A bundred and one makers of Origans, Cottago, Parlor, Gabinet, American, School Organs, etc etc., are each claiming to make the best instrument in the world.—Being comparatively a new, instrument, as at present constructed, we are convinced the public are much less capable of judging of tis merits, or demerits, than of most other instruments. If there is really an essential difference in them, if there are some excellent and some worthless ones, the public should have some criterion for judging of them, some facts, which will chilghten them. We cheerfully concede the space or this article knowing that there is hardly a family, or church, or school in all the land, but is more fits being a great misfortune, a real calmit, one of its being a great misfortune, a real calmit, one of the purchase an interior or worthless dyna, rulmous to good playing, and often a source of much annoyance and vexation. The question is often asked, what are "reed organs?" We adswer, they are, in most cases, incibing in the world but the old meloteen in disgulac. Many of the same reeds, and the samely-general internal arrangement. With the bellows turned on eige to gain room, they have simply put on a more predictious exterior and a more high sounding name. But an organ, to be in-reality an organ, must have a wind cleast or resperoir for air separate from the bellows, into which wind-chest the reeds open, and the tone has room to expand, and perfect, itself into the full round fone, similar to the flutte or pipe organ, even, succeth, firm, and mellow; and this tone from reeds caused by a true organits as to have the volume of sound swelling and jerking spasmodically-withevery variation of force on the bellows, which is always the case where the reeds open direct into the bellows or air passages, instead of a wind-chest or sound-box. And yet some makers oven go so far as to claim 'this spasmodic or automate jerking of the bellows on the reeds as an oxellience, 'just as though they did not know that it must very soon throw the reeds in the land of tune, and injure the bellows; and as the case where in the reeds of the bellows on the reeds will many an extended on the reeds, is nothing more not an easier matter to obtain a methods. The truth is, any organ, is certain of the reeds, is nothing more castly managed swell by our mendoden which has the wind acting directly uncorden, dress it unas you may have a superior of the fact that they can obtain those that are organs in fact as well as in name, they will buy no more of the objectionable ones. Then again the swell should, always be sparate and distinct from the bellows, so as not to be acted on by the hand, o
