CHARLES DICKENS. There could hardly be a more painful task than that devolving upon us, of mouncing the decease of Charles Dickens, the great English novelist. The ws comes with startling suddenness and it will be received with sorrow in every part of the world where the English language is spoken. Mr. Dickens has not been in very robust health of late; but he had no serious illness, so far as any one knew; he was fifty-eight years old; his mind was in perfect vigor, as his latest writings have shown, and there on the facts of the case as they stand, was every prospect of there being many when he appeared to be in the fulles enjoyment of life.

But in the great qualities of a writer for people of all classes, he was far beyond either of these, and beyond all other writers of fletion in his own or any other. anguage. This is high praise, but who will gainsay it? Does not the heart of every intelligent reader of his works re spond to it, in this moment of sorrow at earing of his death? The judgment is not perverted even by grief, when a subject is before it that has occupied the thoughts for so long a time. When the shock of grief subsides, the opinion will be the same. The whol struggle is in the nature of a protracted ruerrilla warfare, which Spain seems up ble to suppress, and which the insur gents have not succeeded in raising to a point, which entitles them to be recognized as belligerents.

The President states the established policy of this Government, as announced by Washington, ....i adhered to by succeeding Presidents, is that of neutrality and abstinence from foreign entangle ments. Recognizing this as the true po sition for our government to occupy, the question of the recognition of the Cubar insurgents is one which is to be decided and not upon the sympathy for, or prejumore years of his useful life. A LEADING Democratic paper in at article ridiculing Governor Geary's address to the people, on the subject of the Sinking Fund securities, says that the three railroad companies that were so eager to be subsidized last winter, are now going to build the road on their own resources. We are very glad to hear it, and hope they may find their unde taking successful. If, however, these companies can build these roads themselves, why should they be so eager to get the bonds in the Treasury? And urther, how much truth was there in the pretence that these roads couldn't be built by these corporations without State aid. That whole transaction last winter had a rather singular appearance.

This is entirely proper, and we would suggest that the Court, if within its power, make a decree hat hereafter Mrs. McFarland be compelled to live with him, support him, earn money to pay his whisky bills, "find him" in revolvers and ammunition, and pay his counsel fees whenever his temporary insanity leads him to shoot anybody. This might be objected to as unreasonable by some, but we hope the objection won't be urged by those who applaud the verdict that acquitted him.

RED CLOUD and his followers have been the centre of attraction at Washington for the last few days. They have had frequent conferences with the Pres-ident, Secretaries Fish and Cox, and Commissioner Parker; Red Oloud is by no means inclined to allow the people who represent the Great Father to get the better of him, and it is doubtful whether his visit to Washington will be of much avail. Somehow there was no enthusiasm No one cheered. The meeting was decorous in the highest degree. There were no cheers for Haldeman, and what is stranger there were 'no cheers for the Democracy, or even the New York election. What the dence was the matter with our friends? They were in the presence of their leader, they had been inspired with his eloquence, and with the music of the band, and yet there was no enthusiasm, no cheers, and no applause. Around the spot stood many who used to roar furious approval of anything that fell from a Democratic orator, but now they roared more gently than sucking doves The demonstration was a failure for any legitimate Democratic purpose whatever. Even a moderately dark skinned citizen by the Fifteenth Amendment, might have passed through that crowd in safety, so little of their ancient spirit did there cem to be present. Perhaps it was the numidity of the atmosphere that affected both orator and audience. It had rained much recently, and this may have acounted for the singular dampness of the occasion. Directly, however, the band ecovering its spirits, struck up "Shoo ily," the crowd dispersed, and our Congressman retired to fold the drapery of his couch around him; and lie down to
