A toast recently given, runs thus: "Our parents; the only tenders who never misplaced a switch."

Now, you may laugh at that -- so did I -but where could you find a greater fib? Many a time and oft have phrents hid the switch on their children's hacks,-when they should have applied it to their own; many a time has the lash, which should have descended upon the back of the favorite, fallen upon his much abused brother's. There is nothing 'in creation which parents so often misplace as the switch, and it need not of necessity be a birchen rod or a ferule; there are switches which cut deeper than either, of which many a ruined man and woman cun

I knew two children-one blundering, but honest, sincere, self reliant, speaking the plain truth on all occasions without qualification, making his requests in few words, and smothering his disappointment as best he might, when refused. The other, wiley, diplomatic, Chester fieldian, ever with a soft word on the tip of his tongue, to pave the way for the much desired boon, which was never refused, so winning, so courteous, so appurent was the seeker. Follow those two children. See the latter in the playground, boasting to his young associates, what he has got, from the "old gentleman" or the "old lady"—boasting what he will yet get-boasting that he knows how to do it; rehearsing to them the disgusting pantomine of the caress, the respectful, deferential attitude which he uses on such occasions: Follow the other to his little room at the top of the house; see him sitting in gloomy silence, too proud to weep, too proud to complain, brooding over the injustice done himnot hating the fraternal owner of "the coat of many colors," no thanks to those who gave them both birth, but looking into the far, dim future with that wistful longing which comes of unloved; preco-cious childhood; sitting there—with his own hands turning the poisoned arrow round and round in the festering wound, incapable of extracting it, and yet knowing no balm to assuage its intolerable an-.. guish.

Follow out their two histories. See the Chesterfielding favorite sent to College, contracting long livery-stable, hotel, and tailor's bills, with a perfect reliance upon his diplomatic abilities to "set it all right with the old gentleman;" thanking him, with his thumb and finger to his nose, for his unparalleled generosity to a son so unworthy; alluding delicately to his pride in him as a father, and trusting some day to make a proper return for all his goodness, etc., etc. See the "stupid boy," who is summarily set down to be wanting in eleverness, accepting in silence this verdict, and the consequent disposal of his time in some uncongenial, distasteful employment; till at last, wearied out by the silent drop that descends mercilessly and unremittingly, hour by hour, on his tortured soul, he rushes from the home which has been a home only in name, and wanders forth, with the gnawing pain, in his heart, for silent com-Merciful Godd what is to keep him? His blood is young and warm, his heart throbbing wildly in his breast for what every human being yearns for, and need never be ashamed of yearning forsympathy—love!
Years passed on. The College-boy returns, with more knowledge of horses. wine and women, than of Greek, Latin and Mathametics-returns, to receive the congratulations of partial friends, that he has passed off for pure gold the glittering brass of his showy superficiality. The truant's name is never mentioned, or if so, with the hope, not that he may be kept from evi disgrace us." Meanwhile, the wanderer lies anguishing on a bed of sickness in foreign country. Woman's heart is the same in all lands, when pity knocks at it, else had he closed his eyes in sunny Italy. Pity he had not-pity he returned to be asked, with cold tones and averted eyes, why he did not stay there. Pity that he could not smother that unconquerable longing which approaching death brings, to look our last upon our native land. Pity that errors born of a neglected childhood and forsaken youth should have been held up to him by the pharisaical hands which goaded him into them, even at the tomb's portal. Pity that sinful man may not be merciful, as a holy, pitying God. I ask you, and you, and you, who have woven the "coat of many colors" for some one of your household—you who, by your partiallity and shortsightedness are fostering the rank weeds, and trampling under foot the humble flowers-you who are bringing up children whose hearts shall one day be colder to each other, than the dead in their graves-you, upon whom shall be visited—alas! too lateevery scalding tear of agony and disappoint ment from out young eyes, which should have beaued only with hope and gladness; I ask every parent who is doing this, if he or she is willing that his or her child shall grow up by these means to loose his faith in man, and sadder still, in God?—Fanny Fern.

THE FOLLOWING ILLUSTRATION is given of the wit of Mirza Mohammed Ibraham, the Oriental scholar, who filled for fifteen years the chair of Persian at Hullegbur: Dining one duy with a gentleman well known for his conviviality, the decenters halted so long before the Mirza that the host exclaimed with a little impatience, "Pass the bottle. WILLOUGHBY'S PATENT THE FIRST PREMIUM DRILL.

THE FIRST PREMIUM DRILL.

The Farmers of Cumberland county are invited to tail at the Carlish Foundry and examine the above Drill, which we are now manufacturing. WILLOUGH-BYS INDIA RUBBER SPRING DRILL is unquestionably the very best Drill now in use. It was awarded the First Premium at the Pennsylvania State Fair held in Philadelphia in October, 1857. It was awarded the First Premium at the Cumberland County Fair last fall, and has received the First Premium at every fair where it has been exhibited, with but one exception. Its superiority above all others is so apparent as to only need an examination.

For seeding on fields containing stones or other obstructions it is peculiarly adapted. The depositing tubes of this Drill are so connected with India Rubber Springs, that when they meet with any obstruction structions it is peculiarly analyses. In a superactive tubes of this Brill are so connected with india Rabber Springs, that when they meet with any obstruction they will spring back, pass over the obstruction and inmediately regain their former position. Any rock or stump not over 18 inches high can be conveniently passed over without stoppage or injury to the Brill. The feeding apparatus of this Brill is also entirely new, being compased of Vulcanized India Rubber Rollers, by means of Which the seed is not discharged internittingly but in a constant stream, and no irregularity of ground or change of speed will vary the amount sowed on the acre. It will sow which tay the amount sowed on the acre. It will sow wheatty-rye, onts and barley equally well, and in any desired quantity, without the possibility of choking or breaking the grain. It also saves grass seed. But without further collarging upon the merits of this brill we would prefer to have Farmer call at our establishment and examine it, combent that after seeing they will be satisfied as to its superiority and find it the very machine to suit the farmer and the field.
