Original Poetry.

THE BEAUTIFUL.

Through all the realms of nature wide The varied forms of beauty glide; I see them in the blushing rose...

A Story for the Little Folks.

ABOUT AN OLD PICTURE.

Not many years ago there lived a very rich man in the south of France. He had been a sea captain, and by his long voyages to distant parts of the earth...

And how glad was the sick man to see the handsome young gentleman before him!

And how glad was the sick man to see the handsome young gentleman before him! He could hardly believe him to have been the little Andrew he had met, ragged and hungry, one winter morning...

No body ever saw such a good picture as the one before him.

No body ever saw such a good picture as the one before him. "Now," said the auctioneer, "who bids for this splendid portrait of the old sea-captain? It is perfect. What am I offered for the picture?"

One Way to get a "Smile."

If half the cleverness exhibited in petty swindling were only directed to purposes of honesty, our list of successful business men would be largely increased. But the poverty that sharpens the wit blunts the moral sense, and roges glory in their skillful subterfuges.

Looking in on the War.

The shorter the introduction the better. I always liked the blunt "Brother Jones," "Brother Brown" much better than the circumlocution style of pretended refinement...

PROGRESS OF EVENTS.

I spent much of the two months preceding the evacuation of Corinth in the field, sleeping and eating with the soldiers, though not compelled to share in either their bridge building or fighting.

ILLUSTRATIVE INCIDENTS.

The readers of the Advocate know already that the sacrifices of the "institution" has considerably vanished. It may be interesting to them to read, as it has been for me, of some of its operations.

THE FREE STATES.

Although many families in the free States are mourning over the loss of their cherished idols, the condition of these States themselves present a most gratifying prospect when contrasted with the condition of all the seceded and most of the Border States.

THE LOWER CLASSES.

Who are they? The toiling millions, the laboring men and women, the farmers, the mechanic, the artist, the inventor, the producer? Far from it.

REBEL TREATMENT OF OUR PRISONERS.

In a recent speech Gen. Wilcox, who has lately been released from Richmond, said: "I would be glad to tell you all the particulars of my captivity and confinement, because they would furnish the best possible evidence of the real character of the vile conspiracy raised against the Union."

A CORRESPONDENT FROM THE ARMY.

One of them with features remarkable for prominence of nose, exhibiting to the other a dagger-point of herself, and they were engaged in discussing his merits, when an elderly lady got in.

Terrible Story of the Rebellion.

A correspondent of the New York Times, who dates from Springfield, Missouri, tells the following sad tale of the consequences of rebellion:

THE TENDER MERCIES OF SECESSION.

I have just heard the sad story of a widow who has buried two sons and a daughter since the outbreak of rebellion. Her three children all fell by the hand of death.

THE TOLLING MILLIONS.
