Quiz at Politicians.

BY JAMES T. FIELDS.

Poor child of fancy, party's candidate, Born of a caucus, what shall be thy fate? Nursed by a clique, perplexed I see thee stand, Holding a letter in thy doubtful hand;— It comes with questions that demand replies, Important, weighty, relevant and wise. "Respected Sir," the sheet of queries runs, In solid phalanx, like election buns,— "Respected Sir, we humbly beg to know Your mind on matters that we name below; Be firm, consistent, that is, if you can; The country rocks and we must know our man. And first, What think you of the Northern Lights, And is it fatal when a mad dog bites? Do you allow your corn to mix with peas, And do you doubt the moon is one with cheese? If all your young potatoes should disease, What neighbor's patch would you incline to fleece? When Lot's slow help-meet made that foolish halt, Was she half rock, or only table salt? And had the ark run tumbling on the stumps, Would you, if there, have aided at the pumps? Do you approve of men who stick to pills, Or aqueous pilgrims to Vermont's broad hills? Do you mark Friday darkest of the seven? Do you believe that white folks go to heaven? Do you imbibe brown sugar in your tea? Do you spell Congress with a K or C? Will you eat oysters in the month of June, And soup and sherbet with a fork or spoon? Towards what amusement does your fancy lean? Do you believe in France or Lamertine? Shall you at church eight times a month be found, Or absent only when the box goes round? Should Mr. Speaker ask you out to dine, Will you accept, or how would you decline? In case a comet should our earth impale, Have you the proper tongs to seize his tail? For early answers we would make request— Weigh well the topics, calmly act your best, Show us your platform, how you mean to tread, Plump upon your feet, or flat upon your head; If your opinions coincide with ours, We delegate to you the proper powers. N. B.—No bribes; the postage you must pay From this to Boston and the other way. A Postscript, private. If we all agree, The undersigned expect the usual fee; And if you publish in the Western Bull, Pray don't forget to print our names in full.

The Farmer's Daughter.

She may not in the maize dance, With jeweled maidens vie; She may not smile on courtly swain With soft, bewitching smile; She cannot boast a form and mien That lavish wealth has brought her; But ah! she has much fairer charms, The Farmer's peerless daughter! The rose and lily on her cheek Together love to dwell, Her laughing blue eyes wreath around The heart a witching spell! Her smile as bright as morning's glow Upon the dewy plain, And listening to her voice, we dream The spring has come again. The timid lily is not more wild, Nor yet more gay and free, The lily's cup is not more pure In all its purity. Of all the wild flowers in the wood, Or by the chrysal water, There's none more pure nor fair than she The Farmer's peerless daughter. Then tell me not of jeweled fair— The brightest jewel yet Is in the heart where virtue dwells And innocence is set! The glow of health upon her cheek, The grace no rule has taught her,— The fairest wreath that beauty twines, Is for the Farmer's daughter!

A CORN STORY.—We have had fish stories, dog stories, snake stories, &c, in abundance, of late; now for a corn story that 'flogs' them all down. Some editor south tells the following tall one: "Being one day in the village of Y—, S. C., I listened to several planters stating the amount of corn gathered from an acre, the number of ears produced by a single stalk, &c. At length one, who had remained silent, commenced:— "Well, I'll now tell my tale, Last spring while walking in my cornfield, I observed a stalk growing very luxuriantly, and being curious to know if it would produce better than others, I stuck a stick which I had in my hand, beside it. I thought no more about it, until being in the field one day about gathering time, I observed a very extraordinary stalk of corn, and on counting the ears, I found thirteen full grown, besides several nubbings. It now occurred to me that this must be the stalk I had marked in the spring, and on looking for my stick I found an ear growing on that!"

MODESTY.—"Oh, ma," said a juvenile to an elderly dame, "there goes pa, with a yoke of steers hitched to a bobsled." "Hush my child," said the mother, "it is very vulgar to say so; you should say a pair of gentleman cows attached to a Robert sleigh."

