

The Herald.

CARLISLE, PA.
Friday, Oct. 2, 1863.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
No. 37 Park Row, New York, and 6 State St., Boston, are our Agents for the Herald, and are authorized to take subscriptions and send them to us at our lowest rates.

"OUR COUNTRY RIGHT OR WRONG."
Union State Nominations for 1863.

PLEDGED TO A SUPPORT OF THE GOV-ERNMENT—THE ENFORCEMENT OF
THE CONSTITUTION—THE EXECUTION OF THE LAWS—THE TRIUMPH OF THE "STARS AND STRIPES" AND A STRICT MAINTENANCE OF THE UNION.

UNION NOMINATIONS.

FOR GOVERNOR,
ANDREW G. CURTIN,
OF CENTRE COUNTY.

FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT, DANIEL AGNEW,
OF DEWEY COUNTY.

Union County Ticket.

Assembly,
A. G. MARIATT, of Mechanicsburg.

Prothonotary,
EMORY STROCK, of Monroe.

Clerk of the Courts,
DANIEL MILLER, of Newton.

Register,
CHAS. E. KAUFMAN, S. Middle'n.

Treasurer,
JACOB ZUG, Jr., of Carlisle.

Commissioner,
SAMUEL W. SHARPE, (3 yrs.)

JACOB SENNEL, (2 yrs.)

Director of the Poor,
JOHN W. FOUNT, of Penn.

Auditor,
PETER S. ARTZ, of Shippensburg.

GRAND MASS MEETING

OF THE UNCONDITIONAL

Union Men

OF Cumberland County.

At a preliminary meeting of the Union Executive Committee, held in the Borough of Carlisle, September 14th inst., it was determined to hold a Grand Mass Meeting of the Unconditional Union Men
of Cumberland County,

IN CARLISLE,

On Saturday, October 10th, 1863.

The untoward circumstances in which our country has been placed by the most wicked rebellion that has ever taken place in the history of the world, demands of those who truly love their Country and prefer the perpetuation of institutions which give breath and life to Liberty throughout the world to be watchful and vigilant in this our beloved Country's hour of extreme peril. It is necessary to thwart the machinations of those whose motto is "rule or ruin," whose hearts are desirous that the South should triumph; who are constantly denouncing the Administration in its efforts to crush the rebellion, by the very means which the legislative branch of the National Government has granted it, and who would rather "rule in Hell than serve in Heaven." It is most necessary, therefore, that the true, loyal men of the Country should give on their armor to meet these dastards and defeat their purposes.

We say then, to the people of Cumberland County come to Carlisle on Saturday the 10th of October next, and show these disguised traitors that you will understand their purposes, and are fully prepared to meet and deal with them as they so richly deserve.

Let us have a Grand Rally—A glorious meeting. To the ramparts, soldiers! and prepare for the warfare! Young men of Cumberland County—old men of Cumberland rally and come in your strength and pride, and join your voices with others in swelling a shout for freedom—for free men, that will be heard from the Delaware to the Lakes. Come with drums beating, and banners flying. Come Republicans, Come Union men, come Democrats and hear the principles of the Union Party expounded and discussed.
Honest Democrats, we invite you, and insist upon it, that you come and hear for yourselves. Come one, come all, devote one day to the consideration of the mighty interests involved in the coming contest!
Eminent speakers from abroad will be present, whose names will be announced in due time. By order of the Executive Committee.

J. M. WEAKLEY, Chairman.

Meeting in Carlisle.

On Thursday evening next, there will be a meeting of the loyal Union citizens of Carlisle and vicinity in RHEEM'S HALL.

Miss ANNA E. DICKINSON, of Philadelphia, will address the meeting.

Miss Dickinson is a young lady of remarkable talent, has done inculcating good in stirring the loyal heart of the North with her thrillingly eloquent words. Don't fail to hear her. The ladies are particularly requested to attend.

When the war broke out in 1861 it was common for the Democrats to allege that nine tenths of the troops were Democrats.

The same men are now opposed to allowing the soldiers of the army to cast their votes.

They must see that in the hearts of their friends there has been a marvelous conversion.

Judge Woodward's Disloyalty.

In the early part of the present canvass Col. Toon, in a speech delivered at Mount Holly Springs, in which he reviewed the political record of Judge Woodward, asserted that the Judge was in effect a secessionist. He made copious quotations from his (Woodward's) speeches clearly establishing the charge, and then, as additional and entirely trustworthy testimony to the same end, referred to Hon. H. B. Wright, Judge Hale & Judge Lyon, whose recent personal interviews with Judge Woodward, fixed the truth of the charge of disloyalty firmly upon him. R. E. Shapley, chairman of the Democratic standing com-tee of this county, awaking to the fact that the loyal Democrats of this county were fast deserting the support of a candidate whose entire record was so black with reason, saw that unless some judge was resorted to for the purpose of deciding this loyal element of his party that their cause was utterly hopeless.

To accomplish his evil purposes, the mean trick of misrepresenting Col. Toon's statement was resorted to, and Mr. S. writes a letter to Gov. Woodward, giving the name of Judge Hale as the authority used by Col. Toon, and requesting him to refute the charge. To this Mr.
Woodward replies by saying that he never knew Judge Hale, and that he is opposed to secession, and the "fanaticism which caused it."

Thus by the most despicable cheat and lie, the copperheads have attempted to cover up the infamous sentiments of Gov. Woodward.

But Col. Toon, in a rejoinder which we give below, so fully and entirely refutes the calumny, and fixes Judge Woodward's status so unmistakably, that he leaves us nothing else to say but that the fortunes of a party whose success depends upon such pitiful petting must be long indeed. But to the rejoinder:

A. K. RICHMOND, Esq.

Sir:—Your attention has been called to a correspondence between R. E. Shapley, Esq., and Judge Woodward, in which I am reported, by the former gentleman, to have said, at a public meeting that "he (Mr. Toon) had been informed that a certain Judge Hale, said that in a recent conversation with him, you (Judge Woodward) had expressed yourself as a believer in the doctrine of secession and in favor of an immediate recognition of the South."

My answer to all this is, that I never made such a statement. Judge Hale is as much unknown to me, as he possibly can be to Judge Woodward, and I certainly never defied him or referred to him in any authority. If, however, it affords the parties to that correspondence any pleasure to put up a man of straw and then knock him down, I have no objection, but I do most emphatically protest against being misrepresented and falsified.

At the meeting referred to, I contended that Judge Woodward was a secessionist, and that I could prove it by his published statements, and by the reports of his conversations with individuals. I then quoted from his speech of the 18th December, 1862, and showed that his sentiments had never been changed, and that he had been consistent in his conduct and platform of the convention which nominated him as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Government and active sympathy with the traitors of the South. I then quoted from his speech of the 18th December, 1862, and showed that his sentiments had never been changed, and that he had been consistent in his conduct and platform of the convention which nominated him as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Government and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the convention which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and active sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his sentiments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and platform of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Govern-
ment and active sympathy with the traitors
of the South. I then quoted from his
speech of the 18th December, 1862, and
showed that his sentiments had never been
changed, and that he had been consistent
in his conduct and platform of the conven-
tion which nominated him as exhibiting
bitter hostility to the Government and ac-
tive sympathy with the traitors of the South.

I then quoted from his speech of the 18th
December, 1862, and showed that his senti-
ments had never been changed, and that he
had been consistent in his conduct and plat-
form of the convention which nominated him
as exhibiting bitter hostility to the Government and active sympathy