THE TREASURY REPORT.

The report of the Secretary of the Treasury discusses the three questions of the Curren cy, the Public Debt and the Revenue. He goes into a full exposition of the objections to United States notes as a permanent ourrency, the chief of which he states to be the fact that the government of the United States is one of limited and defined powers, and that the authority to tasue notes as money is neither expressly given to Congress by the Constitution, nor fairly to be inferred except as a measure of necessity in a great national emergency. Ho bolds it to be the "crowning glory of the Constitution that this great war has been waged and closed; without the power of the government being | ginia, in 1860, was $98,123,977.
