SPOTTED TAIL AT THE EXECUTIVE MANSION.

The Spotted Tail delegation of Indians had an interview with the President Thursday morning at the Executive Mansion. They were accompanied by three Indian women and by General Walker, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mr. D. R. Risley, their agent, and others. Spotted Tail was in his shirt sleeves, and wore a heavy red mantle, his hair ornamented with a feather of the same color. A large silver medal, with the raised likeness of Andrew Johnson, rested on his breast.

After the usual hand-shaking by all the Indians with the President, Spotted Tail said, through the interpreter, that he was a little tired now, but would have something to tell his Great Father to-morrow. The President replied that they would not see him tomorrow, as he was going away, but they could talk to the Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who were authorized to act for him.

He understood that Spotted Tail had something to say to him about the location of his agency, and requested the interpreter to say that Red Cloud was permitted to change his agency location because at the former place there was little or no water in the summer season. He did not want to drive Spotted Tail away from the present location of the agency, but he thought it would be better to remove, as a considerable sum of money, $60,000 would be saved in transportation, which would be expended for Spotted Tail and his people.

Spotted Tail said that all the young Indians now present were good men, and they intend to-day to have a council among themselves as to a change of location.

The President replied: "Then let them tell the Commissioner the result." Agent Risley said to the President that when he went among those Indians he found them all peaceably disposed and desirous of maintaining friendly relations. Spotted Tail not only exerted his counsel to this end, but always strived to impress his people with the importance of obeying the President's orders.

The President expressed his gratification with this report, adding: "We will do all we can for their benefit; we want to make them self-sustaining, and are willing to help them until they can reach that point. We want the white and red man to be on good terms, so that one as well as the other can go where he pleases without being molested."

Spotted Tail said he had something more to say to the President.

I hear, he remarked, that in a few months there will be an election for a new President. I hope you may be successful. This would please me very much, for you have been very kind to my people. The President replied: However the election may result, I hope there will be no change in the Indian policy. The interview here ended, the Indians filing before the President and shaking his hand as they took their departure.

A WOMAN IN A TURKISH BATH.

M. H. B., the sprightly lady correspondent of the Missouri Republican, has been taking a Turkish bath in New York, and don't like it. Here is what she says of it:

"We were divested of every stitch of our clothing, our rings and bracelets locked up, our back hair taken off, our own special possession of seventy-five or a hundred hairs made into a little hirsute pill and impaled with a hair pin. That was the only token of civilization we boasted. The procession formed. At the door we were handed a minature sheet and a little bit of sponge wet with cold water. Through a passage to a room, where we dropped our sheets and entering a vapor that clothed us decently. I wonder the Illustrated Police Gazette or the Dog's Delight haven't hit on this business for illustration. Well, in this steam I thought I should suffocate. It poured up and in and down through holes till it was dreadful. The use of the wet sponge, I here ascertain, was to put on the top of your head to prevent "coup de steam," or some such dire complaint. They would not let me out, and the temperature got worse and worse and I began to think of my mother and an obituary notice in the Republican, which we were pronounced cooked enough, and let out into a room in which was a mighty tank of cold water, through which you must wade or swim as you could. Cæsar's ghost! I flew through it. My anatomy and physiology were heated to almost boiling point. This water seemed like ice. It sent the blood rushing to my hollow head (I'm convinced I have no brains), and my heart came to drop up and went ke-chunck down. I made up my mind this was the worst of it, and tried to be resigned. I had soaped and scrubbed in the vapor room till I was scarificed. I stood on the brink and watched my companions splashing through the infernal tank. One of them, to expedite her own release, caught at my ankle; away went my soapy, slippery feet from under me, and in I went for a second time. How very near an end was the happy connection between M. H. B. and the St. Louis Republican.

At the next stage of this truly awful experience we received the "shower." I had now become convinced that I should never see home or friends again. In a calm despair I walked under a solid column of water that nearly broke my back, and just here I got mad. That fat attendant hasn't yet recovered sufficiently to make a complaint, and when the thin woman went before Judge Dowling, that gentleman said it was a conspiracy; that no one woman of my size, unaided, could do such damage. He told the woman to go home and say nothing about it; for she'd evidently been dreadfully drunk, and undertaken to walk through a carpet cleaning machine. And that's the first and last Russian bath I take.

IMPORTANT CIRCULAR TO PENSIONERS.—The following circular has been issued by the Acting Commissioner of Pensions:

Persons who are already pensioned under the act of June, 1866, at either of the rates of $15, $20 or $25, are entitled by an act passed June, 1872, to increased rates, and may secure such increase without formal application and without the intervention of an attorney, nor will any attorney be recognized in such cases. A letter from the pensioner pensioned as above, addressed to this office, enclosing his pension certificate, and giving his post office address, will be a sufficient presentation of his claim for the increase. The certificate will receive such endorsement by this office as will authorize the payment of the increased rate, and will then be forwarded to the pension agency at which the pension is payable, and the pensioner will be notified of such transmission.
