Maryland, with when Bond shut up his commissioners ; the Governor was very angry about that, and when he came over here on Saturday oven-ing, he wanted martial law declared at once; Grant kept advising against any military interforence, and Stanberry said the Radi-cals were acting under color of law; he could'nt help laughing at Swann because he had been so out-generaled, but he had been much wenied about afterior in Baltimore and much worried about affairs in Baltimore, and was rejoiced to hear that the Radicals had been defeated, and that the State sustainedhis policy so handsomely.

We do not encounter any Presidential profanity in this discourse on Maryland, which we take that 1115 Excellency was stillanxious-not quite full of joy, or any other powerful stimulant of good feeling. It will not fail to be noticed that the President stated that Gen. Grant had constantly advised against military interforence in Maryland, that the President didn't like to run against Grant; and the plain inference that, -but for the patriotic firmness of the General, the President would undoubtedly have precipitated upon Baltimore a massacre even more bloody than that at New Orleans, by sending troops to encourage the robels in a rising and butchery of Union men.

On the receipt of the news from New York.-the President's spirits rose. It-became "clear as noonday that the time for reconciliation had come." In the face of such news, "he could do nothing less than go on in the way he had marked out." Any other course would be treachory to "the Whit have or incloy doub the total and Fernando Wood.
