CONGRESSIONAL. A press of other matter, has crowded out our usual report of Congressional proceedings. our readers do not lose much by it however. as very little business of a public nature has been acted on finally. To day is the last of the session. Since our last the army appropriation bill has passed . The amount appropria-

made by the Investigating Committee, in regard to alleged frauds in the Naval contracts. I fulfilled in his own person. - He says :---The report of the majority censures the general policy which has characterized the giving out of these contracts ; but the minority reshows, by the testimony, of the witnesses -brought-before -them--how--flovernment-con tracts have been "farmed out," for the benefit of those who contributed to the election of the President We shall endeavor, to find room for a portion of this report in our next. So many important measures have been postponed until the few last days of the session, that we shall hardly be able to tell what really has been done, until the doings and misdoings of the present Congress, shall have become a part of the history of the country. PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

REV. O. H. 'LIFFANY'S LECTURE.-The lecture on Thursday evening last, in the Emory M. E. Caurch by Rev. Q. H. Tiffany, was attended by a very fine audience. The subject of the legture was ' Progress ; ' and it was treated with the crudition of the scholar. and delivered with that eloquence of manner and grace of diction for which the reverend gentleman is so justly celebrated. We should ing of Miss Bremer's new work says : like to give an analysis of the lecture, but in truth our mind was so frequently carried way by the eloquent passages and beautiful magery with which it abounded, that we lost the thread of the discourse, and an attempt now to unraret the skein, would be an utte failure. It is sufficient to say that the audince appeared to be interested throughout and anifested by frequent bursts of applause, their appreciation of the abilities of the lecurer as a writer and orator The next lecture will probably he given by Dr. Elder, of which due notice will be given.
