec. Sec.
