FARM AND HOUSEHOLD. FARM ORNAMENTS.

An exchange says, we must protes emplicationally against the practice of expending all the taste, time and labor in adornment of a front yard. The outlook from the rear windows of a home should be as gratifying as from the front. The exit from the rear of a house should be as compensating as the entrance from the front. We want the inside of the platter clear as well as the outside. And the same harmonious system should extend to every field on the farm. Vines should clamber over outhouses, old stumps and all uncouth objects that cannot be removed, even though the vines be nothing but hop or woodbine. Groups of evergreens or delicious trees or shrubs should screen and seelude the indispensable appurtenances of a farm, which are in themselves only necessities.

only profitable—but break up the monotony, and relieve the eye and the heart of the husbandman, as well as afford protection from sun and storm. ... +++ ---

RELATIVE VALUE OF CLOVER AND TIMOTHY .- The relative value of clover as compared with timothy or herd-grass, whether for hay, for winter feeding, or for green forage for "soiling" in summer, is one of no inconsiderable interest to practical agriculturists. When green or first cut, one hundred pounds of red clover contains but nineteen pounds of solid matter, whereas an equal weight of timothy has more than forty-three pounds. For soiling, therefore, the cost of cutting and hauling the two kinds of forage to the stalls is in the ratio of three and one-sixth to seven and one-sixth, with the further drawback in the case of clover is that of too watery character is detrimental to the general health of the animals. For hay, however, the analysis of chemists give a great relative worth to clover, ton for ton, as compared with timothy, than it is commonly credited with. Dried at 212 degrees, Fahrenheit, red clover contains about twenty-two and one-half per cent of flesh forming; three and seven-tenths per cent of fat forming, and forty-four and one-half per cent heat producing food elements; while of these, timothy has respectively about eleven and one-third, three and one-half, and fifty-three and one-third per cent.

THINNING FRUIT .- The Southern pa pers say there never were as fine oranges in Florida as there are this year, and that it is owing to a severe gale which blew off nearly three-fifths of the young fruit just after they were fairly formed. The Germantown Telegraph urges a lesson from this to be heeded by fruit grow ers' societies in any part of the community, and note the great difference of opinion which prevails as to the quality of any fruit. One speaker characterizes it as food for the gods, while another would not give it to his pups. No doubt if the state of the facts could be ascertained, it would be found that one had an over crop, and the other but a few on his trees. In the grape we know how forcibly all writers warn us against the evil of the over cropping. The best it aids the size, but the quality of those which are left; and in the year itself, we Prices all know how the large, fat, juicy fellows, are far superior to the lean scrub from the same tree.

FIELD CARROTS .- Having plowed and harrowed the ground, mark, for seed, twenty inches apart, leaving drills two water as hot as the hand can be held in; drain and mix with dry ashes until the seeds will separate. Sow early as possible. After sowing, brush a little dirt on the seed. The row should be rolled or stamped hard, leaving the spaces between as light and loose as possible. The carrots, if seed is good, will appear in about ten days or about two weeks sooner than by the ordinary manner of planting. They should be heed as soon as they begin to come up. The previous rolling in the row will hold the small New plants so that the hoe may cut leose without disturbing them. The weeds and surplus carrots may now be easily pulled from the rows.

NUMBER OF EGGS IN A HEN.-It has been ascertained that the ovarium of a fowl is composed of 600 ovules or eggs; therefore a hen during the whole of her life cannot possibly lay more than 600 eggs, which in the natural course are distributed over sine years, in the following proportion: First year after birth.

Third -Sixth

1 to 10 It follows that it would not be profitable to keep hens after the fourth year, as their produce would not pay for their keeping, except when they are a valuable and scarce breed. - G. K. Geylin on Poultry Breeding.

FAILURES IN FARMING.—As a general thing, when ordinary industry and judgment are exercised in the business of farming, success, to a greater or less extent, is certain. In other occupations success is not alone dependent on hese qualities, but in spite of the greatest efforts and closest attention, failures often occur. The fickle goddess haunts the merchant and the speculator, but the farmer, secure on his well-tilled fields, is not afraid of her frowns nor courts her smile. Fortune for him has no favors to grant, and cannot seriously assail his position. With neither pov erty nor riches to interfere, ho is in the best position for exercising all the virtues:- Hearth and Home.

DESTROYING MOLES. -A corresponden of the Pomologist writes : Every garden is more or less troubled with moles, and every housekeeper is under the necessity of watching out for rats, and almost every body knows how troublesome they are, when they take possession of a house, granary og collar. I have found that potash placed in their holes, runs, or places of resort, effectually cleans the premises in a very short time. I had the pleasure of seeing one large mole which had helped himself to a small dose of potash, found in his walk, and he looked like a dilapidated and superanuated scallawag. / I don't think lie over troubled anybody's garden again.

FLAX culture in the north-west, having proved a success, a large increase in the breadth of territory devoted to this crop may be looked for this season.
