Having for the last thirty-five years devoted my whole time and attention to the study of lung disease, and consumption, I feel that I understand fully the course that ought to be pursued to restore tolerably had case of diseased lungs to healthy soundness. The first and most important step is for the patient to avoid taking cold, and the best of all places on this continent for this purpose in winter, is Fiorlik, well down in the State, where the temperature is regular, and not subject to such variations as in more Northern latitudes. Planta is a point I can recommend. A good hotel is kept there by Paterman. Lust winter I raw soveral persons there whose lungs had been hadly divessed, but who, under the healing indinence of the climate and my medicines, were setting well.

One hundred miles further down the river is a point which I would profer to Palatka, as the temperature is more even and the air dry and bracking. Court, Boston, is the publisher.