The English Soldier. In no other country in the world is the soldier so heartily despised as in England; and is he more cordially admired. Men look down upon him with unbounded contempt; woman look up to him with passionate adoration. He is ridiculed on the one side; he is worshipped on the other.— He is at once a lobster and a hero. He is insulted in the streets; he is courted from the areas. The butcher's boy shoulders his empty tray with a face full of impudence, and the cook-maid, as she returns with the joint, looks back at him with a face full of love. His red coat, his erect carriage, his handsome person, the halo of bravery which surrounds him, gladden the eyes, possess the imaginations, and fill the hearts of the gentle sex, whilst men think him a poor creature indeed, because he may not put his hands in his pockets, stay out after nightfall, or get drunk at discretion. They see he is at the mercy of the drill-sergeant—that he has sold his liberty for a shilling a day—that he has turned into a mere machine, without even the ordinary privilege of a free and enlightened citizen to wear as much dirt upon his person as he pleases. For all this they heartily despise; and because he is adored by the women, they, moreover, cordially detest him. Besides, he is mixed up in their minds in some undefined notions of taxation—and that is enough in itself to render him the most unpopular animal in the world.—North British Review.

Alligator Fight.—An Incident of the Crevasse. The quarters of Col. Claiborne, near Sauve's crevasse, are some four feet under water. Night before last, a veteran alligator from St. Tammany concluded to pay the colonel a visit. Taking his course quietly through the corn fields and pastures, he thought it would be polite to call at the cabin of the 'driver,' or head man, and inquire if the colonel was at home. Finding the door closed, he walked under the house, and bellowed hallo! at the top of his voice. Getting no answer, he commenced a tremendous floundering and thumping, lifting up the flooring, and scattering the little 'niggers' in every direction. The hubbub roused the sleepers. They jumped out of bed in a terrible stew, raked up a light, and at the same moment were sent bouncing among the rafters, the visitor underneath lifting up one plank, and then another, flinging the whole crowd off their legs as fast as they could straighten them out.

Such a scene of confusion was never witnessed. The darbies were completely bewildered, and their outcries soon drew the whole establishment together. The planks were drawn up, and there was— not Old Nick—but a fellow much uglier, a tremendous alligator, with expanded jaws, shaking his monstrous tail in defiance, and sweeping it round in rapid semicircles. The instant he was discovered, two huge dogs leaped upon him, but the contest did not last for a moment. One he struck dead with his sweeping tail, the other he crunched between his bloody jaws. By this time the negroes got their dander up. They rushed upon him with axes, mauls and bludgeons. The monster stood his ground, and never said die, until one of them thrust a burning brand down his fetid throat. He is of enormous girth, and measures over fifteen feet.—N. Orleans Delta, May 13.

"A YOKE OF OXEN AT ONE CHAW."—Many years ago, a Mr. Miller, one of the early settlers of a neighboring town, sold a yoke of oxen for $50, and in received payment a fifty dollar bank bill, which he carefully folded up and deposited in his 'tobacco-box' for safe keeping. Mr. M. was accustomed to make use of the 'weed' at any hour of the day or night even, whenever he felt an inclination for it.—The night following the sale of the oxen he sought his 'tobacco-box,' and finding a convenient portion, he put it into his mouth, and not readily obtaining the full benefit he expected, he chewed it most vigorously and effectually, exclaiming as he did so, 'No strength to the tobacco!—No strength to the tobacco!' when recollecting the transaction of the day, and the place where he deposited his treasure, he added, 'Ohio! a yoke of oxen at one chaw!—AT ONE CHAW!'—Maine Farmer.

THE GREATEST DEPTH EVER REACHED BY SOUNDING, was in the Atlantic Ocean, 900 miles west of St. Helena, where Sir James Ross found no bottom, with a fathom line of six miles and a quarter in length. THE PROGRESS OF SCIENCE.—A NEW YANKEE INVENTION.—A patent is about to be secured for a new style of spring-cushions, mattresses, &c., to be stuffed with live grasshoppers!

PERFECT HAPPINESS.—A laundress who was employed in the family of one of our former governors, said to him, with a sigh: "Only think, your excellency, how little money would make me happy." "How little, madam?" said the Governor.

"Oh! dear sir, one hundred dollars would make me perfectly happy." "If that is all, you shall have it," and he immediately gave it to her.

She looked at it with joy and thankfulness, and before the Governor was out of hearing, exclaimed: "I wish I had said two hundred."

