Visit to a Missouri Farm.

We recently visited the farm of Mr Richard Gentry, of Pettis county, Missour and, as we have frequently seen flattering accounts of large farms in other States, we have concluded to furnish a descrip tion of this farm to our readers, in order to show that Missouri is not behind her sister States in large farms or good farm-

The farm of Mr Gentry contains seven thousand acres of land, three thousand five hundred acres of which are under excellent fence, and in a high state of cultivation. It is divided, 'chiefly, into lots of forty acres-making over thirty miles of fence on the farm. The tince is mostly made of rails, with stakes and riders, and kept up in the best condition. There is, however, a mile and a quarter of post and board fence on the faim, and some two miles of Osage orange hedge, which, however, has not been turned yet. There are on the farm sixty-five large gates, of the best construction, and about the same number of draw bars. The gates and bars are made in a large carpenter shop, in rainy weather, when the hands can be employed at nothing else All of the implements are put in repairs at such times, and many of the simpler ones manufactured. About two-thirds of the farm consists of high, rolling prairie, of an excellent quality-of-soil, and the other third is in timber, immediately adjoining the prairie.

There are about fourteen hundred acres of the farm set in blue grass, seven hun dred and fifty acres in clover and timothy meadow, three hundred and sixty acres in corn, one hundred and sixty in oats, twenty acres in Hungarian millet, and the balance of the farm under fence is in woods pasture.

There are on the farm twenty-seven large artificial ponds. many of them of much depth, affording stock an abund ance of water at all seasons of the year. During our visit, three stone-masons were employed in erecting large stone pillars in various parts of the farm, at the outlets of streams, in which large water-gates were to be hung, so that in case of freshets which are common on large prairies, the gates would open by the action of the water, and close when the water had passed, and prevent the fence from being washed, and the escape of stock from one field to another. One of the most striking features observable is, that on this immense farm not a single weed is to be seen. Even the fence corners, that common receptacle of all that is foul on most farms, are us clean of weeds as any city lawn. What do farmers who have only two or threhundred acres under cultivation say tothis? Here are upwards of thirty miles of fonce, without a weed or brian surrounding it, while many farms, with only a to seed the whole neighborhood! The whole farm is a puttern of neutness. The hands pass over every field as often as it is necessary, and pull every burr, briar, and weed that dare show itself. This has been done for many years, until the weeds have been subdued.

Mr. Gentry has been a large sheepgrower Some fifteen years ago, finding the market dull for horses and mules, he concluded to try sheep. He accordingly procured from Kentucky some four hun. dree head of the best Saxon and Spanish merino ewes, as the foundation for the future flock. These he raised for a number of years, increasing the size of his flock until it ranged for many years from two thousand eight hundred to three thousand head. He went to great expense in procuring the best bucks, and, by judicious mana superior flock. For the last four or five years e has been crossing his flocks with the French merino, paying as high as $150 per head for the bucks. He has some imported bucks of this breed now on his farm. He thinks the French merino superior to the Saxony or Spanish merino, as possessing more constitution greater weight of carcass, much greater weight of wool, though not of as fine a quality, though sufficiently so to command as high a price in the market. He has had the very best success in raising sheep his flocks have never been affected with any contagious disorder, and many of the diseases so prevalent in the East have been entirely unknown in his herd. He has recently reduced the size of his flock to about one thousand head, for the pur pose of giving more attention to raising mules. He is already quite extensively engaged in this business, but intends to give it more prominence hereafter

There are kept constantly employed on the farm twelve grown hands and six boys Our readers may wonder how so large farm can be so well-managed by this small number of hands. It was a wooder to us until we saw the perfect system of Mr Gentry's plans. Everything moves like clock-work. There is a time for every thing, and everything must be done in its time. There is no hurry or flurrybut every thing moves along evenly and quietly. Euch piece of work is arrended to till it is done. But system is not flie only scoret of success. All of the best labor-saving implements and machines are used by him, so that with one man he is able, in many kinds of work, to perform the labor of ten men. By this means he is able to accomplish this vas amount of work.

Mr. Gentry has a number of buildings erected, in which he carries on, for his own use, various operations not common among farmers. For instance, there is a large mill house, where all the meal for the family and stock is ground, and where various other mills and unchines are used There is a large slaughter-house, with kettles set in arches, and an excellent apparatus for rendering out lard. Then there is a tool-house, a carpenter shop, a harness-house, a shop for making shingles &c. There is also an excellent pair of Fairbank's cuttle-scoles, which will weigh six tons at each operation, with all the appendages for weighing cattle, sheep, swine, huy, grain, &c.

But the next question is, will farming on such a magnificient scale pay? Of course it.will. Any kind of honorable business, managed as well as this farm is would pay large profits. Upon our in quiry, Mr. Gentry informed us that the gross receipts from this farm last yea amounted to over twenty-seven thousand dollars, a larger sum than the President of the United States receives annually.
