AMERICAN ORGANS. (From "Godey's Ladies' Book" February, 1866.)

REED ORGANS, &c. THE following remarks and sugges-tions relative to this time beety popular instru-nate will doubless indefects and profit very many of our renders, we commend the article to their careful parties!—

our renders, we commend the article to their caroful preual:—
A hundred and one makers of Organs, Cottage, Partor, Cabludt, American, School Organs, etc., etc., are each claiming to make the best-instrument-in the world. Being comparatively a new instrument in the present constructed, we are convinced the public are much less capable of judging of the merits, than of most other instruments: If there is really an essential-lifference in them, if there are some excellent and some worthless ones, the public should have some criterion for judging of them, some frietrion for judging of them when some frietrion for judging of them when you can be in a source of the purchase an interested in a list topic. We among ware of its being a great miscretune, a retribuse or judging of them to you can be a source of much a minoyance and can be the source of much a minoyance and can be the source of the part of the products.

The current is often asked, what are "freed organs?" Severe Hardships, p to purchase an inferior or worthless Organ, rulinous to sood pleying; and often a source of much annoyance and woxation. We know this sritcle to cuananto from a candid and intelligent source, and thus we gipt it to our caders:

The question is often asked, what are "red organs?" We adswer, they are, in most cases; nothing in the world but the old melodeon in digulse. Many pi the so-called organs have the same to be supported with the old melodeon in digulse. Many pi the so-called organs have the same to be supported and a more high sounding name. But an organ, to be in reality an organ, must have a wind chest or reservoir for air separate from the bellows, into which wind-chest the receds open, and the tone has room to expand and priet; it self into the full cound lone, similar to the full or pipe organ, cue, smooth, firm, and melow; and y known. Ni thing so annoys a transled an any and y known. Ni thing so annoys a braue of picture and a whole of some of a strength of the sease where the reds open direct into the bellows or air passages, instead of, a which close or, sound-box. And yet some makers even go so far as to claim this spasmodle or automatic jerking of the bellow on the reds as an excellence, just as 'though they'did not know that it must very soon throw the reds out of tune, and injure the bollows; and as though they did not know that it must very soon throw the reds out of tune, and injure the bollows; and as though they did not know that it must very soon throw the reds on the reds of the sease. A many organ; so called, or, melodaon, which least the feet will be supplied more creatly, and injure the bollows; and as though they are one as safer matter, to obdit a much better and more easily, namaged swell by other methods. I have known Hoodland's Gorman Bitters favorably for a number of years, I have used them in my own ramily, and have been so pleased with their effects, that he was induced to pecommond them to many others, and know that they have oponized in a strikingly beneficial manner, I take great pleasure in thus publicly proceduring this fact, and calling the attention of those afflicted with the discusses for which they are recommended, to those bitters, knowing from experience that my recommendation will be austained. I de this more fiverfully as Hoodland's Bitters is Intended to benefit the afflicted, and is "not a rum drink."

Gentlemon:—I have recently don laboring under the distressing effects of indigestion, accompanied by a prostration of the nervous system. Numerous remedies were recommended by firendly and some of them tested, but without relief. Your Hooland's German Bitters were recommended by persons who had tried thom, and whose favorable mention of these bitters induced into to fry them: It mast confess that I had an aversion to Patont Medicines from the "thousand and one" quack.
