GROWING OLD.

One by one they are passing away. The old of old times to their final rest.

With reverence follow the pillow of fate. And grieve the earth on the day of death.

That pillow is not so soft as we are told. That bed is not so warm as we are told.

They have borne their burden of joy and pain. They have borne their portion of hope and fear.

They have borne their portion of love and grief. They have borne their portion of life and death.

They have borne their portion of life and death. They have borne their portion of life and death.

They have borne their portion of life and death. They have borne their portion of life and death.

They have borne their portion of life and death. They have borne their portion of life and death.

Nearly a thousand applications have been made by persons anxious to fill vacancies on the Chicago police.

It is said that a dog taken in his infancy and held three quarters of an hour under water, will never have the hydrophobia, even if bitten by a mad dog.

It is said that when a Russian husband neglects to beat his wife for a month or two she begins to get alarmed at his indifference.

A. T. Stewart says his business never was better than this year, and that he never advertised so much before. He gives his advertisements credit for keeping his business good in all times.

"Parson, I had much rather hear you preach," said a heathenizing woman, "than see you interfere in bargains between man and man."

"Well," replied the parson, "if you had been where you ought to have been last Sunday you would have heard me preach."

"Where that?" asked the clergyman.

"In the State Prison," returned the woman.

An impudent fellow says: "Show me all the dresses a woman has worn in the course of her life, and I will write her biography from them."

"Go to the devil, do!" cried the enraged Lord Thurloe in his servant's face, "I have a character, my lord," replied the fellow, drily; "people like you, know, by bad characters from their acquaintances."

"Johnny," said a mother to a son, five years old, "go and wash your face. I am ashamed to see you come to dinner with it dirty a month."

"I did wash it, mamma!" and feeling his upper lip, he added gravely, "I think it must be a non-acute coughing."

Kisses and apples are very similar; they should never be tasted without pairing.

Experimental philosophy—Asking a man to lend you money. Moral philosophy—Refusing to do it.

"I came near selling my boots the other day," said Seattle to a friend. "How so?" "Well, I had them half sold."

There is said to be a great similarity between a young lady and a cephalopod. The very thing is not wanted to do. I desired to tell of the glass; the sign prohibited. I wished to climb a tree; the sign prohibited. I longed to smoke a pipe; the sign prohibited. I wanted to throw a stone over to astonish and pulverize such parties as might be passing below; when a sign I have just mentioned, forbade that. Even that poor satisfaction was denied me. I was going to hang up a sign in a world of white foam at the foot of the fall, whose called and bubbly masses were up several inches above my head. Of course, I got into the eddy. I reached the top of the fall, and found a chimp and gaining upon it—each round trip a half a mile—reaching for the same bush on the bank 44 times, and just exactly missing it by a fair's breadth every time. At last I was worn down and sat down close to that bush, and put a pipe in my mouth, and it a match, and followed me with one eye, and kept the other on the match while he sheltered it in his hand. Presently he threw a puff of wind blow it out. The next time I swept around, he said: "Got a match?" "Yes—in my other vest. Help me out, please."

"Excuse the seemingly impudent curiosity of a drawing man, but will you explain this singular conduct of yours?"

"With pleasure. I am the coroner. Don't hurry on my account. I can wait for you. But I wish I had a match."

"I said, 'Take my place and I'll go and get you one.'"

"He declined. This lack of confidence on his part created a coolness between us, and from that time forward I avoided him. It was my idea, and I saw nothing happened to me, so I tried the occurrence as to see my own custom into the hands of the opposition coroner over on the American side. At last a policeman came along and arrested me for disturbing the peace by yelling at people on shore for help. The judge fined me, but I had the advantage of him. My money was with my pantaloons; and my pantaloons were with the Indians.

"Thus I escaped. I am now lying in a very critical condition. At least I am lying, anyway—critical or no critical. I am hurt all over, but I cannot tell the full extent yet, because the doctor is not done taking the inventory. He will make out my manifest to-night; however, thus far he thinks only six of my wounds are fatal. I don't mind the others.

Upon regaining my right mind, I said: "It is an awful savage tribe of Indians that do the head work and moccasin for Niagara Falls, doctor. Where are they from?" "Limerick, my son."

I shall not be able to finish my report on Niagara Falls until I get better.

A Romantic Love Story.

The Count de St. Croix, belonging to one of the noblest families in France, became engaged, after a long courtship, to a lady, his equal in position and fortune, and famous for her beauty. Shortly after the happy day was appointed which was to render too loving hearts one, the Count was ordered immediately to the siege of Sevastopol; so he left on his way, and at the head of his regiment, and so to the battle field. During the Count's absence, it happened that his beautiful affianced had the small pox. Her recovery, but found her beauty hopelessly lost. The disease had assumed in her case the most virulent character, and left her not only disfigured, but seamed and scar
