continue always, which was a consalation; all that night we stood on the deck, feeling very much like "wet rags," as indeed we were. About noon the next day the rain ceased and we betook ourselves to the large "stacks or chimneys, to dry off. For myself I became so overcome with sleep that I lay down on a bench near the gangway and was soon in imagination "dreaming of better times." How long I lay there I don't know, but I was awakened by Captain Brown who said I would be killed if I remained there. It seems that we had stopped at a little port called Macieo and there was such a crowd about that I was being kicked all around, I sprang up all right, like a foot ball, the better for the rough treatment. A brig had run ashore during the night and they were busily at work getting her afloat. Towards

evening we started out again. We felt the want of food very much, and to day some of it was furnished. Large navy crackers, which looked very nice, but which require at least a days boiling to render them fit for mastication, were given us, along with a sort of ten made from a variety of sugar cane, called "matee." not have cared for the hardness of the crackers, if they had been free from vermin, ac tually when broken we found the holes and crevices to be filled with worms and insects, and occasionally a coach roach would leave his "den." By special request the cook added cod fish to our bill of fare, and at his sugvestion we tried some oil on it. I was the first to taste the oil, and heavens ! it almost threw me inio convulsions. However, I swallowed the oil and my feelings, and waited to see some other person take it. It was our mate he toyed it as if about swallowing some delicious morsel, on the first taste he became a little pale and then burst out in an exclamation, the secret was out. That oil was returned to the cook. What it was I don't know, I thought it had performed one duty before in greasing some brass journal of the machinery. Our darkey fellow passengers seemed to like it. Several times we were furnished with "jerked beef," and a species of bean. But 3rd class cooking would spoil the best dish. The water we had was from the river Amazon, and was very muddy, and moreover was kept in such a place on deck where the little darkey children could dabble

The captain had been more unfortunate than any of us, by the burning of his ship he lost much private property, and a chest of his most valuable clothing and papers which were known to have been sent aboard the Florida, were the next morning missing At last we steamed into the harbor of Bahia It is really so wide that it appears as if you were merely rounding a cape to come up to the city; however the tops of hills and mountains seen on the other side remind you, that it is a bay. Many more ships were to be seen here than at Pernambuco, and the city has a , much more extended commerce. The population is given by the Brazilians at 200,000. I think it is not far short of that. Only a portion of the city is visible, it being built in a cresent shape along a narrow flat behind which is an abrupt hill extending clear to the light house at the en-The upper city, it is said, is much trance. improved. Many churches were to be seen above and houses in some places surrounded with palm and cocoanut trees. We anchored a mile from the shore, soon after Capt. Brown took several of us ashore. We walked down nearly a mile through narrow busy streets, passing many negros at work. Six or eight of these fellows, think nothing of carrying a hogshead of sugar; heavy weights like that are slung on a pole which is carried on the shoulders of the ment I noticed several lazy looking people go ing about in Sedan chairs. We called at the office of the American consul, when the Capt. expected to see an old friend of his, Mr. Gilmore, a well known American; but he was no longer consul, and there was noted. The captain managed some limes, with which we proposed to make the "Ama-"zon water drinkalle, he also got some bread, after which we returned to the steamer. They were "coaling up." Two large coal boats were along side, from which the coal was being moved in little baskets, by long files of negroes hand to hand until it was finally precipitated into the coal bunkers .-The American consul visited the steamer. I had an interview with him, but was not aware at the time that he was the consul, or I would have accepted of the loan of a little money which he privately offered me, for the benefit of our party. The consul is a Mr. Wilson of Pittsburg. The reason he did not make a more public offer to relieve us I sup-pose is owing to the want of authority. We were becoming ashamed of our government. After remaining twenty-four hours at Babia, we again started out. For one day we did not teel hunger, but the bread we got was soon consumed. One of our party actually eat four loaves during the afternoon we were at Bahia. The weather continued fair however for four days and we were thankful for that. Any time during the day we could sleep on one of the wheel houses; in fact that place became our general head quarters from whence I fear too many bitter invectives against the Brazilians and their steamers, the Confed erates and their cruisers proceeded; indeed the circumstances we were placed under were very apt to make young men forget their morality.

From our position we could see all over the deck. On the quarter deck, the cabin passengers, in easy chairs puffed away at cigars, or formed in little groups around the ladies. Several of the passengers were titled or noblemen, and many were delegates to the national legislature going to the meet ing at Rio Janeiro. There being but little distinction between whites and blacks in Brazil, when the latter are free and wealthy, as many are; several "African." were among them and seemed to be treated with equal respect. One partly colored man we were informed was an eminent surgeon.

Our fare did not improve and notwithsand ing the rules of health we continued to eat our heaviest meal after dark, as then it was useless to search after the worms and bugs in the bread. We would swallow it, believ ing it to be pure.

We passed caps Frio about sundown on the evening of May 10th, a beautiful sight it was, the hold rocks standing up from the water's edge, a heavy surf dashing through openings, and wasting its strength on the rugged rocks; we sailed very close to it. Evening set in, and during the night it began We were off the entrance of the harbor of Rio, however and onr troubles would soon cease. In the morning we were enveloped in fog and rain, so we lay to, till a sight of the land would tell us our whereabouts

At last land was seen; we passed severa rugged mountainous islands on our way into the harbor. Owing to the rain we did not get a good view of this magnificent bay We finally stopped, where the health officers visited us. Our Pernambuco passports were "vised" and we were ready to leave. Capt. Brown secured a boat and after a short row we effected a landing. "Something to eat" was the first request we made after we found ourselves in the American Ship Chandler's store of T. P. Baldwin. Captain Baldwin sent us up stairs to a small hotel where we were furnished with the first meal in eight days. Bread, butter, eggs, and fresh beef were consumed in a ravenous manner, much to the amusement of the waiters, who could hardly pour out coffee enough.

Thus after a disastrous voyage, sailing tion. On receipt of the news of our capture flour rose fifty cents on the barrel. The ranted as represented John P. LYNE & SON.

Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, being aware of physical weakness, organic debility, deformities, &c., speedily cured.

Immediately cared, and full vigor restored. This distressing affection—which renders, life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgences. Young persons are too apt to commit excosses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived the pleasures of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms to both body and mind arise. The system becomes deranged, the physical and mental functions weakened, loss of procreative power, nervor-viritability, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, indiges tion, constitutional debility, a wasting of the frame, cough, consumption, decay and death OPICE NO 7 SOUTH FREDERICK
