Poultry-How to Prepare, Kill, Dress, and Market. From the American Agriculturist.

We went through Fulton Market on November 2nd to purchase a little extra poultry for a special occasion, and though there were turkeys enough, we could searcely had a young tender one, looking of fit to early home." The fault was not in the animals themselves, for there were young ones enough; and some of them.in. fair flesh, but they were so bunglingly dressed, so torn, blood-covered, and otherwise bedanbed, that a sight of them before being browned in cooking was enough to greatly diminish the pleasure of eating them afterwards. We took the best we could find, at 15 cents a pound; but for the particular occasion, and or almost any other, we would have prefer-red to pay double price for a good look-ing bird; -- And this is about the feeling of every purchaser of poultry. They will generally say or feel, "give me this small neat tarkey at eighteen cents per pound, rather than that large, slovenly dressed affair at twelve cents," even though, the larger one be fatter and tende er. The same is the case in regard to other poultry. The truth is, poultry raisers have no idea of the dollars they lose for want of a few pence worth of time in dressing the animals well, and sending them to market in good condition .- Last year, with the assistance of skillful dealers, we prepared and published some concise directions on his topic, which, from the importance of the subject, we will repeat in PREPARING .- Make them fat. A grain fed, plump, fat fowl will sell for double the price per pound of a lean one. A liberal teeding for a few weeks before kill--ing,-will-nearly double-the-weight-anddouble the price, making a quadruple return for the finishing off food.

KILLING.-Keep them from bruising themselves. Secure the wings the instant ther are caught, and tie them behind the back. Tie the legs together, hang them upon a pole, and then cut off the head with a sharp knife, leaving as long a neck as possible. Let them hang until they bleed etean. Keep them from food for two or three hours before killing. Any grain left in the grop sours and material ly injures the flesh, if kept long before cooking.

Daessing.--Pick them dry, taking particular case not to tear or bruise the lesh. If scalded at all, let it be done quickly and in water not quite boiling hot . Be careful not to rub off the outer thin skin trom the legs. If not to be packed in boxes, after picking dry and scalding; wash them in clean warm soapsud- and 'plump'' them, that is, hold them in boiting water about five seconds. If to be parked for carrying a long distance do not wet them at all, except to wash neck, ent off the neck bone, draw the loose skin over, tie it tightly, cut off the boody portion a little way above the sing, and wash off any blood, wiping it d y. . i his will keep them clean and bloodess, and increase their saleableness.

MARKETING .- Let them them hang until entirely cold, and then pack in rye straw, it to be obtainable, putting them into box s holding not over two hundred pounds. The packing straw should be bright and clean, and it will be greatly improved by drying it in a warm oven be fore using. Put straw between the carcas es, and around the sides of the boxenough to act as a spring to prevent bruis ng, and pack straw under the cover A little care of the kind described above will greatly merease the market value. Most persons keep back all their poultry until Unristinas or New Year day. This is not a ways the best policy. We have noticed for se al years-that-poultry-is-searcestand one nest here for a few weeks before the howeys. As soon as settled cold weather crives, poultry, if dressed and proved a above in tight boxes, may be sen from the most Western States to this market. Contract for the through expenses, and send to some reliable commission dealer, who will take the packages in charge on their arrival, and dispose of them at once, and return the proceeds, less a small sum for the trouble—usually about five per cent. of the price obtained. Another hint. Always send with your packages a careful invoice, or statement, of just what you forwarded, and your wishes in regard to it—together with your name and address. We make this suggestion because a dealer here informed us but yesterday that more than half the packages came to him without any invoice or other information as to whom they - came from, or the kind and amount, and . .. the wishes of the seller in regard to them -this being usually left for a letter, which frequently arrives after the poultry is sold for should have been. Poultry should also arrive two or three days before special holidays, instead of a day after. This of teu makes a difference of ten to twenty der cent. in the proceeds.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS' Experience has rendered Dr. K. a most successful practitioner in the cure of all diseases of a private nature; manhoad's debility, as an impediment to marriage; nervous and sexual infimilities, disease of the skill, and those arising from abuse of inferrury. TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood and which if not referred in due time, not only heart serious obstacles to matrimental happiness, but give rise to avacties of protracted, instituous and dexastating rise to avacties of protracted, instituous and devastating riso to wave les of protracted, insiduous and dexastating affections.

Fow of those who give way to this permicious practice are aware of the consequences until they find the ner yous system shatterd, feel strange, and unaccountable sensat one, and vague fems of the mind. (See pages 27, 28, 29, of Dr K's book on "Feil-Preservation.")

The unfortunate thus affected becomes feeble, is unable to labor with a caustomed yigor, or to apply his mind to study; his step is tridy and weak; he is dull, irresolute, and engages even in bits sports with less energy than usual.

If he emancipate bimsolf before the practice has done its worst, and enter matrimony, his harrisge is unfruit ul, and his sense tells him that this is caused by his early toilles. These are considerations which should awaken the attention of all who are similarly situated.

| DOES DISEASE ORIGINATE IN IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD?

This is a question of vital insportance, and one which has never been satisfactorily disposed of by the professors who teach the healing art. Some maintain—and expectally the old school Physicians—that life lives in the blood, and therefore all diseases originate in it—but modern science avers that ailments have their origination in both the solids and fluids of the body. That the latter preponderate, bowever, is a fixed fact, and medical skill has clearly demonstrated that at least two thirds of the ille that human flesh is heir to, have their source in an
