cost his master, CHARLES I., his crown and Pittsburg Gazctic the following masterly exhis life. At the suit of the Commons Oxposition of the relative powers of Congress FORD, BOLENBROKE and ORMOND were disand the President. It is peculiarly appro printo in view of the early assembling of Congress that the people should be correctly informed upon the law and historical prece dent in emergencies such as the present. The conflict between Congress and the President in regard to the reconstruction of the rebel States, will soon be renewed unless the latter gives in and acknowledges himself any important measure of public policy afbeaten-a thing it is not probable that he er it has been as emphatically condemned will do. The controversy is an exceedingly by the two houses of Parliament, as ANDREW important one. Except the great rebellion JOHNSON'S reconstruction policy has been of the slave States, so recently crushed, nothing in the country's history has been so consequential.

One of the most remarkable features of it be their's, and if the Crown should retain is, the claim, so continually put forth by them in office and require them to carry it ment. Everything that he has done in revortako it. ANDREW JOHNSON, in a his numero gard to reconstruction, he claims' to have been dong by the government. He calls all speeches proposed to appeal to the people a his acts in regard to the matter the acts of the ballot box. Therein he proposed to do the government, and everything that Consubstantially the same thing that Minister do in England when they dissolve Parliagress has done he calls opposition to the gov-ernment. In all his harangues he characterizes the controversy, not as a controversy between Congress and himself, not as a controversy between the legislative and executive the ministry must be changed, and the new departments of the government, but as a ministry must be formed so as to be in accontroversy between Congress and the govcrament. It is in pursuance of this theory that he characterizes Congress as a body hanging loosely on the verge of the governof Congress as traitors who deserve to be to JOHNSON'S reconstruction policy, has hung. It must be obvious to every one that this been taken, and the people by their votes claim is a very extraordinary and a very dangerous one. It entirely ignores the legislative and judicial departments, and makes the executive department all in all. It detion nor mistakon. That answer the Presistroys at one blow the whole system of dent cannot disregard without doing what checks and balances which our fathers, in framing the government, so carefully procosting him his throne; if not his head. vided, and which the Constitution so anxiously cherishes. The Anglo Americans and the same is the case with our House of of to-day are made of the same stuff as the Representatives. In England Parliament is omnipotent, and its omnipotency rests ultimately in the House of Commons. In our government Congress occupies the same position that Parliament does in the British

In this measure the House of Commons, having become the dominant body in the log isnation, has been able to direct the conduct of the gov public affairs without exceeding its constitution of rest in an aright to advise the Crown, even agie the excretes of the prorogative itself; and should its advice the irsegarded, it widels the power of impeachment, and bodis the power strings of the State. For pursuing a policy in definence of the Stick to the Amendment: The Copperheads, acting in the interest of the Rebols, are trying to have partial negro uffrage in connection with general amnesty ubstituted for the Constitutional Amend nent. They want the leading traitors ro tored to all the privileges of citizenship feeling assured that they can control the negro vote, and have things their own way. They want the door left open for the paynent by the nation, of the Rebel debt, and full indomnification for their negroes. They further want negro suffrage, if allowed at all, so restricted and guarded that it can at any time be taken from them. The Presi-dent favors the Copperhead and Rebel plan For pursuing a policy in defiance of the and opposes the Amendmont passed by the position of Parliament, STRAFFORD, at the Republican Congress. -The-first-anniversary-of the Church-Ex Thursday evening Nov. 15. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, by which the cilizons generally were confined to their houses, the church was comfortably filled with an intelligent audience. At a little after seven o'clock Maj. General John W. Geary, governor elect of Pennsylvania, in company with his wife, entered the church building, and were accommodated, with seats near the altar. Subsequently the General was called to officiate as president of the moeting. Soveral distinguished gentlemen took their seats upon the platform. A hymn government. Whatever of omninoteney there is in our government, is vested in Congress, and it rests ultimately in the House of Representatives. The House of Commons having the absolute control of the national purse, can, by stopping the supplies, lay the King and House of Lords prostrate at its the American people, if necessary, will refeet, and our House of Representatives haxing the same control over the national purse, can, with equal case lay the President and the Senate prostrate as its feet. This is not only so as a fact, but it was intended by the framers of the Constitution to be so. But that which more than anything else makes the House of Commons irresistible, is the power of impeachment, and the same power in our House of Representives, makes it equally irresistible. The people are the ultimate source of all political power. The House of Representatives stands in the place of the people. It speaks for the people, and ncts for the people.
