

For the Spy and Columbian.

It would be ungrateful in a civilized community, to withhold the tribute of respect and praise due to any disinterested and humane action, which is accomplished in their midst for the benefit of others, under circumstances of danger and alarm. The consciousness in the breasts of the noble individuals who so distinguish themselves, is, it is true, their greatest reward; and, no doubt the only one which presents itself to their consideration, as a motive in the hour of emergency; but it is nevertheless, the duty of others to see that such virtuous acts are duly known and honored.

The exertions of Mr. George Bogle, in saving the life of a lad who was drowning in our river on Wednesday evening last, constitute one of those noble deeds, which, in a community such as ours, when children are daily exposed to the like danger, cannot be too highly appreciated. The boy had sunk to the bottom some minutes before Mr. Bogle arrived at the place. He saw the bystanders pointing to the spot when he went down—without waiting to enquire who it was, that was in the jaws of death, alone and unassisted, he plunged into the water. After several ineffectual attempts to find the body by diving, and after his strength was almost exhausted, he appealed to those who stood on the wharf to come and assist him in his search. But no one was willing to venture. Unwilling to relinquish the attempt to save the life of a fellow creature, he renewed his efforts. At last, when completely overcome with the violence of his exertions, he succeeded in rescuing the child from what, but for him, must have proved a watery grave, and was himself drawn out of the water in a state of extreme exhaustion. Even then his care for the object of his disinterested benevolence did not cease; but with a promptitude, which does credit to his judgment, as fully as his previous efforts show the generous impulses of his heart, he dictated the steps that were necessary to restore animation to the body, nor did he permit his exertions until he had the satisfaction of seeing signs of returning life, and was relieved by the coming of Dr. Clark-son, who took the child in charge.

This, it is said, is the fifth instance in which Mr. Bogle has been instrumental in saving the lives of individuals in similar danger; and it is an interesting fact, that his father lost his life, by being drowned, not many yards distant from the spot where this last heroic act was performed.

Surely such deeds as these, added to the high character which his own industry, intelligence and strict integrity have already won for him, ought to command the honor and esteem of all his fellow citizens.

I know that Mr. Bogle's modesty will shrink from this public testimony to his virtues, for he is one of those who,
"Do good by stealth
And blush to find its fame;"
but it would reflect little credit upon the feelings of our people, if such generous actions were passed by in silence.

THE WONG MAN HUNG.—A young printer, named Boyington, who served his time in the office of the New Haven Palladium, was, a few years since in Alabama, upon a charge of having murdered a companion, with whom he was travelling. He protested his innocence to the last, but without avail. Recently, the landlord in whose house the murder was committed, confessed the crime on his death bed! Boyington was a young man of fine talent and prepossessing appearance, whose guilt was deemed conclusive only from the fact that he was the last person seen with the murdered man.—Albany Evening Journal.

This is one among many cases on record where the innocent have suffered for the guilty, and it furnishes, in our humble opinion, one of the strongest arguments that can be urged in favor of the abolition of capital punishment.

FRIGHTFUL LOSS OF LIFE IN A BELGIAN COAL MINER.—Brussels, July 19.—On the night of the 16th inst., a destructive fire broke out on the premises connected with the Marillage Coal Works, near Scraing. It originated in the engine-room near the mouth of the pit, and rapidly spread, catching in its progress, and burning the ladders and ropes which served for descending into the coal pit, and thus cutting off for the time all means of escape for 164 workmen who were at work therein. The first signal of their danger was the appearance of dense columns of smoke which came down the mouth of the pit. The workmen immediately rushed to the ladders, but the foremost, ascending them a short distance, were either suffocated and fell dead on the ground, or killed by the falling of burning materials from the top of the shaft. The fire was, after great efforts, mastered, and a descent into the pit made, when a most frightful sight presented itself. The dead, the dying, and wounded, lay all scattered about the place. Forty-nine dead bodies were taken out of the pit, and thirty-one alive, but most of them badly wounded. Search was being made for the remainder.

