delphia, have just issued one of the most remarkable and attractive books of the day, bearing the above title. It is comprised in one large octave volume of $50 pages, and illustrated with nearly 200 line engravings of noted places, life and scenes in New York.

To Mr. McCabe is due the credit of having produced the most complete and graphy account of the great city, and its busy and varied life that it has been our fortune to meet with. His book is brine full of solid and useful information, and abounds in descriptions of the varia, and abounds in descriptions of the varia. and abounds in descriptions of the vari-ous public buildings of New York, its palacers, prisons, hotels, churches, stores, hospitals, etc.

The work sets forth in glowing colors

the noble work for suffering humanity, which is going on every day in the great city, and reveals with a bold hand the terrible crimes; the dark mysteries, and the hidden sins of metropolitan life. We are introduced into the home of the Fifth Avenue millionaire, and carried with equal interest to the squalid cellar of the Fred Points beggar. We are brought face to face with the good and the bad, face to face with the good and the bad, the high and the low, with leading merchants, bankers, editors, and actors, with bummers, thieves, detectives, and murderers, with working women, ballet girls, adventuresses, and a host of others, and we seem to be listening to their stories from their own lips, so thoroughly does the author enchain our interest. Our warmest epthusiasm, and our deepest contempt up alternately aroused by the thrilling recital of their deeds of virtue and vice. The history and frauds of the famous Tammany Ring are related with great force and candor, and this portion, alone is worth the price of the Hoofland's Medicines. ONE MILLION OF LIVES SAVED!

It is one of the remarkable facts of this remarkable age, not merely that so many persons are the victims of dyspepsia or indigestion, but its willing victime. Now, we would not be understood to say that any one regards dyspepsia with favor, or feels disposed to rank it abburg the luxuries of life. Far from it. The c who have experienced its torments with the condition of the c is fortures uncomplainingly, but whoover leard of a person who enjoyed the ut. Of all place multifarious diseases to which the human system is diable, there is perhaps no one so enerally provalent as dyspepsia. There are diseases ore acuts and painful, and which more frequently rove fatal; but none, the effects of which are sepressing to the mind and so positively distressing the orbid it is

But it is not our intention to descant on the horeof Dyspepsia. To describe them fruthfully is simply an impossibility, but it is possible to polutout are removed. We have said that dyspepsia is perhaps the most universal of human diseases. This is comparable that the case in the United Spates. We then this general prevalence is due to the character of the food, the method of its preparation, or the hardy manner in which it is ushally swallowed, is not our province to explain. The great fact with which we are called to deal is this:

and sale remedy is within the easy reach of all who desire to avail themselves of it?—But the majority will not. Blinded by the prejudice, or deterrebly some other unexplained influence, they refuse to accept the relife proferred them. They turn a deal care to the toximony of the thousands whose sufferings have been alleviated, and with strange inflation, appear to cling with desperate determination. Their ruthless tormenter?
