

POETRY.

From the Journal of Commerce.

Song of Departure.

One more sigh—this hour of parting From the life we live and love; One more tear of manly weakness For the home whence we shall rove.

But the land we leave behind us Is debased with slavish men; Thoughts, opinions, all are copied. And a hand holds the pen.

Let me burst these rusty fetters, They corrode my inner soul; Let me wander where no others Can my words or deeds control.

I will range with hardy hunters On their hoary mountains bold; They are rough, but richly inland, Like their rocks, with heart of gold.

No more sighs then—no more weakness In this parting from old home; Here is bondage—there is freedom— There the soul may widely roam.

Invocation to Mother Earth.

BY GRACE GREENWOOD.

Oh Earth! thy face hath not the grace That smiling Heaven did bless, When thou wert "good" and blushing red In thy young loveliness.

Thou still art fair, when morn's fresh air Thrills with the lark's sweet song When nature seems to wake from dreams, And laugh and dance along.

Thou'rt fair at eve, when skies receive The last smiles of the sun— When through the shades that twilight spreads, The stars peep, one by one.

And thou art grand, where lakes expand, And mighty rivers roll— Where Ocean proud, with threatenings loud, Mocketh at man's control.

We bless thee now, for gifts that thou Hast freely to us shed— For dew and showers, and beauteous flowers, And blue skies overhead.

But when long years of cares and tears Have come and passed away, The time may be, when sadly we Shall turn to thee and say:

Carlyle says:—Nine-tenths of the miseries and vices of manhood proceed from idleness; with men of quick minds, to whom it is especially pernicious, this habit is commonly the fruit of many disappointments and schemes oft baffled; and men fail in their schemes not so much for the want of strength as from ill-direction of it.

Honest Confession. When Lucy Cowper was once examined in a court of justice, one of the counselors asked her if she came there in the character of a modest woman? 'No sir,' replied she, 'that which has been the ruin of me, has been the making of you—I mean impudence.'

AGRICULTURAL.

Roots for Stock.

Not only the farmer, who unites with his other vocations that of stock raising, but the mechanic who keeps but a single cow, should endeavor to supply himself with a sufficiency of roots for winter use. There are several varieties of roots cultivated for this purpose—all of which are, no doubt, possessed of considerable value; yet some are superior to others on account of their greater hardiness, greater yield, or superior richness in the elements of animal food.

The Germantown Telegraph says: "The parsnip I have found to be an excellent food for swine, superior, I think to the potato. The amount raised on my farm in 1844, was something over three hundred bushels—all of which, with the exception of what was required for table use, was fed to my hogs. I am informed that in the island of Guernsey the raising of this root for swine feeding, is a principal branch of agriculture, and that the parsnip is there rarely appropriated to any other use. This food imparts a remarkably fine flavor to the meat, which is beautifully white, sweet, and firm. The carrot is easily raised, and is rarely used with vermin.—My crops, in the favorable seasons, cost me about eight cents per bushel."

Milking Cows.

It is important that all the milk should be drawn from the udder if it be not, the quantity secreted will diminish in proportion to the quantity left each milking. That which is left in the udder is re-absorbed into the system, and the next milking will be as much less in quantity. Cows will not yield their milk to a person they dislike, but will soon evince by their quiet attitude and chewing the cud, that the operation, when performed by a gentle and expert milker is productive of pleasure. The udder and teats should always be washed clean with water, which in the winter should be warmed. This will not only insure the cleanliness of the milk, but will cause it to flow more freely.

Fruit Trees.

Instead of continuing the old practice of having alternate bearing, and barren years for fruit trees, those who cultivate them would do well to note this fact. When young trees first come into bearing about the time the fruit is setting, if the most of it is taken off, and this continued for a few years in succession, leaving every year about the same quantity on the trees, they will by the time they have become of sufficient size to be profitable, have acquired the habit of bearing every year.

To CLEAN KNIVES.—Charcoal, ground to powder, is one of the best things ever discovered to clean knives. This is a late and valuable discovery.

TURNIP SEED.—Mix the seed with Flour of Sulphur, then put it into a bottle and cork perfectly tight for six or eight weeks previous to planting. He has pursued this plan for several years, and has never known it to fail to protect the crop effectually against the fly. This is an important hint to our farmers and we commend it to their attention.

BRAMBLES AND BUSHES.—Cut down, dig up, burn, destroy, without mercy and without discouragement; repeat the blow as often as they show their heads; and one or two seasons of such war will exterminate them.

A FACT FOR FARMERS.—A writer in the Tennessee Agriculturalist states that chickens and fowls fed with corn ground coarse, as for instance, hominy, will never have the gapes.

To KEEP IRON PLOUGHS FROM RUSTING.—Cover the bright steel or iron part with good whitewash, keep dry, and no rust will form.

There are three sights most detestable:—a proud priest giving his blessing, a knavish hypocrite saying his prayers, and a false patriot making an harangue.

COMPLIMENTARY.—The Cincinnati Commercial tells a good story: It says:—'How often is that rosy-cheeked man, who never indulges in the use of ardent spirits, is suspected of taking a drop now and then. An occurrence which took place yesterday morning verifies that fact.'

Our old friend William Luck, was passing along Fourth street, early after breakfast, when his progress was politely arrested by a well dressed, well fed gentleman, from the country, with,

'Sir, can you inform me where I can procure a few gallons of fine old brandy? I wish to take it out to my place for private use.'

'Well, sir,' said Mr. L. 'I am informed that Mr. S., of the bank Exchange, is an expert in those matters, and will supply you.'

So, after showing the stranger where Mr. S. was to be found, continued, 'You have the advantage of me—I don't know you.'

'Nor do I know you,' replied the stranger; 'but you look like a man who knows where the best brandy in town is to be found.'

Mr. L. bowed to the stranger, and passed down the street, muttering that he did not know which excelled, the man's politeness or his impudence.

We learn that, during the last year, five hundred and forty young ladies fainted away on various occasions. More than two hundred of them fell into the arms of young gentlemen. Forty were caught by their aunts and grand-mothers; and only one had the misfortune to fall on the floor. She, however, picked out a soft place to fall upon and was providentially received by an ottoman.