It has been suggested that the best board of health in the world is the wash-board.

AGRICULTURAL.

Signs of a Poor Farmer.

He grazes his mowing land late in the spring. Some of his cows are much past their prime. He neglects to keep the dung and ground from the sils of his building. He sows and plants his land till it is exhausted before he thinks of manuring.—He keeps too much stock, and many of them are unruddy. He has a place for nothing, and nothing in its place. If he wants a chisel or a hammer, he cannot find it.—He seldom does anything in stormy weather or in an evening. You will often hear of his being in the bar-room talking of hard times. Although he has been on a piece of land twenty years, ask him for grafted apples, and he will tell you he could not raise them, for he never had any luck. His indolence and carelessness subject him to many accidents.—He loses his cider for want of a hoop. His plough breaks in his hurry to get in his seed in season, because it was not housed; and in harvest when he is at work on a distant part of the farm, the hogs break into his garden for want of a small repair in his fence. He always feels in a hurry, yet in his busiest day he will stop and talk till he has wearied your patience. He is seldom neat in his person, and generally late at public worship. His children are late at school, and their books torn and dirty.—He has no enterprise, and is sure to have no money; or if he must have it makes great sacrifices to get it; and he is slack in his payments and altogether on credit; he purchases everything at a dear rate. You will see the smoke out of his chimney long after daylight in winter. His horse stable is not daily cleaned, nor his horse curried. Boards, shingles, and clapboards, are to be seen off his buildings month after month, without being replaced, and his windows are full of rags. He feeds his hogs and horses with whole grain. If the lambs die, or the wool comes off his sheep, he does not think it for want of care or food. He is a great borrower, and seldom returns the thing borrowed. He is a poor husband, a poor father, a poor neighbor, a poor citizen, and a poor christian.

Cleansing the Bark of Fruit Trees.

This operation should be performed in early spring, as well as in mid-summer.—The rough, loose parts of the bark should be scraped off, as well as moss and other parasites. The bark should then be covered with the following mixture, as high as the operator can reach, with an ordinary long handle whitewash brush: 5 pounds white-oil soap; 1 pound fine salt, 1 pound fine sand, 2 pounds potash, 2 ounces nitrate of soda, dissolved or mixed with water to the consistency of cream, and thoroughly rubbed upon the bark.

Many kinds of insects are kept from trees by a solution of whale-oil soap alone, and many such resident in the crevices of the bark, are destroyed by salt. The fine sand is intended during the rubbing to scratch the outer coating of the bark, and thus insulate the other ingredients for more perfect action. The potash and nitrate of soda will decompose or soften the dead parts of the bark, so that during the summer, they will be thrown off by the healthy action of the growing bark. If the above mixture be applied in dry weather, it will become so hard as to remain during several showers, and thus have time to perform its office. Trees with smooth bark, such as the plum, many of the cherries, &c., should be rubbed with a wet rough woolen cloth, in a few hours after applying the mixture; this rubbing will cause the sand to clean the surface so perfectly as to give the bark an improved and more healthy surface. Trees so cleansed are not as likely to be revisited by insects as those left with their natural surfaces, nor are they as likely to become bark-bound. Indeed we have never known a tree to exhibit the disease called bark-bound, the surface of the trunk of which had been softened by a soap wash in early spring. The cherry, apricot, peach, and nectarine are subject, when left to their natural state, to this disease, and it has usually been attributed to too rich or too moist a soil, and under-draining and slitting the bark lengthwise with the knife, are the usual remedies. The one is expensive and often impossible where choice trees are planted, and the other is barbarous and unsightly, causing exhalation of gum and consequent canker. In any case, a few applications of soap to the surface of the part to be bound will remove the difficulty, and the mixture before recommended may be applied, slightly warmed, when required to soften the bark of a bark-bound tree.

At Rochester, Noble county, February 18th, by Rev. Mr. Wolf, Mr. Silas Lion to Miss Edith Lamb. "Our Devil call this a beastly affair, but it reminds us rather of that era spoken of in Holy writ: 'The Lion and the Lamb shall lie down together, and a little child shall our Bible be lost, and we forget the remainder of the quotation.'"
