

From the Practical Farmer.
A PRODUCTIVE ORCHARD IN CHESTER COUNTY.
About four miles from Poughkeepsan station, Baltimore Central railroad, in Chester county, resides Joshua A. Jeffries, a thoroughly practical and successful fruit grower from a prominent Chester county farmer now before us calls him "the very best and most successful apple grower we have in Chester county." The following essay, written by him, as the results of his observations and experience for many years, was written for the fruit and orchard section of the East-Penna. Fruit Growers' Report—and as this will not appear for many months, we have been favored with the manuscript, which we take pleasure in laying before our readers. We have often seen varieties as late as the fruit, and can thus testify from personal observation, as to the perfectly healthy condition of the trees, clean bark, and well balanced loads, with freedom from insect pests, and the fruit as perfect as any we have ever seen anywhere.
