

CARLISLE, PENNA. Volume LXVII. No. 18. FOR PRESIDENT: GENERAL U. S. GRANT. FOR GOVERNOR: GEN. JOHN F. HARRINGTON. SUPREME JUDGE: HON. ULYSSES MERCUR.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

This political gathering which is now in session is, undoubtedly, the greatest in the history of our primary campaign. The result of the Philadelphia convention has been conceded for months, and consequently no unusual interest will attach to its deliberations.

The convention is somewhat novel in formation. Ordinarily conventions are composed of men who represent a certain portion of the community, or at least represent some well defined line of political action.

GRANT should not be re-nominated as one gentleman who is very anxious about the result of the convention. He is not a man who would be dissatisfied, well, who should be nominated? Carl Schurz and Anna Dickins are eligible.

There is no time during the administration when he could, with his whole power, have manipulated a single Republican State convention in his favor. He was not loved or trusted by those who had voted for him, and therefore, even with his hosts of office-holders he was powerless.

The mass of the Republican voters have no other name in connection with the Presidency than that of Gen. Grant. To him they turned in hopeful confidence after their betrayal by Andrew Johnson, and they rallied under his banner as they rally under no other.

THE NEW YORK WORLD a few days since announced that the Democratic party would support Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts, for President. If he were nominated, this announcement would be regarded with some interest.

Mr. Greeley don't like Grant. Mr. Greeley don't like President Lincoln. We believe he don't love President Grant. We suspect Mr. Greeley's antipathy to Presidents might be removed if he had a little personal experience with the Presidency.

DISCUSSION.

The following article from the Philadelphia North American, contains some excellent suggestions on the subject of loaning money, which we commend to many of our capitalists.

A paper published at Bangor, Maine, pleads with the capitalists of that place to be more liberal in their policy toward the young and struggling business-men of the town, and then asks this question: "Is it not better for the rich man to loan money at six per cent and have the city grow and flourish, than to exact twelve per cent and starve it wither and wane?"