WATER-CURE IN ENGLAND.—The Hydropathic method of treating disease is attracting great attention in Great Britain as well as in our own country. Men of high reputation for scientific research are giving it a thoughtful examination. Already a distinguished member of the medical profession (Dr. Forbes) has announced in the journal which he edits, 'British and Foreign Medical Review,' that men must examine the water treatment, and draw from its list of means remedies against some diseases at least. A monthly periodical, 'The Water-Cure Journal,' edited by J. M. Gully, M. D. and W. M. Lead, M. D. was to have been commenced on the 1st inst. It will unquestionably be received with favor at home, and without disparagement to our own periodicals devoted to the same object, we could wish for it a wide circulation on this side of the Atlantic.—N. Y. Tribune.

A GENUINE WINDFALL.—We hear that letters received by the last European steamer, of the death of a Capt. Lamphere, in England, who has left a large property and some $100,000 in cash to five persons, in Lapeer county. The immediate heir in this country was Mrs. Hubbard, of Windsor, Vt. formerly a Lamphere. She died some two years since, leaving four sons and a daughter by the name of Hubbard, who reside near Lapeer county seat. The daughter was the wife of Dr. Carpenter, of Almonte, who will soon visit London on the business.—Detroit (Mich.) Free Press.

THE DESERTED SCHOOL-ROOM. BY MARY G. WELLS. Where are the laughing faces that filled this lonely room. Where are the merry voices that chased away its gloom. And where the brilliant eyes that looked black and blue. That o'er the tedious pages their weary glances threw? Gone are the fairy footsteps that fell so lightly here. Scarce echoing thro' the room, now so silent and so dear. Ye careless children to your happy homes ye're flown. And left me here in sadness to meditate alone.—The benches, chairs and tables in wild confusion thrown. The floor with paper fragments and "copy-slips" o'er-strown. Pencil, pens and well-thumbed books, cast idly here and there. Shew how glad to leave their tasks the giddy owners were. Thoughtless ones, it likes ye not o'er musty tomes to pore. And small respect have ye for wisdom or for lore: Why will ye, immortal souls, throw life's best hours away. Why will ye not profit by youth's short and sunny day? Too soon the time will come when ye'll grieve, with bitter tears.

For each neglected moment of by-gone days and years. Columbia, August 21, 1847.

Col. Benton, it is reported, has written to Washington demanding a Court Martial for the vindication of his son-in-law, Col. Fremont. A Louisville paper says that Col. Benton is preparing for a terrific attack on the administration next winter. In speaking of the administration and the war his language is very bitter.

SMILES.—Modesty is the female character is like saltpetre to beef, imparting a bluish white it preserves its purity.
The above is only equalled by Ollapod, who says: "Female lips are but the glowing gateways of so much beef and cabbage."

A GOOD ONE.—A little chony applied to a grocer, a few days ago, in the name of her mistress, for a sample of cheese. The article was given, and in a few moments the darky returned with Misses say berry good cheeses, and tank you for send two more samples!"

"Entered at the custom house," said Mrs Partington, pondering on the expression: "I don't see how the vessels ever got in; but I am glad that the collector cleared 'em right out again. It will learn them better manners next time, I think!"—Boston Post.

THE WORKING ESTATE.—Smith, in his "Wealth of Nations," says that "the patrimony of a poor man lies in the dexterity of his hands; and to hinder him from employing this strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper, without injury to his neighbor, is a violation of his sacred property."

DISCOVERY AT ATHENS OF OLD.—A Greek manuscript of the Sixth Century has been discovered at Athens, which, beside a treatise on Byzantine painting, is said to contain an account of the daguerotype process, and hints for the manufacture of gun cotton. In this manuscript, the art of producing photographic pictures is called "Heliotype."

LIVER COMPLAINT is generally accompanied with pain in the right side, extending up to the top of the shoulder—variable appetite, occasionally a disordered stomach, yellow tinge of the skin and eyes, and often a swelling over the region of the liver, together with many other symptoms of a loaded and corrupt state of the blood.

WRIGHT'S Indian Vegetable Pills will find one of the very best medicines in the world for the cure of all diseases of the Liver; because they expel from the body those morbid humors which, when deposited upon this important organ, are the cause of every variety of Liver Complaint. From three to six of the above named Indian Vegetable Pills, taken every night on going to bed, will, in a short time, give such manifest relief, that no argument or persuasion will be necessary to induce a perseverance in their use, until the liver is restored to a healthy action, and pain or distress of every kind is driven from the body.
