NATIONAL DEBTS.

EUROPE AND THE UNITED STATES.

The contrast between the financia

olicy of Europe and that of the United States is striking. We have it clearly resented in an article which appears nder the editotial head of the Washhe liberty of using. The national debt of England, which begun two centuries ago, after the restoration of the Stuart lynasty, was only £666,000 in 1688, when however, and the people are now re-William of Nassau, was, elected King. At the peace of Ryswick, in 1697, it had swelled up to £20,000,000. At the accession of the Hanoverian line, in 1714, it had run up to £54,000,000 sterling. was £78,000,000 in 1749, at the end of the feated last winter will be revived next the close of the seven 'years' war; £268,-000,000, in 1786, three years after the American war ended; £268,000,000 after the suppression of the Irish rebellion of the year '98; £571,000,000 in the year unerved, and stricken down in spirit by 1802, at the close of the French revolutionary war; and £885,000,000 at the close of the war against the French Empire, in 1815. The national debt of France, which begun at the close of the last century with the Consulate, was £123,000,000 in 1814, when Napoleon fell and is now £541,000,000. The indebtedness of the other great Powers may be Austria, £302,000,000; Italy, £245,000,-000 : Spain, £230,000,000 : Holland, £82, 000,000; Prussia, £62,000,000. It is singular that in none of these countries the idea is entertained of lessening the oublic burdens by an attempt to reduce the public debt ... It has come to be unlerstood abroad that a loan never to be epaid is considered a more eligible investment than a loan that is to be repaid; besides the fact that the interest payable on the public is smaller than hat payable on the private loan, Another anomaly is the current ignovariously stated at from five to fifty milaen generally, as exhibiting the mineral lion pounds less than its actual amount. wealth and improvements of the State. £53, 180, 380. The merican national debt was $2,-49,491,745 on the first day of January, 1866. Dr. J. W. Draper, historian of the war, says, "to it should be added the ums expended by the individual States nd local bodies in raising and fitting out their several contingents rises above four thousand millions of dollars. That is, in five to six years-June, 1860, to January, 1866—we equaled the indebtedness of England during two centuries. But as soon as peace was restored, we began to reduce this debt by paying it off. All that England ever id was to establish a sinking fund, which, in a moment of fiscal need, was seized and appropriated, by the British Government. It was one of the crotchets of Alison, the historian, that if this sinking fund "had been left to itself it would have extinguished the whole public debt of England (only $4,425,000,000 after Vaterloo) by the year 1845." Here then, we differ from European nations. We are paying off our debt, and to do so has been the steady purpose of President Grant from the hour-he entered office. It is a herculean task, but is within the power of honest administrators of public affairs. .

VIRGINIA RAILROADS. The coatfield on the West slope of the Alleghenies, extending from the Monongahela to the Big Sandy rivers, is by far he largest, the richest, and is destined to become the most valuable in the world. In Europe, nearly all the coal deposits lie far beneath the general surface, and far below water level. Deep shafts are sunk at immense cost, to reach them the mines are then ventilated and drained as they are being worked, only after the most astonishing outlays. On the Kanawha and collateral valleys, the coal crops out of the hill sides in veins from 5 to 12 feet thick, far above water level, and can be dumped into the cars by the force of gravity, for merely nominal cost, and carried thence to wherever it is needed. A few miles eastward of this immense store of coal, on the eastern slope of the Alleghenies, are found inexhaustible de posits of iron ores of the best qualities. The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, now in course of construction from the navigable waters of the James River, to the river navigation of the Mississippi Valley, the greater part of which is already in operation, crosses both the iron fields

VOL. 70. NO. 17. GUARD THE TREASURY. There is one subject connected with ur State legislation which requires some looking after by the people, if they have any care for their own interests. We mean that in relation to the bonds ow held by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and which only escaped the grasp of speculators last winter, by the aid of the veto of the great railroad swindle. -These-bonds are an immense temptation to every corrupt politician in the Commonwealth. They amount to almost one-third of the entire State debt, and are especially set apart as assets for its payment. The politicians, however, see in them an immense chance for stealing. They succeeded last winter, in about three days of hard work, in getting through a bill that transferred the whole of these securities to three or four paper corporations, in exchange for ngton Chronicle, and which we take bonds that had yet, to be created that really represented no property, and that were destitute of any present value whatever, This little scheme was defeated

The railroad people now know their ground, and will be propared to succeed in spite of all obstacles. The vote on the railroad bill at the last session was within a trifle of two-thirds of both houses, and it may be possible that some gentlemen voted against the bill, who would have voted in its favor if they had been in their second session instead of their first. At any rate, it is pretty well conceded that if the railroad men had had time after the veto they could have overcome it. This shows a condition of affairs that is positively alarming, and should arouse the people to such and expression of their will as will deter politicians from disregarding it. Every county in the State should see to it that no man is nominated for the Legislature who is not known to be opposed to any other disposition of the bonds than the payment of the debt. And no man' should be sent who cannot be relied upon as being proof against all inducements to any other course.
