The resolutions being adopted, Col John W. Forney was introduced to the meeting and received with tremendous applause. He said: OLD FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS It gives me sincere gratification to appear before you on this impressive occasion. However the circumstances by which we äre surrounded may sadden our hearts, it is cheering to one like myself, who has been buffeted by the varying winds of fortune, to come back to his old stamping ground and be welcomed by uch a demonstration as this. [Applause] The spot whereon I stand is filled with peculiarly pleasant associations to me. In this very neighborhood I began life as a printer boy, and within the circumference of five or six hundred yards I published two newspapers, advocating certain definitive principles, up to the period of my removal to Philadelphia. Situated as I now am in another sphere, I often look back upon this old town with singularly agreeable feelings. I remember the old court house, which seems, at least to my eyes, to have been removed by some rude and wanton sacrilege from the spot where it so long stood. I remember the old signs which used to look down upon me from this Centre Square. I remember the men who are gone -names honorable. names never to be forgotten, names always to be cherished. I remember too, gentle men, that on one occasion, in April of 1856, in this very place, and probably from this very stand, I participated in the reception of a distinguished citizen who came back from a foreign land, bearing, as we supposed in his hand, the olive branch that was to still the troubled waters and make us all peaceful and united. Strange to say, you, my venerable friend

[Dr. Muhlenburg], also presided on that interesting occasion, and headed a vast throng of people who welcomed this statesman back to his own, hone, indulging with them the hope that he would be the saviour of his country. Your presence, as chairman of this great meeting, to-day,

[A voice-Three cheers for the patriot about a quarter to 9 A. M., Major Sturgis daughter's of Lancaster.]

The windows of the houses surrounling the square were crowded with fair ladies, smiling down upon the crowd, and the cheers that rose in response to proaching. This was supposed to be Sigel's the call fully showed that the patriot brigade, and they at once formed into line of daughters of Lancaster were appreciated by her gallant sons.

Colonel Forney-I intended to pay Colonel Forney—I intended to pay was a dialema. Lyon was dead. Sigel routed, them an extended compliment, but the and the forces he had engaged in the rear, cheers you have given are so much better now united with their main column, marching han anything I could say, that I rest forward, and already engaged in deadly conhere [Laughter and applause.]

A MATRIMONIAL CARD.—I have lived olitary long enough; I want somebody ness and heroism, inspired his men with ento talk at, quarrel with, then kiss and thusiasm, and led them into the bottest of the make up again. Therefore I am open to battle, driving the enemy before them, and proposals from young ladies and widows f more than average respectability, tolerably tame in disposition and hair of any color than red. As nearly as I can judge tre and right flank of the enemy, broken and of myself, I am not over eighty nor under paoic stricken, fell back in disorder. At this twenty five years of age. In height I am either five feet eight or eight feet five, it best to retreat and having collected the forget which. Weight 135, 315, or wounded of the army, he retreated in good 531, one of these; recollect each figure 531, one of these; recollect each figure perfectly well but as to their true arrangement, am somewhat puzzled. Have a Sigel held the rank of colonel. Sturgle gave whole suit of hair, dyed by nature and free from dandruff. Butternut brindle, soan disclosed to Sturgis that Sigel held no tinged peagreen. Nose blunt according commission, and he again resumed the comto the Ionic order of architecture, with a mand, and reached Rolla in safety. For his touch of the Composite, and mouth between a catfish and an alligator's, made especially for oratory and the reception large oysters.

Ears palmated, long and elegantly of dog hair, moss and briar bush, well behaved, fearfully luxuriant. I am sound in limb, and on the nigger question. Wear boots No. 9, when corns are troublesome, and can write poetry by the mile with double rhyme on both edges, to read backward and forward crosswise, diagonally. Can play the jews harp and bass drum, and whistle Yan kee Doodle in Spanish. Am very cor rect in morals, and first-rate at ten have a regard for the Sabbath, and nev or drink, only when invited. Am a do mestic animal and perfectly docile, when towels are clean and shirt buttons all right. If I possess a predominating virtue, it is that of forgiving every enemy whom I deem it hazardous to handle.-Lsay my prayers every night, mosquitoe my sleep. I want some one to tell me. Money is no object, as I never was troub led with any, never expect to be.

Some persons would seem to have right to spend their lives in trifling, since nature set the example by trifling when she made them.

An Irishman tells of a fight which there was but one whole nose lef tay-kittle."

General Samuel D. Sturgis. General Samuel Davis Sturgis was born in Shippensburgh, Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, in the year 1822. At the age of twenty he was appointed a cadet at "West Point," and graduated in 1826, in the same class with Gen. McClellan. The same year he was or-dered to join the army under General Taylor

He was taken prisoner on the 20th of February, 1847, a few days before the battle of Buena Vista. He and one other man, white information General Taylor had of the exact whereabouts of the Mexican army, which ring undertaking.

Shortly after the battle he was exchanged as a prisoner, and left immediately for the he was sent to California, where he remained two years, performing hard service. Afterwards he was ordered to "New Mexico," was signal officers, and while they were discussing the probability of retreating a column in front bearing the United States flag, was seen apbattle and prepared to join columns; but what a surprise when the enemy opened fire upon them and showed their true colors. Here flict with the remnent of the little army with a new commander, known to not more than half his men. But under all these discouraging circumstances Sturgis, by his own coolthen turning on some other points of their line, he would break and throw it into confusion, and so continued for three hours, giving orders and leading his men, until the cenfavorable moment, when the amunition of one him the command. On the following day they continued retreating towards Rolls. It was services on this occasion he was made a brigadier general. The army had good reason to rejoice that a competent officer was so soon found after the fall of the heroic Lyon. In a letter to the writer after the battle he stated's that "it was a hard fought battle. We drove. haped. My whiskers are a combination the enemy three times from the field, but we were too far from our base of operations without water, and with no reinforcements." C. B. BROADBERRY.

On taking, command Sturgis convoked his

> An old gentleman traveling some years ago, inside the Bath mail, had two ladies, sisters' for companions. The younger, an invalid, soon fell asleep, and the ld gentleman expressed his regret to see so charming a young lady in ill health,-"Ah, yes indeed," signed the sister, ", a disease of the heart." "Dear me !" was the sympathetic response, "at her see? Ossification, perhaps?" "Oh no, sir, a lieutenant." lieutenant !"

"Mr. Smith, I wish to speak to you privately. Permit me to take you apart a few moments." Smith-(who wasn't the least frightened) -"Certainly, permitting; and as to whether I snore in sir, if you'll promise to put me together
